Editor's Column

STUART R. PADDOCK

Our file labeled "Routes 83 and 53" was opened in the editorial office this week.

It revealed the time cost of delays on road decisions. Rolling Meadows, Palatine, and particularly the business interests of Northwest highway through Palatine, began talking about an acceptable new route for Ill. 53 three years ago. Gov. Stratton had promised Mt. Prospect its riddance of route 83 four years ago.

Both problems are still with us in 1960.

Oct. 10, 1957 . . . (Editorial) "Cook county highway department has accepted in good faith the Palatine Master Plan. As a public service they placed in motion the necessary machinery to provide county and federal funds for an underpass at the North Western railway and Rohlwing road as a limited access highway. This new roadway, a combined routes 83-53, would provide easy travel to the north and direct connection to the Northwest toll road to the south."

The editorial concluded with, "The time will come in the not-too-distant future when Palatine and Rolling Meadows will regret their action in rejecting federal highway aid."

Non-acceptance by various groups created a road block. Until this week the only progress made was by the Rolling Meadows village board, which made a definite recommendation.

Today, the state highway department has passed out the word that it is ready to include, in this year's program, provision for purchase of needed right-of-way.

For background, we dug a little further in the files.

A news story published Nov. 8, 1956 quoted Gov. Stratton as saying "The general details of the rerouting of highways 53 and 14 are now being worked out by engineers of both Cook county and our state division of highways. Every effort will be made to get this project established so that the definite location can be designated and right-of-way acquired and kept clear of future encroachments."

In the three years that have ensued, there have been a lot of encroachments. It is harder than ever to satisfy all interests. It will be harder than ever tomorrow.

Time does not stand still. In a news story published Aug. 12, 1958, route 14 business interests stated "we do not want the new 53 to disturb the present road bearing that name."

(Under the new plan it would become "City 53")

July 31, 1958 . . . "An alternate route presented to the county highway department would come up along the east side of Winston Park shopping center, then swing east through Winston's industrial area south of Chicago ave. and then curve north along Wilke road, joining the present proposed route near Dundee road."

This is the route that is favored today by the majority of Winston Park residents and which was recommended by Mayor Olsen 18 months ago.

From the Sept. 25, 1958 issue of the Enterprise . . .

Oct. 16, 1958 . . . "No decision was reached Monday night by the Palatine village board on a recommendation for locating a limited access highway in and near the community. After an hour and a half of discussion by about a dozen businessmen and trustees before about 75 residents, the board went on to other business." . . . "Objections came from Northwest highway businessmen who asked that the traffic situation be let status quo."

That is what it has been until now.

This week's column is not written in criticism of what has or has not happened in the past. Its object is to remind us of what was not done when it should have been done.

POLICE BRUTALITY

CHARGES REFUTED

Youth Guilty On 2 Counts

Charges of brutality leveled at Arlington Heights police this week were of no avail to a village youth who was found guilty of larceny and traffic violations.

The charges were made Wednesday in Police Magistrate's court by John M. Hodor, 17, of 1411 W. Sigwalt st., when State's Attorney Eldred Benz introduced a statement made by Hodor in connection with the theft of oil from Will's Pure Oil station, 216 S. State rd. on December 29.

Hodor's attorney objected that the statement was made under coercion, and Hodor testified that following his arrest he was thrown into a squad car and cursed and beaten. He pleaded innocent of larceny and traffic violation charge.

HE SAID he was taken to the police station, where he was banked against lockers, and then driven to Pioneer park where he was taken out of the car and beaten on the back of the neck and in the stomach. He testified that he was handcuffed and that a police officer told him, "Run and I'll kill you."

Hodor's mother backed up his story. She told the court that when she saw her son the following morning, he could hardly walk. He was taken to an Elgin hospital, X-rayed, and sent to a doctor.

Police Chief Calderwood labeled the charges "ridiculous" and noted that the following rumors of police brutality, he had conducted an investigation into the case and concluded by awarding official commendations to the officers who handled the case.

Hodor's lawyer also told a Herald reporter that he didn't believe his client's charges.

FOLLOWING Hodor's accusations, Judge Robert Buckley called a recess and huddled with both the state's attorney and defendant's counsel.

Hodor then changed his plea to guilty and Buckley suspended sentencing for two weeks until the youth's record can be investigated. His counsel asked for probation and noted that Hodor was planning on entering the service.

Hodor has a series of minor police charges on his record dating back to July, 1958.

HE WAS arrested last month after a wild automobile chase at speeds up to 70 mph through Arlington Heights streets.

He and his car were identified in connection with the theft of 36 quarts of oil.

Republican Women Are Organizing

Wheeling township Republican women are organizing themselves into a federation at the urging of Congresswoman Marguerite Church.

Fourteen of the women had an organizational meeting last week and are planning a luncheon for February 25 at Old Orchard country club.

OBJECT OF the federation is to assist precinct captains in getting out the vote and inform members on political issues by securing speakers.

Women interested in joining the group should contact Mrs. Eugene Coughlin at Cl 3-8024.

Plan 32 Deluxe Apartment Units

Land development plans for 32 deluxe apartment units adjacent to and east of the Northwest Community hospital have been submitted for approval to Arlington Heights' plan commission.

Plans call for two buildings, each containing 16 one-bedroom apartments. Each apartment will have its own fireplace and private balcony. A swimming pool is planned for the development.

TO BE called Central Manor apartments, each unit will have over 900 sq. ft. Required minimum footage is 600 sq. ft.

Carl Behrens, local realtor, is developer of the project.

Ice Carnival Is Rescheduled

Weather permitting, the Rotary Ice Carnival will be held Saturday at Pioneer park. Warm temperatures forced cancellation of the third annual Carnival, January 30. If the ice is hard this week racing events and figure skating competition will be held for children of all ages.

Anyone may enter by attending the figure skating tryouts and preliminary racing heats at 9 a.m.

Class Rings Are Displayed

Class rings for Arlington and Prospect high school students will be on display at O'Bert Jewelers, Dunton court, Arlington Heights, Thursday, Feb. 11, 2:30 to 9 p.m.

To Auction Liens On 50 Local Lots

Liens on over 50 Arlington Heights lots will be auctioned off in late March or early April at the village hall.

Many of the liens can be traced back to failure of property owners to pay special assessments for installation of a sewer in 1927.

THE LOTS concerned are in the Arlington Manor, M. L. Harris, Sunnyview, and Northwest Highland subdivisions. All subdivisions except Northwest Highland are on the south side of the village.

Additional information on the lots may be obtained by calling Howard Jeffers, FR 2-2880. He represents a law firm handling the liens for the village.

Flying Is Hazardous

Sighting of Robin Inspires Bird Probe

by PHILIP NELSON

No Abominable Snowman was sighted, but something that seemed almost as rare in the middle of winter as an orchid blooming in the snow — a robin — was reported last week by Mrs. Elsa Panzenhagen.

The cocky creature was first spotted on January 27 by her son, William, behind their house at 1006 N. Hickory, Arlington Heights. The bird didn't seem to realize it was the middle of winter, but went about its business of looking for food, whistling "cheerily cheerup, cheerily cheerup" without letup, walking on the hard crust of snow.

THE NEXT morning, Mrs. Panzenhagen again sighted the bird, big, fat, and sporting the same red waistcoat. Still looking for food.

"I threw it bread," she said. But hoodlum birds, tough brown city-bred English sparrows, accustomed to gutter fighting and starlings, swooped on the bread and put the robin to flight.

The bird has returned every morning, however, and the latest report had him sitting in a hawthorn tree, waiting for Mrs. Panzenhagen to spread some bread.

Where did the robin come from? Was he a welcome harbinger of Spring? This reporter enthusiastically picked up a phone and dialed the Chicago Natural History Museum.

AT THE OTHER end, the story was interrupted with a "What?" "A robin, a robin. You know, robin redbreast."

"Oh," said the party at the other end of the line, then silence. Finally, the reporter plucked up courage to start the round robin going again, with questions about Spring and all that.

"Justaminute," said the voice, and the reporter could almost swear there was a scratching sound at the other end of the line.

Then--"Them guys always go home at 4:30," the voice said, and there was a click.

AT THE LINCOLN park zoo, the line buzzed endlessly. "Probably feeding the hippopotamuses," the reporter mused. But when the Brookfield zoo line didn't respond, it occurred to the reporter that there might be a conspiracy of silence this year about robins. Perhaps robins were a defense measure something to do with secret weapons, with A-bombs clenched between beaks and they all had been given strict orders. It was a startling thought, one to brood over.

But not for long. Leonard Dubkin came to mind. Dubkin is more or less an amateur naturalist with professional leanings. He has written a book or two and has penetrated their world from within, disguised sometimes as a blade of grass, often as the bark of trees or roots lying along the ground. Very clever, too, gaining their confidence that way, a sort of Herbert Filbrick of the feathered and furry world.

HIS RESPONSE was warm and instantaneous. "I don't think they come back," he said. "Flying is too hazardous. A lot of the time, the robin lives here in the woods, the forest preserves, in trees, under eaves throughout the winter. They don't need much food."

He went on to describe their migration flights, along the four main flyways, the Atlantic, the Middlewest, the Rocky Mountain and the Pacific. Flights begin around September, with the young birds flying south first.

They fly at night and feed by day. What guides them? No one really knows, but there is a theory of the "coriolis effect," that the birds have within them some tiny gyroscope which responds to the rotation of the earth. No one really knows.

Millions of them fly south to Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi. They have a native feeling for this country, never crossing the Rio Grande or the Gulf of Mexico to go "south of the border."

DOWN TEXAS way, Dubkin relates, at least one Texan naturalist is badly disgruntled by their arrival, complaining they are belligerent and chase away the mockingbird and other songbirds.

But up here, in Arlington Heights, the bully runs for his life, as his citified friends muscle in.

The robin is here. In the village, suburbanites are dusting off their swim suits and barbecue pits and scratching at the ground with tense fingernails for the crocuses and tulips.

Fine Schools Deserve 'Yes'

Residents of Arlington Heights school district 25 will be asked Saturday to help maintain their district's reputation as one of the best in an area noted for fine public school systems.

They will be asked to approve bond issues totalling $675,000 for four sites and a new elementary school.

Purchase of the sites has been termed a necessity by the board of education if the district is to have proper distribution of schools. While the present intent is to build upon but one of the sites, the district's rapid growth daily reduces and increases in price the land available for future school sites.

The board of education has made a thorough study of the district's growth and has considered a detailed 35-page "saturation study" prepared by Dr. Jack Childress of Northwestern University's school of education. The study indicates that at saturation point the district's enrollment in kindergarten through fifth grade will be 5,825 students and in junior high, 2,759 students. Total enrollment in December, 1959, was 4,150. The study recommended the acquisition of one junior high and three elementary school sites.

The need for the proposed school on Kensington rd. is emphasized by the fact that double sessions will be required at the Windsor school next September until the new school can be completed.

At the close of school in June, 1959, the enrollment at Windsor was 575. It is expected to reach 750 by June, 1960. If the 1955-1959 growth rate of the district continues, there will be over 1,000 new students in the next three years.

Many homeowners settled in Arlington Heights because of the outstanding reputation of its school district. Such a reputation is well founded and serves not only the primary purpose of providing a superior education for district children, but plays a major role in keeping property values high.

The Herald urges a "yes" vote for both sites and school.

Grade Schools Vote Saturday

Residents of Arlington Heights school district 25 will be asked Saturday to approve bond issues totaling $675,000 for a school, three sites, and an addition to a site.

On the ballot will be proposals to:

—issue $497,000 in bonds for construction of the Kensington elementary school on Evanston st., just south of Kensington rd. Included in this is the price of an acre of land the district wishes to add to the four-acre site it already owns.

--issue $178,000 in bonds to purchase one junior high and two elementary school sites.

--use $47,021 remaining from the building programs of 1957 and 1958 toward construction of the school.

POLLING PLACES will be open from noon to 7 p.m. and are as follows: Dryden school, Dryden and Rockwell; North school, 410 N. State rd.; Park school, Park and Mitchell; Ridge school, Fernandez and Vine; Westgate school, Dwyer and Grove; Windsor school, Miner and Windsor.

Each polling place will provide for residents in the area served by the school in which it is located, except that residents of Prospect Meadows and Wedgewood Terrace will vote at Windsor school.

Persons eligible to vote are those over 21 years of age who have lived in Illinois for one year, Cook county for 90 days and in school district 25 for 30 days. No registration is necessary.

Charge Driver In Accidents

Hit-and-run and drunk driving charges were leveled against an Arlington Heights man last Friday night after he ricocheted off two cars in the downtown business district.

Milton Boiskou, 58, of 408 W. Thomas st., struck the rear end of a car parked in front of him as he pulled away from the curb on Campbell st. just west of Dunton st., according to police reports.

Then, say witnesses, Boiskou backed up and took off like a rocket. He crossed the center line at the intersection of Campbell and Dunton and sheared off the left front fender of a car traveling west. Police say Boisku left 40 feet of skid marks when he pulled away from the curb.

AFTER striking the second car he continued east to State rd. where he turned south. A quick acting witness, however, gave chase and pursued Boiskou to Park and Evergreen where his damaged car broke down. J. C. Mears, 1017 N. Kennicott, sent his son for the police while he watched Boiskou.

After his arrest, Boiskou was taken to the station and given a drunkometer test.

There were no injuries resulting from the accidents.

After this date, said Hanson, village police will begin issuing tickets.

As of this week 6,700 stickers have been sold. Hanson estimates, however, there are 8,000 vehicles in the village.

Educator Asks: Where Can We Find Teacher?

E. S. Castor, district 15 assistant superintendent, raised a most pressing question at a meeting Thursday of school administrators, and parents. The meeting, on the behalf of perceptually handicapped children, was held in the Mt. Prospect village hall. Members of all district seven women's clubs were present.

Castor addressed his question to Mrs. Gordon Hallstrom, president of the Fund for Perceptually Handicapped children, a fund established for the purpose of raising the educational level of children who because of accident, illness, or injury, do not interpret the world around them as others do.

"We are very interested in such a program in district 15," Castor said." We are completing a survey of all our handicapped children. Where do we find a teacher?"

MRS. HALLSTROM smiled, realizing the difficulty districts are having now finding a person qualified to teach the perceptually handicapped. She explained that the Fund was currently giving a fellowship to a young man who is taking training at the Cove school, Evanston. After he finishes there this spring, he will go to Illinois Normal university to train teachers for perceptually handicapped children.

But this doesn't solve the immediate problem of teachers for district 15 that has one child, Denny Kardon, without education, or the problems of Mt. Prospect, district 57, with two known perceptually handicapped children of pre-school age, or the problem of Elk Grove, district 59, with another preschool brain damaged child.

District 15 has been working on Denny for years. The school tried him unsuccessfully in kindergarten. Testing proved he was too intelligent, therefore ineligible for the EMH room. Castor personally has arranged to have Denny tested by Illinois Juvenile Research. He tried to get him into rooms for perceptually handicapped children in Wheeling, Northbrook, and Elgin. None will take children from outside their district.

SCHOOL SOCIAL workers find it difficult to work with Denny, because he is so active. The answer district 15 educators see for Denny is a residential school away from the stimulating atmosphere of his home and in close touch with medical and psychological specialists.

That's the story of Denny. His district can do no more, yet Castor still raised the question, anticipating future children who could be helped before they become so old and sensitive to stimulation as Denny.

After Mrs. Hallstrom told of the Fund's work to help supply teachers, a trained psychologist from Evanston hospital, who had come to the meeting, suggested that districts look around among their own personnel. Find your very best teacher and see if he or she would be interested in the special training necessary to teach these children was the advice.

THAT IS what Wheeling did. Miss Katherine LeMay, who teaches eight children (she got a new student Thursday) in Wheeling told Junior Women's club members her experience. She has just started another course in psychology, always working to improve her methods of handling these children.

The meeting proved to be important for parents of perceptually handicapped children who were able to meet with Miss LeMay and Mrs. Hallstrom and get pointers on how to handle their own children.

Mrs. William Arburn, Elk Grove, has a little boy, 4. He seems to be musical, but has trouble recalling an object when it is spoken. She is going to observe Miss LeMay at work. Unlike most perceptually handicapped children, her son is calm and needs stimulation.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Freund, Mt. Prospect, were also at the meeting to learn how they could help their 3-year-old son. His speech is quite clear, but sometime his answers to questions show his parents that he isn't understanding. He has been diagnosed as brain-injured.

Thus, more and more perceptually handicapped children are being diagnosed in the Northwest suburbs. But diagnosis is only half the battle. Education is the other half. The furthering of education is what Junior Women's clubs all over the state are trying to promote, through their support of the Fund for perceptually handicapped children. (B8

'Patterns in Music'

Variety Show Stars Top Teenage Talent

The cream of area teenage talent will go on display with the presentation of the 1960 Arlington high school talent show on the boys' gym stage February 13 at 8 p.m.

Thirty student acts, selected from the over 60 that tried out early in December, will appear in "Patterns in Music."

Strictly a variety show, "Patterns in Music" features vocal, dance, and instrumental numbers woven around a theme of foreign and domestic music.

THERE WILL be no speaking parts in the show, a marked deviation from previous productions, in which the acts where usually grouped around a prepared script.

Emphasis in the first section of the show will be on France, Germany, and the Orient. The second act will trace American music, including spirituals and folk tunes, the gay 90's, vaudeville, the jazz era, and show tunes.

A GROUP OF senior girls will kick the show and the French scene off with a Can-can.

From France the show will move in a German beer garden, where songs and dances of Germany will be presented.

An Arabian dance and "The Japanese Doll Dance" are included in the Oriental scene, along with "Japanese Sandman" and a novelty number, "The Younger Generation."

The second act will trace American music, beginning with spirituals and folk tunes and ending with show tunes.

One of the highlights of the Western scene will be a square dance performed by 24 students.

INCLUDED IN THE gay 90's scene is a brass band, a trombone quartet, and a barbershop quartet. Vaudeville, the next section, will be represented by five acts appearing in the "Old Palace Theatre."

The Jazz era will include a combo, string trio, piano solo, vocal number, and interpretive dance.

Show tunes complete the musical patterns. "It's a Big, Wide, Wonderful World," will be the background for the finale.

All scenery for the show is of an abstract nature, with the emphasis on lighting effects.

MARTHA CRAIG, Arlington counselor, is co-ordinating all aspects of the production. A senior, Tom Wade, is in charge of the direction of the show.

Tickets are on sale at the school for $1.25. They will be available at the door the night of the performance. (AF

Palatine Citizens At Agency Meeting

Family Service agency was given a shot in the arm by Palatine, Monday night, when 20 interested persons attended a conference at Oak st. school.

The need for funds was stressed by Dr. Robert Savage, president of the Family Service board. He asked for suggestions as to what Palatine is willing to do in Shouldering its share of the maintenance cost.

He received many answers. As the talk continued the "color" changed from drab to rosy pink.

THE NUCLEUS of a local board was started by the acceptance by five women who will take the initiative in interesting other women and organizations in the agency, stressing its importance to the welfare of the community.

It was agreed that education of the public about the Family Service program should precede a new drive for funds.

That is the present situation. Organizations who originally had a part in fund raising for the agency are going to be contacted as well as newer groups.

Members of the official board who were also present included Geo. Lessmith, Gerald Chapman and Albert Goldthwaite (B8

Reveal Flood Plans Of Sanitary District

Action by the Metropolitan Sanitary District may sandbag possible flooding of the south side of Arlington Heights.

A district representative Tuesday morning agreed to recommend action which would provide Rolling Meadows' new unit of homes with adequate drainage facilities and thus relieve a dangerously overloaded storm sewer system in Arlington Heights.

At a meeting of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Sanitary District officials, an agreement was reached which may make the local problem a trial program. The Sanitary District, which usually concerns itself with sewage only, will consider using an unprecedented special assessment privilege in order to finance the new system.

AT PRESENT Arlington Heights' sewer problem is complicated by drainage from a new unit of Kimball Hill homes in Rolling Meadows which is sending water through a 42-inch storm sewer into Arlington Heights' 24-inch system.

A heavy rain could, at present, cause severe flooding in the village, especially around Mitchell, Chestnut, Highland, Vail and Evergreen sts. on the south side.

When the village closed the Princeton ave. storm sewer, thus blocking drainage from Rolling Meadows, the unincorporated area on the southwest corner of Kirchoff and Wilke rds. was flooded, and the county highway department protested that plans for widening of Kirchoff rd. to four lanes from Wilke to Rohlwing rd. could not be carried out

THE VILLAGE was ordered to open the Princeton ave. storm sewer or face injunction from the state's attorney.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District plan suggested at Tuesday's meeting would make the District a coordinating agency between Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows, provide engineers who would work out the flood relief problem, and utilize previously unused legislature which provides the district with power to take remedial measures to solve drainage problems by special assessment.

William Nordberg, representing the sanitary district, said he would present the general subject to the commissioners, but pointed out that there is a need for more definite facts and figures as to what must be done and how much it will cost.

WILLIAM LYNCH stated that the county highway engineers would provide the sanitary district with surveys, plats and drawings, and Rolling Meadows' Mayor John Woods volunteered the assistance of his city's government in solving the problem.

Meanwhile, Arlington Heights' south side remains in peril of flooding should the village have a heavy rainstorm. Several home owners have already protested that water has been seeping into their basements and standing on their property as the result of melted snow and light showers.

Census Taker Is Getting Personal

The census taker is getting more personal all the time.

The ancient Romans simply counted noses and property, chiefly for the purpose of taxation, according to World Book Encyclopedia.

William the Conqueror compiled a little more information on who-owned-what when he decided to spread some payola, in the form of land, among his followers . . . at the expense of the nobility. When his officials finished adding up the English people and their possessions in 1086, they had two huge volumes called the Domesday Book.

EUROPEAN CITIES kept to the bare facts when they began to count their population in the 1400's and 1500's. The first such count was taken in Nuremberg, Germany, in 1449.

Three hundred years later Sweden compiled the first national census, based on parish records.

In 1790 the fledgling U. S. government sent out 17 marshals and a few hundred assistants to count the population in order to provide a basis for taxing the states and to determine the nember of representatives they would have in Congress.

The first great invasion of privacy occured in 1850, when census takers began to write down the names of all people in the country. They also classified the population according to age, sex, race and place of birth.

SOON THE "enumerators" were poking their noses into such matters as occupation, education, income martial status and the fertility of women. In 1950 they wanted to know about your plumbing.

This year they're going to find out whether you're really keeping up with the Joneses. A sample of the population will be asked whether they own a washing machine, a clothes dryer, a food freezer and air conditioning . . . and the number of cars in the family garage.

Motorists' Tollway Questions Answered

During the past year, Chicago area motorists have become more and more familiar with the Illinois Tollway.

This greater familiarity has increased the use of the Tollway and its value to motorists according to Charles M. Burgess, chairman of the Illinois State Toll Highway Commission, but tollway patrons still have a lot of questions to ask, he says.

SOME OF the questions most often asked of toll collectors and Commission employees are:

"Why do you have six toll barriers on the Tri-State Tollway from Indiana to Wisconsin? Why not use a ticket system where you get a ticket when you enter and pay when you leave the Tollway?"

"My exit is just a few blocks beyond the toll plaza. Why do I pay 30 cents to travel these few blocks?"

"Why do we pay taxes to build highways and then have to pay tolls, too?"

"When will there be a connection with the Indiana Toll Road?"

"Why don't you have more interchanges?" etc.

"The questions are simple and easy," Burgess says. "It's the answers that get somewhat involved in explanation. Taking them one at a time, however, here are the answers:

Q. WHY not use a ticket system on Tri-State Tollway?

A. Briefly, it would be inefficient and costly to man all of the exits and entrances. Unlike some of the other turnpikes, the Illinois Tollway has more frequent entrances and exits to accommodate a wide variety of trafic patterns — through traffic, interurban traffic, and commuter traffic. The "barrier" type of collection, as used on the Garden State Parkway in New Jersey, is faster and more efficient for the traffic volumes handled by the Tri-State Tollway. A ticket type system is used, however, on the Northwest Tollway from Elgin to South Beloit where the nature of the traffic is entirely different.

Q. Since my exit is just a short ways beyond the toll plaza, why do you charge me 30 cents to travel a few blocks?

A. Actually, you're paying for distance traveled before you reach the toll plaza as well as for distance traveled afterwards. Toll plazas, generally, are located in what approximates the middle of prevailing traffic patterns. It's somewhat similar to fares charged on some bus systems where one patron uses the facility for a short trip and another one uses it for a longer trip yet both pay the same fare.

Q. WHY do we pay taxes to build highways and then have to pay tolls, too?

A. Toll highways are a means of providing badly-needed facilities quickly in areas where they are needed. The Ilinois Tollway cost a Galley 2 Tollway total of $441,279,000 all of which came from the sale of revenue bonds. No tax money is involved. Tolls paid by users go to operate and maintain the road and retire the bond obligations. When the bonds are paid off, the tollway reverts to the state and becomes a free highway. . . The Illinois Tollway bonds are scheduled to be retired over a 40-year period.

Q. When will there be a connection iwth the Indiana Toll Road?

A. Since this connection will have to be built entirely within the boundaries of Indiana, we can only urge that it be built as quickly as possible. It is my understanding that the Indiana State Highway department, and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads are working together and making progress. We are hopeful that the connection will be built in the near future.

Q. A MOTORIST can leave the tollway at some interchanges but not enter the tollway. Why is this?

A. Generally, any place a motorist can leave the tollway he can also enter for the return trip. Thus, such exits and entrances are paired to accommodate round trip traffic. The location of these partial interchanges is based on traffic surveys which determined how the tollway could best serve the greatest volumes of traffic and, at the same time, not provide a means for traffic to use the tollway without payment of toll.

Q. What do you do when you run out of gas or have a flat tire on the tollway?

A. The tollway is patroled night and day by the tollway patrol, a special detachment of the Illinois State police. Simply pull off the concrete pavement onto the 11-foot asphalt shoulder and signal for aid by raising the hood or displaying a handerchief from the driver's window or door handle. Remain with the car. Emergency service is summoned by two-way radio by either police or other commission vehicles. Motorists, of course, may perform minor repairs such as tire changing themselves, if they prefer. Costs for emergency service calls are established by the commission and are $3 for calls within five miles of an oasis; $4 for calls from five to 10 miles; and $5 for calls over 10 miles. Any product or service provided is additional. A motorist may request service by the Chicago Motor club — if he is a member. (A13

Reveal Plans for '60 Scout-O-Rama Project

The 1960 Northwest Suburban Council's Scout-O-Rama will be staged on Friday evening, 7:30 to 10 p.m. April 22; Saturday afternoon, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. April 23; and Saturday evening, 7:30 to 10 p.m. April 23 at O'Hare field, Mannheim and Higgins rds., Park Ridge.

On Monday evening, Feb. 29, 16,000 Cub Scout, Boy Scout, Explorer, and Adult Leader ticket salesmen will begin the "Big Show" ticket sales campaign throughout the Northwest Suburban area. General admission tickets will be sold for 50 cents each. All Scout units participating in this ticket sales program will benefit directly from the ticket sales campaign through the receipt of a generous commission which will be afforded the Scout units for all tickets sold.

THE STAGING facility to be used is the largest wooden structure of its type any place in the world and engrosses approximately 77 acres under roof. One-tenth of the total area will be used for staging and production purposes for the 1960 Scout-O-Rama.

The 1960 Scout-O-Rama will involve 350 — 10'x10' and in some cases 10'x20' and 10'x 30' booth areas which will house 300 individual Cub packs, Boy Scout troops and Explorer posts.

Besides the booth exhibition by the individual Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers a continuous stage show, on a stage platform 30'x40' will be offered on a continuous basis throughout the three performances. This stage show will feature Scouts and Explorers in a variety of Indian dances and ageantry; and a group of Scouts from Des Plaines who have been trained in the tribal customs and dancing of the Samoan Island grouping.

Another spectacular and additional feature will be staged twice during each of the three performances; that being a Scout and Explorer Water show. Arrangements have been made for the use of a large Esther Williams 32 feet long by 20 feet wide swimming pool, which will be assembled and filled with the required 28,000 gallons of water, for use during the 1960 Scout-O-Rama.

A specialized group of Explorers presently is being trained and instructed in the modern techniques of skin diving and will be one of the highlight features, with full equipment, of the water show.

Small boat and craft manipulation and safety will be a further exhibition in the pool area, as will be demonstration teams of Scouts and Explorers who will exhibit the Scout techniques of swimming and life saving methods.

THE PORTION of the huge T-6 building at O'Hare field, the former Douglas assembly plant, will be transformed into a beautifully decorated and lighted show place for the 85,000 to 90,000 persons who are expected to attend this Scout spectacular.

The cast of performers throughout the three performances is expected to reach 14,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Explorers and their Adult Leaders. It is anticipated that twelve to fifteen thousand automobiles will be needed to be parked in the area surrounding the huge T-6 building.

The Northwest Suburban Council is an active, participating member of the Des Plaines, Schiller Park and Suburban Community chest; the Combined Chest and Council of Niles Township, the United Fund of Park Ridge, Inc., and the Barrington United Drive. (B-8

Rosenthal advised that Citizens is currently negotiating for the acquisition of several additional utilities in the Chicago suburban area.

The purchase of the stock of Manor Service company marks Citizens' eighth acquisition in the Chicago suburban area since it began operations in Illinois in June, 1956. (B8

Camp Fire Fathers Seek $4000 in Sunday Appeal

Final details for the Arlington Heights Camp Fire Girls' door-to-door fund drive to be held this Sunday afternoon have been completed according to Ray W. Thompson, 514 S. Dryden, Wampum Round-up chairman.

Area captains Bruce Graham, 611 Mayfair rd., southeast; Edward Lorenz, 606 S. Highland, southwest; John Myers, 4 N. Yale, Westgate; Glen Rubenking, 948 N. Fernandez, northwest; and J. Darrill Connelly, 505 N. Dunton, northeast have enlisted the aid of Camp Fire and Blue Bird fathers and friends in their areas to raise the campaign goal of $4,000.

Block workers will be covering the village, ringing door bells, and asking their neighbors to give to this cause in the hope of bringing the finest type of programming and necessary camping facilities and equipment to the more than 350 Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds of the community.

THE CAMP Fire program was organized in Arlington Heights a little more than five years ago with a group of six Blue Birds and an adult leader. Currently there are seven groups of Camp Fire Girls and 22 groups of Blue Birds in the district.

Total membership, including leaders, sponsors and committee workers, is now close to 500. With the tremendous influx in suburbia population and the increasing girl membership, figures are expected to exceed 1,000 within a few years.

Window displays, explaining the Camp Fire and Blue Bird programs and exhibiting group handicraft projects, have been set up in various stores throughout the village.

Today more than 10,000 Chicago area girls of all races and religions are in the Camp Fire Girl program. The program, based on the seven crafts and featuring Indian lore as its symbolism, provides them with experience in homemaking, outdoor skills, creative arts, frontiers of physical science, sports and games, business, and citizenship.

CAMP FIRE serves three age groups, two of which are represented in Arlington Heights: Blue Birds, the junior program, is for girls 7 through 9 years of age and Camp Fire, the intermediate program, is open to girls ten years of age through junior high school age. Membership in Horizon clubs is available to teenage girls from ninth grade through high school.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the Camp Fire Girls program in the United States. Local celebration of the golden jubilee will begin with a special Founder's Day program March 17. Birthday Sunday, March 20, will find Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds attending church services to hear their pastors deliver sermons in observance of Camp Fire Girls birthday week, March 20-26.

Suburban Couple Donate Acreage

H. Wilbert Norton, of Palatine, president of Trinity college and Theological seminary, has announced a gift of 30 acres for a new campus from Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Welch of Bannockburn.

This announcement was made by Norton, who resides at 256 S. Elm st., at a banquet given in the honor of the Welches at the Edgewater Beach hotel January 28.

AT THE dinner, attended by 60 guests, Norton also revealed that the sponsor of Trinity, the Evangelical Free church of America, has purchased additional property on the Tri-State tollway and Half-Day rd. at Bannockburn for use in the $1,700,000 campus development program under study for the past three years.

"The development of the four year liberal arts and teacher education program at Trinity, founded in 1897, as well as the growth of the three year post-college theological program has led us to anticipate an enrollment of 600 students by 1970," noted Norton.

HE ALSO declared that accommodating the present enrollment of over 300 students as well as planning adequate campus expansion at the present site at Berteau and Hermitage ave. have presented some very difficult problems leading to the decision to seek a new campus site.

The final decision on the relocation of Trinity will be made at the 76th annual conference of the denomination meeting next June at the Green Lake assembly in Wisconsin.

Authorization to acquire a suitable campus site was given by the annual conference meeting in Denver in June, 1959. (B8

World Problems of Interest To Homemakers: Home Bur.

Despite inclement weather many members and guests attended the January 27 meeting of the Elk Grove Home Bureau at the home of Mrs. Don Kastning to hear Mrs. Claradehl Upham discuss "World Problems of Interest to Homemakers." Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Bessie DePalma, Mrs. Renate Freise, Mrs. Lorraine Kamin and Mrs. Claire Schaver.

A brief resume of the annual Cook County Home Bureau meeting held in the Merchants and Manufacturers club, Chicago, was given by Mrs. Hilmer Mahler, who with four other members of the unit, Mrs. Edwin Deeke, Mrs. Donald Schreiver, Mrs. Ernest Brezinski and Mrs. Noel Foss attended the meeting.

Mrs. Upham remarked that next year's meeting may be held at a more convenient location, probably in a nearby suburban town, an incentive for more members to attend the meeting.

MEMBERS were sorry to hear of Mrs. John Oltrogge's confinment in Northwest Community hospital.

Mrs. Upham extended an invitation to Home. Beureau members to attend the spring festival at the University of Illinois, March 31, April 1 and 2. The festival formerly was known as the Town and Country Fair.

A busy beehive craft session will be held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Heinkel Wednesday, Feb. 10. Those attending will bring their own lunch and coffee will be provided.

The February 24 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Wagner, Higgins rd.

Farmer Purchasing Power Hits 19-Year Low Point

The farmers' purchasing power is now the lowest in 19 years as farm net income dropped 15 per cent in 1959 from its 1958 figure, warned Dr. George W. Luke, chairman of Rutgers agricultural economics department.

Speaking recently before more than 100 farm leaders and spokesmen at a Farm Policy forum at the Rutgers college of Agriculture, New Brunswick, announced that farm prices will skid even lower unless all food industry people sit down with producers for a look into farm prices.

HE TOLD THE farm leaders that chain stores, and their executives, as well as buyers, spokesmen for processors, canneries and others should seriously get together with farmers and reexamine the situation.

"Farmers can't go it alone," he said. "We need above all the cooperation of all within the food industry to get better incomes.

"Perhaps the most logical approach to our agricultural problem, if farmers are to maintain any measure of control over it, is to get together everybody in the food industry and discuss the problems that confront us in the future.

"The pass-it-back-to-the-farmer attitude," he pointed out, "has prevailed too long. Sellers have found it easier to push back added costs on to the farmers rather than pushing them ahead to the consumer."

HE ADDED that if the industry would not consider the farmers' plight in terms of price and income, "then danger signals may very well lie ahead.

"If we do not do this, an agricultural program may develop which not only rigidly controls the farmer, but there may be strict controls on the final sellers of that particular product, so that no one, in the food industry in the future will be exempt from controls by government.

Dr. Luke predicted that: "Farm policies which cannot get at price and income matters within agriculture, which really are the ultimate indicators of the well-being of farm people, will not be accepted by agricultural groups in the next decade. Economic progress at the expense of exploitation of American farmers is inconsistent with equality and justice within that economic system."

Hospital Enjoys Brief 'Breather'

The Northwest Community hospital population went way down last week much to the relief of harried doctors and hospital staff. Only nine babies, including five premature births who have been in the hospital for some time, were in the maternity ward.

"Our o. b. men report there are 25 babies overdue in the area, so the hospital is girding itself for that explosion," said hospital administrator Alan Campbell.

WITHOUT the onslaught, however, the hospital was resting quietly taking care of many routine emergencies.

Bruce Johnson, 18, of 606 S. Evergreen, Arlington Heights, fell off a scaffold on a construction project, Wednesday, and injured his wrist.

Gary Vandervoort, 14, of 408 S. Mawata, Mt. Prospect, was knocked unconscious during a basketball game at Prospect high school gym, Wednesday. He was admitted to the hospital for observation, but is doing well.

SEVERAL accidents involving more than one person, sent their victims for hospital care. Friday, Francis Leach, 57, of 1028 Hamlin, Park Ridge, hit a stoplight island at Central and Rand rds. She broke three ribs, and had a cut in her head stitched up. Grace Leach sprained her ankle in the same accident.

Changing a flat tire proved unlucky for George Vavalidis, 47, of 707 Center st., Des Plaines. While stopped at rt. 58 and Plum Grove rd., a car hit his car from behind. He suffered scart she;—on suffered scratches; — no broken bones. His wife, Stavrianne, 46, Elmer Fritz, Palatie, and Kenneth Zaboth, 14, Palatine, all suffered bumps. Kenneth also had cuts on his face.

Two injured in a Deer Grove sledding accident are Kevin Hewitt, 4, of 1304 Joan dr., and Michael Bousbon, 5, of 1337 Joan Dr., Palatine. Both were admitted to the hospital Sunday, for observation, but reported doing fine, Monday.

Indian Educator Raps U. S. Movies, Books

"Movies and empty literature misrepresent the United States," an Indian educator told Arlington Heights Rotarians last week.

Garrishanker Prabhasshansker Bhatt, principal of a high school in Baroda, India, said that his study of the American educational system in Arlington Heights and other communities had dispelled misconceptions of America which he and other Indians had gleaned from American films and popular books and magazines.

BHATT LISTED six aspects of American life and culture which were most apparent to him as new impressions of the United States:

(1) Americans have an informal way of life. They are neither stiff nor unfriendly.

(2) Americans are accommodating. They try to be helpful.

(3) Americans are free. They are able to talk frankly.

(4) Americans lack spiritualism. They are too concerned about material things and always seem to be moving toward materialistic goals.

(5) Americans are pragmatic. They learn from experiences.

(6) Americans have an interest in public education. They are doing much to further the schools.

BHATT contrasted some of these aspects with those in India. He told the Rotarians that schools were set up by the British to produce clerks. Only since 1947 has India tried to educate for her own welfare, said Bhatt.

He proudly displayed the Indian flag, a tri-color representing martyrdom (Gandhi's non-violence), sanctity of art, and world peace.

The speaker was introduced by Superintendent H. L. Slichenmyer of high school district 214, whose district was picked as one of six in the state to participate in the study program under the auspices of the International Teacher Development Program. (B8

NOTED EDUCATOR from India G. P. Bhatt explains the significance of colors of the flag of India to Arlington high school officials, superintendent H. L. Slichenmeyer and business manager John Schaff. Mr. Bhatt had just spoken to Arlington Heights Rotary club, of which Mr. Schaff is president.

Scouts Exhibit Emergency Aid

Two hundred eighty Scouts met at the Miner Street school gymnasium on January 29 to demonstrate their first aid skill. Thirty-five patrols participated, exhibiting skill in treating scalds, broken bones, severe bleeding, and shock.

Ralph Elwart, 819 N. Pine, Arlington Heights, an assistant district commissioner of Blackhawk district, served as chairman of the first aid meet. He was assisted by Don Traver, district vice-chariman, of 1666 Kensington, Arlington Heights, who was in charge of referees.

George Moudry, 207 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights, was in charge of judges. Douglas Gomm, 514 N. Emerson, Mt. Prospect, served as chief counter and Andy Duros, 15 Glenbrook, Prospect Heights, served as chief doctor. Mr. Gomm is an assistant district commissioner and Mr. Duros is a representative of the Prospect Heights Woman's club.

DISTRICT Commissioner Art Leu, 1320 Dorothy, Palatine, was announcer for the four problems the boys worked on. Two Air Force nurses assisted in the contest by serving as doctors. They were Captains Harriet Blain and Trudy Ruehrdanz, USAF. Ribbons were presented to all of the patrols and medals to the top patrol by Frank B. Newton, 105 W. Sunset rd., Mt. Prospect, who is the Northwest Suburban Council Scout executive and Ralph Elwart, first aid meet chairman.

Top honors were taken by two Patrols from Troop 51 sponsored by St. Mark's Lutheran church of Mt. Prospect. The troop is headed by acting Scoutmaster A. P. Dietsche, 101 W. Council tr., Mt. Prospect.

Veteran volunteer scouters believe this is the 25th annual First Aid Meet, and would be the Silver Jubilee First Aid Meet during the Golden Jubilee Year of the Boy Scouts of America as an Organization. Scouts have served more than 33 million members since being founded in 1910.

Notre Dame Band Schedules Concert

The 70 piece concert band of Notre Dame high school will present its fourth annual winter concert Sunday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. in the school gym, 7655 Dempster st., Niles.

Rev. George Wiskirchen is the band director.

BAND MEMBERS include Robert Wold, 109 Ridge, Prospect Heights; Mt. Prospect residents David and Paul Schlaver, 400 I-oka; Dan Ekkebus, 419 S. Willie; Ken Odmark, I-Oka; and Arlington Heights residents Pat O'Hagen, 408 N. Haddon; William Mann, 304 E. Fairview; and Randall Fleishauer, 335 S. Lincoln.

A wide variety of music, including the Finale from Dvorak's New World Symphony and the Overture to Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, will be featured.

Also in the classical vein, selections from Vaughn William's Folk Song Suite, Tchaikovsky, and Von Suppe have been prepared.

A NUMBER by the award winning saxophone ensemble and a clarinet solo by Dan Ekkebus will round out the program.

Marches, lighter selections, and novelties will also be scattered throughout the evening. For the first time, lighting effects have been arranged to provide a visual background to the music.

Tickets will be available at the door or from band members. (B8

"SUCCESS DEPENDS ON PREVIOUS PREPARATION"

To some, success means much money or outstanding accomplishment. To others achieving contentment is sufficient.

One thing is certain. It is difficult to enjoy any success without a healthy body. Just as you study to prepare your mind for success, you can also prepare your body. The first step is to visit your physician for a health checkup. Then, place the future health of your body in his care. Follow his suggestions for diet or weight control. Take the sustaining or corrective medicines he may prescribe. You can prepare now for future better health.

Adult Classes Still Taking Registrations

Registrations are still being accepted at the adult education division at Arlington High school for some classes in the Spring term which have later opening dates.

A few classes have openings for additional students although they have had one session. The office at the school is open from 8 to 4:30 p.m. daily, as well as after 7 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, for those interested in registering.

The World Affairs course, a discussion group using current periodicals, films and filmstrips as the background for informal review of contemporary news and the evaluation of various news sources, will have its first session on Wednesday, Feb. 10 at Arlington High school. "Propaganda Techniques, Their Recognition and Their Uses, "will be the subject for part of the discussion at the first meeting, says Leotta Hampton, instructor.

THE BOOKKEEPING class welcomes additional registrants for the Wednesday evening sessions, planned to offer instruction and individual help in elementary bookkeeping for the office employee interested in up-grading his skills, the owner or manager of a small business who needs assistance in setting up effective record systems, the officer in club of organization responsible for financial records. Frank Zupan, CPA, is instructor for the class which meets at 7:30 p.m.

J. R. Walsh is instructor for the new class, "Insuring the Family," which considers the types of insurance coverages and merits and disadvantages of different plans. The course is intended as a comprehensive review of types of insurance, consideration of family needs, and comparisons of various plans, but does not include specific recommendations.

NEWLY - ELECTED officers in community groups are reminded of the opportunity to review effective methods for conducting meetings through the course in parliamentary procedure which is scheduled for its first session on February 24. Don Thomas, speech instructor and parliamentarian, will conduct the six weeks' course at Arlington High school on Wednesday evenings.

Because of the popularity of the courses in beginning typing, an additional class was added to the schedule. Richard Seibel will be instructing the beginners' class on Tuesday evenings at Arlington High school. Since this class began one week later than the originally scheduled class, it is still possible to enroll for the remaining sessions.

THE U. S. COAST Guard Auxiliary is cooperating with the local adult education office in offering a course in safe boating rules and procedures for operators of power and sail craft. The group meets on Monday evenings, for six weeks.

Among other courses for which registrations will be accepted are: the class in Dance and Figure Control, the Thursday section of the Indoor Golf for women, the Monday night Men's Physical Recreation class, all meeting at Prospect High school, and the Practical Gardening course on Wednesday evenings at Arlington High school. Programs on Italy, Flower Arranging for Woman's Club

Two programs, one on Italy and one on flower arranging, have been planned for next week for members of Arlington Heights Woman's club.

A program on Italy, presented by two of the club's members, will highlight the February 8 meeting of the club's international relations study group. The meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. C. H. Rosene, 404 E. Fairview, with Mrs. Richard R. Fenner and Mrs. Robert Y. Paddock as co-hostesses.

Speakers will be Mrs. Stephen Jurco, who will speak on Italy, and Mrs. Douglas Schinke, who will read humorous poems.

Mrs. Jurco was born in Italy and lived there until the age of 5, when she came to the United States. She returned to Italy at the age of 8 and attended school there for two years, when she again came to the United States. Although she has made her home here since then, she has returned to Italy frequently and is well acquainted with the country.

MRS. SCHINKE does dramatic readings, monologues and impersonations and is a member of the Village Theatre and Palatine Players. She attended Alabama college and George Washington university. Titles of the poems she will read are "Da Wheestlin' Barber," "Da Leetla Boy" and "Two 'Mericana Men."

Reservations for this meeting can be made by calling the study group chairman, Mrs. Carl Bowen, CLearbrook 3-5093.

"YOU, TOO, CAN Arrange Flowers" will be the subject that Mrs. Haberkamp of Haberkamp Flowers, Mt. Prospect, will give as guest speaker to the American home and conservation and garden study groups of the club February 10. For this meeting, members will meet at 1:30 p.m. in Pioneer Park field house with members of both committees as co-hostesses.

Eastwood Events

Last Saturday evening, Jan. 30, at a 7 o'clock ceremony in the Presbyterian church, Miss Sandra Lindahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lindahl, 207 N. Beverley ln., became the bride of Robert Sampson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Sampson of 1013 Oakton st. After the church services, at which Rev. Stumpf officiated, a buffet supper for 150 guests was served at the Mt. Prospect Country club. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Arlington high school. At the present time Mr. Sampson is attending the Illinois School of Technology and Sandra is employed at Universal Oil Products in Des Plaines.

The successful Mothers March of Dimes last Thursday night in the Eastwood section was under the direction of Mrs. Jack Anderson, 219 N. Lincoln lane. Block captains who canvassed the neighborhood for contributions were Mrs. J. Gleeson, Mrs. Sam Cullison, Mrs. Don Dereby, Mrs. Richard Evans, Mrs. William Stueber, Mrs. James Neeley, Mrs. George Brinke, Mrs. James Monahan and Dawne Anderson.

MR. AND MRS. Fred Snell and their daughter, Gail, have returned to their home at 710 N. Dryden ave. after a 3½-week stay at the home of Mr. Snell's parents in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mrs. Snell and Gail flew down with Mrs. Fred Snell Sr., who had been visiting up north since Christmas time, while Mr. Snell made the trip by car. The usual vacation pleasures were foregone on this trip as Mr. Snell's father is ill and is in a hospital.

The Snell's son, Gary, who is a freshman at Illinois, is home this week enjoying a mid-semester holiday.

Wednesday night Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vlach, 725 N. Beverley ave., attended the formal retirement party at the Chicago Athletic club for Myron H. Fox, retiring president of Bell Savings and Loan co. Mrs. Vlach is secretary to Mr. Fox who has been with Bell Savings since its beginning in 1925. For the past five years Mr. Fox has been president and will now be chairman of the board. The party was attended by 75 guests including officers, directors and their wives.

The 13th birthday of Brian Anderson, which was January 28, was celebrated on Sunday afternoon. A tobogganing party was planned, but due to the springlike weather, a trip to the movies was the entertainment of the day. After the show the boys came back to the Anderson home at 219 N. Lincoln lane for a barbecue and birthday cake supper. Brian's guests were George Brinke, Joey Heitz, Dickie Evans, Ioen McKay, Richard Sauter, Peery Duderstadt, and his two cousins from Park Ridge.

AN ALL-BLUE shower was held at the home of Mrs. Carl Schulze, 732 N. Hickory ave., last Thursday evening. The party was given for Mrs. Lloyd Snell and her new son, Bradley, of Rolling Meadows. Guests were all attired in blue. Gift wrappings, candles, and even the cups and plates all carried out the blue motif.

On January 19 Cindy Lee Showers celebrated her third birthday at a family party, which was also honoring her daddy's January 3rd birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Showers, along with Cindy Lee and year-old Karen Sue, moved into the home at 201 N. Dryden recently from Des Moines, Iowa. (A

A message from George Harris, Your Pharmacist

HOW MUCH PROFIT DO YOU THINK a pharmacy earns on each sale? Very few people realize how reasonable drug store service really is.

AUTHENTIC STATISTICS REVEAL

1. The actual wholesale cost to the pharmacy, of everything you get from us, averages 65.4c of every dollar you spend. This leaves 34.6c for all expenses and profits.
2. Salaries or wages in the average pharmacy are 19.2 cents per dollar of sales. This leaves 15.4c.
3. Other expenses like rent, heat, insurance, telephone, advertising, repairs, license fees, electricty, deliveries and state taxes amount to 11.4c of every sales dollar.

THIS LEAVES 3.7c NET PROFIT.

Which means that, if the average pharmacy were to reduce all prices only 4c on each dollar, it would lose money.

ARE WE COMPLAINING?

Of course not. We try to achieve this national average to be competitive and depend on increasing volume for satisfactory total profit.

If something is sold below its cost plus overhead expense, then other articles must be excessively priced. Personally, we prefer to make a fair profit on each sale, instead of raising prices on unfamiliar items.

Red Cross Instructs 1445 in Water Safety

In Arlington Heights, Palatine, Wheeling, and Mt. Prospect, during the past fiscal year 1,445 people learned free Red Cross instruction in swimming and life saving.

The aim of the Red Cross water safety program is to make every citizen a swimmer and every swimmer a life saver. With this goal in mind, 72,763 Chicago area people were trained in water safety courses.

THOMAS THORNTON, park district superintendent and volunteer Red Cross water safety representative for Arlington Heights, says that 346 people in the community completed courses which ranged all the way from beginning swimmer to water safety instructor.

Active volunteer water safety instructors in the community include: Stanley G. Norman, 634 S. Dryden ave.; Janis M. Olson, 2401 Eastman st.; Warren R. Phillips, 538 S. Pine st.; Judith A. Peterson, 433 S. Pine st.; Stuart R. Wright, 1304 N. Dunton ave.

Also Charles Aldrich, 151 S. Douglas; Maureen Barrett, 750 S. Belmont lane; Joel W. Carter, superintendent of recreation for Arlington Heights park district; Doris Higby, 405 S. Dunton; Tom Ocasek, 409 Banbury rd.; Kenneth W. Hadland, 702 E. Park st.; Dorothy C. Hull, 911 N. Highland ave.; Judy Keppam, 32 S. Mitchell ave.; Robert Lockwood, 312 S. Derbyshire ave.; Ayleen Malburg, 1502 Kensington rd.; and Kenneth Bode, 126 S. Mitchell ave.

IN PALATINE, 256 people completed water safety courses reports Richard Welty, 529 E. Chicago ave., community water safety representative.

Welty says that the following instructors from Palatine have volunteered their time and talent: Norman K. Stenzel, 135 Warren ave.; Mrs. Verna D. Roberts, 308 W. Wilson ave.; Robert C. Elms, 25 N. Linden ave.; Miss Joanne C. Austin, 752 W. Baldwin rd.; Righter S. Farris, 147 N. Northwest hwy.; John F. Hogan, 32 S. Forest ave.; Donald F. Nie, 2107 Theda lane; and Mrs. Patricia Schaff, 203 S. Greenwood ave.

Eighty-nine Wheeling residents were certificated in water safety courses reports Richard F. Ault, 438 S. Wolf rd., volunteer Red Cross water safety representative for the community.

Mt. Prospect — with one of the outstanding Red Cross water safety programs in the Chicago area — had a total of 754 people who completed classes.

A MAJORITY of the 13 classes were held at the Lions Memorial Park pool, Lincoln and Maple streets, according to Tom Cooper, 502 Memory lane, water safety representative for Mt. Prospect.

Those volunteer instructors from Mt. Prospect who taught the classes are: William Oldaker, 405 S. Can-Dota; Richard C. Bader, 108 S. Edward st.; Stuart C. Meyers, 217 S. Willie ave.; James A. Conroy, 222 S. Louis ave.; William J. Roosen, 314 N. Elmhurst ave.; and Donald L. Averill, 708 S. Nawata ave.

Also MacDonald Bryan, 312 Oak ave.; Miss Corinne Clark, 712 N. Elmhurst; Mrs. Emily Kirchhoff, 118 S. Owen st.; Robert J. Mors, 904 Meyer rd.; Gordon Owens, 201 S. George st.; and Thomas Rezner, 603 S. School st.

"The water safety program is just one of the services provided by the Chicago Red Cross to people in this area," says Duncan F. Vanderlip, 8805 Davis st.; Des Plaines, regional chairman of the 1960 Red Cross fund campaign in north Cook county.

"A service such as this conveys the real meaning of 'Good things happen when you give,' the theme of this year's campaign. And the other services — which contribute to the welfare of every family, here and across the country — are carried on day in and day out.

"Two Red Cross services—assistance to the armed forces and aid to disaster victims — are assigned to the organizations by congress. Other educational services besides water safety include first aid, home nursing, Junior Red Cross, and college activities," Vanderlip concluded.

A Message from Your Walgreen Pharmacist:

INFLUENZA — Asian or other

- Influenza (Flu) is caused by a virus, and it is an infectious disease. If you have flu symptoms — headache, fever, chills, cough, sore throat, body aches—do 3 things:

1. Call Your Doctor. 2. Go to Bed.
3. Protect Others. (Avoid unnecessary contact, and cover coughs since nose and mouth fluids harbor the virus.)

- Note: Once you have Influenza, it is too late for inoculation with vaccine. Vaccine is a preventive, not a cure. Check your Doctor about the advisability of Flu vaccine for you or your family.

Important Advice
A funeral service is purchased only once every 14 years by the average family. Our responsibility is to advise prudence in this important financial decision often made in times of strain and confusion.

Plan Mardi Gras and Hawaiian Parties at Methodist Church

Two festive parties have been planned for February by groups of the First Methodist Church of Arlington Heights. The first will be a gala Mardi Gras party on two nights, February 11 and 12, presented by the Tri S club, and the second will be February 19, when members of the church's men's club will host and toast their wives with a special Hawaiian program. Both affairs will be held in the church.

At the Tri S party, food, fun and entertainment will start flowing each evening about 6:30 p.m. with enough to keep even a very large crowd going for at least four hours, according to the committee in charge of preparations.

INCLUDED TO point up the frolicsome theme will be masks that will be presented each guest upon arrival, a variety of games, refreshments, a professional magician and, in true Mardi Gras tradition, a king and queen will be crowned both evenings.

"Tri S" leaders are hoping for a large turnout since proceeds are to be set aside for the purchase of sound equipment for the church's new sanctuary now nearing completion at 1903 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

IN OBSERVING the proximity of Valentine's day and the romantic sentiment attached, February 19 will be "A Night In Hawaii" with all the trimmings and authentic atmosphere that might be found on a peaceful island paradise.

Genuine cantonese food will be prepared by a professional chef from the orient and there will be "live" Hawaiian music by real musicians with backgrounds from the islands. This will be set in a theme of real palm trees and other south seas growths.

Lady guests will receive orchid corsages freshly shipped from Hawaii and the men, real leis from the well-known vacation spot in the Pacific. (AM

Wedgewood Terrace

The Triangle club will have the February meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Burton Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 8:30 p.m.

Best wishes and good luck are wished for the William Sevilla family, who left Wedgewood Saturday to move into a new home in Palatine.

Attending the potluck supper and square dance at St. Alphonsus church Sunday evening were the Joe Heckenbacks, James Salisburys, Adam Kwiecinskis, Art Haapojas and the Robert Schafers.

MR. and Mrs. John Czerechowicz attended a party Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Kornack.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde House enjoyed a ride on the tollway to visit Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Sabatino in Scottsdale.

Scarsdale Estates Dance Is Planned

John Carnell, newly reelected president of the Scarsdale Estates association, held a board of directors meeting in his home at 735 S. Burton pl. January 24. Directors present were: Lillian Brost, Ruth Pailey, Marge Langos, Jim Howe, Charles Geane, Leroy Rothenberger, Chick Fry, Bob Platt, and Frank Stratman.

"It was an honor to be reelected president of SEA," Carnell said, "but it was possible to accept only after realling the excellent cooperation rendered by the committee chairmen last year."

He then appointed Barbara Fry, hospitality chairman; Ruth Pailey, social; Jim Howe, mosquito and tree spraying; Charles Geane, zoning and drainage; Bob Platt, roads, lights, and grasscutting; Chick Fry, legal; and Frank Stratman, United Fund, membership and publicity.

WHILE GASLIGHTS were originally considered for the projected lighting of Scarsdale Estates, there was discussion on the advantages of electricity. Quotations are being submitted on both bases to enable Bob Platt's committee to make a recommendation.

"The orchestra is committed and Rolling Greens country club has agreed on Saturday, April 23," Ruth Pailey, social chairman, said in reporting on the annual SEA dance. Mrs. Pailey also reported that plans are being discussed for additional entertainment for this April 23 Dance. (A

Toastmaster Club Talks Of Travel

By means of travel folders, the Arlington Heights Toastmasters club visited far places at their meeting on Wednesday, January 27. Each member brought a descriptive folder of the place he would like to visit and told why he wanted to go there.

Toastmaster for the evening, Bob Myslis, introduced speeches by Ed Lauing, Werner Baule, Ed Janos, Frank Callahan and Harold Fisher. Honors went to Ed Janos who was chosen best speaker of the evening, and to Bill Nelson for the best response to his Table Topic. Guests were Edward Dunn and Thomas Baranski.

The Toastmasters' meeting on February 10 is to be a pot luck supper to which the wives are invited. The program will be the club speech contest, the winner of which will represent the club in the area contest on March 12. For further information regarding Arlington Heights Toastmasters club, call Bob Mongrain at Cl 5-3252. (A

The prescription your doctor writes may call for numerous ingredients.
These must be compounded precisely — measured, weighed, powdered, sometimes heated, sometimes chilled and ultimately blended into a medicine.
Your pharmacist must be exactly right with his grams, cubic centimeters, percentages and other scientific guideposts.

A Message from J. T. Keefer, "Your Pharmacist"
HOW MUCH PROFIT DO YOU THINK a pharmacy earns on each sale? Very few people realize how reasonable drug store service really is.
AUTHENTIC STATISTICS REVEAL
1. The actual wholesale cost to the pharmacy, of everything you get from us averages 65.4c of every dollar you spend. This leaves 34.6c for all expenses and profits.
2. Salaries or wages in the average pharmacy are 19.2 cents per dollar of sales. This leaves 15.4c.
3. Other expenses like rent, heat, insurance, telephone, advertising, repairs, license fees, electricity, deliveries and state taxes amount to 11.4c of every sales dollar.
THIS LEAVES 3.7c NET PROFIT.
Which means that, if the average pharmacy were to reduce all prices only 4c on each dollar, it would lose money.
ARE WE COMPLAINING?
Of course not. We try to achieve this national average to be competitive and depend on increasing volume for satisfactory total profit.
If something is sold below its cost plus overhead expense, then other articles must be excessively priced. Personally, we prefer to make a fair profit on each sale, instead of raising prices on unfamiliar items.

1960 Budget Accepted at Ann'l Meeting of Our Saviour Church

At the annual meeting of Our Saviour Lutheran church, Arlington Heights, held January 24, a 1960 budget of $31,420 was accepted by the congregation for operating expenses and benevolences.

Biggest new item in the budget for the new year will be a music director, to be selected to supervise and expand the existing music program of the church. At the meeting presidents of the church's auxiliary organizations presented their reports for 1959 and Pastor John P. Petersen reported that as of Decemmber 31, 1959 Our Saviour's had a baptismal membership of 844 members and a confirmed membership of 467.

CHURCH COUNCILMEN for 1960 were elected. Those re-elected were Harry Wickstrom, Joseph Reinhardt, Robert McReynolds. Earl Snodgrass, Ken Machacek, Daniel Anderson and Russell Larson. Those completing terms are Robert Wallace, Wendell Swenson, Robert Hult and Gust Hermanson.

Newly-elected councilman is John Gessert; retiring councilman is Walt Krueger, who has served for three years. The councilmen elected their officers for 1960: Pastor John P. Petersen, president; Ken Machacek, vice president; Harry Wickstrom, financial secretary; Gust Hermanson, treasurer; and Robert McReynolds, secretary. The church council is the governing body of each individual United Lutheran church.

AT THE JANUARY Circle meetings of the women's guild of the church, the following circle chairmen were elected: circle I, Mrs. Byron Fanselow; circle II, Mrs. John Carson; circle III, Mrs. Melvin Weeg; circle IV; Mrs. Leonard Dicke; and circle V, Mrs. Robert Hult. (A

Suburb Building Officials Confer

A free interchange of education and experience is the object of a meeting and semi-monthly meetings in the future attended by building commissioners in Northwest Municipal conference towns.

The first meeting, held Wednesday, Jan. 27, in the Palatine village hall, was attended by Dick Decker, Palatine, Fred Hammer, Arlington Heights, Bill Lorties, Rolling Meadows, and Merritt Weideman, Des Plaines.

Main topics of discussion were the necessity of holding such meetings and concrete and prefabricated houses.

COMMISSIONERS felt it was a good thing for them to be aware of building codes in each town, but they rejected an idea of an overall building code. The necessity of knowing others' codes, Decker explained, was in the event a man should enter a town wishing to construct a certain kind of house or use techniques unfamiliar to the commissioner. If he knows what the other town has, he can make a quick call to familiarize himself with the builder's wishes. Decker compared the group of eight building commissioners to an eight-man jury to study new techniques and types of construction.

The reason concrete houses came up for discussion was that commissioners have learned of a new type of construction where houses are entirely poured — as foundations are now. Though no town in the Conference has been approached with this kind of work, men want to start studying the method now, to make accurate decisions when the time comes.

"We have no intention of outlawing prefabricated houses," Decker explained. It is his personal opinion that the prefab will dominate the industry, because today's high loan costs make it important that a house go up in a matter of weeks rather than a matter of months.

Commissioners discussed prefabs in an effort to pool their knowledge, and watch out for what Decker called "jokers" in the field.

BUILDERS of prefabricated homes have established a good reputation for themselves, today, Decker said. It is to the interest of most companies to bring a saving to buyers on their interest payments over a long time, rather than to bring savings to buyers by using slipshod construction or second-rate materials.

Building commissioners will meet again, Monday, Feb. 8, at 2 p.m., in the Palatine village hall. Robert Eppley, secretary of the Northwest Municipal conference, has been invited to attend as an observer from that organization. (AKP

Cook County Schools Get Increased State Support

George T. Wilkins, state superintendent of public instruction, reports that ook county schools in 156 districts outside Chicago will receive $23.89 million this year in state aid from the common school fund.

This compares with $13.92 million received last year, or an increase of 71.6 per cent.

IN HIS REPORT, Wilkins stated that Cook county topped the list of the state's counties in the amount of prior claims. Du Page, Madison and St. Clair counties led downstate in total prior claims, and Du Page was first with $5.75 million against a total of $3.38 million paid to 56 districts last year, an increase of 70.1 per cent.

Districts submit estimated claims for any given school year based on attendance through Oct. 31. One-half of the amount certified for each county is paid by the state auditor to county superintendents beginning in February, and that official distributes the monthly payments to districts.

Payments on the adjusted amount will then be made from August, 1960 through January, 1961.

DISTRIBUTION is made from a record-breaking $327.5 million appropriated to the common school fund by the legislature in the 1959 session. This is $100.5 million more than the $227 million earmarked for school aid in the 1957-59 biennium.

The state uses an equalization formula which increased in 1959 from $200 to $252 per pupil. A key feature of the formula was an increase of $25 in flat grants to all school districts — $22 to $47 for each grade school pupil and $7 to $32 for each high school pupil.

Claims for the entire state were estimated at $159 million in the 1959-60 school year. This is $61.56 million, or 63.1 per cent more than the $97.58 million paid out last year. (AB

Compiled by Mrs. G. Rex Volz, Phone CL 5-9078

50 YEARS AGO
Feb. 4, 1910

Editorial Musings: One of our DesPlaines readers sends us a copy of time table No. 4 which took effect Thursday, March 19, 1857, on the Southern Division of the Chicago, St Paul & Fond du Lac RR. The stations then were Chicago, Junction, Plank Road, Canfield, DesPlaines, Dunton, Palatine, Barrington, Cary, Crystal Lake, etc. There were only 17 stations between Chicago and Janesville, and only three trains daily, each way, passing DesPlaines.

Palatine and
Arlington Heights

Bowling fans were very much interested last week in the match series between the two new teams captained by C. H. Seip of Palatine, and Fred Lorenzen, Arlington Heights. Sufficient stakes to make it interesting were put up and three games played in Arlington Heights and three in Palatine. Geo. Daniels as second man in Seip's team bowled elegant games and with good support would have won the series. Lorenzen was the star man in the other team which secured the money by only 18 pins to the good. We understand that Meyer Brothers have challenged the winners.

Bensenville

Walter Dierking has the largest wood pile in the neighborhood. It will certainly last until 1950. Walter knows how to handle the ax.

Wm. Stellmann has cleared the right-of-way of the Des Plaines Valley Railway Co. formerly his land. He cut down three of the largest and oldest trees in this vicinity. He says one planted by the Indians had nearly reached the 100 year mark.

Arlington Heights

Prof. W. H. Russel, a genial scholarly gentleman, who is stopping with the Klehm's, gave the High School Literary Society, a rare treat quoting rich poetical gems from Lowell, Longfellow, Bryant, Milton, Webster, etal. giving many choice selections and describing the homes of those who lived in New England, his native place.

Arlington Gun Club have leased 2 acres of Wm. Glade on which they expect to build a clubhouse to cost about $1000. They met Thursday night to talk over plans which will command public attention. The club has entered to shoot in the Inter-State Amateur Championship contest at the Chicago Gun Club grounds Feb. 26.

The characters selected are: Karl Militzer, Gertrude Lorenzen, Adeline Muller, Dorothy Noyes, Marshall Pate, Elizabeth Banta, Robert Flentie, Clement Mors, George Adam. Martin Cordulack, Nellie Kellogg, Keith Chidley. The title of the play is "And Home Came Ted."

Summit Lawn, or the Old Mitchel place, just sold by Mr. Frank Wayman, has quite a history. Over 30 years ago, Mr. L. B. Mitchel bought a tract of land, afterwards divided into lots, and known as the Mitchel Subdivision. He built a house and moved his family into the new home, where he engaged in the poultry business. Mr. Mitchel, who had been a Chicago business man met with financial losses; his children, all excepting one son, died of diphtheria or scarlet fever. The son was in delicate health and died soon after the family came here. Mrs. Mitchel became blind, and after years of invalidism, she passed away. Mr. Mitchel, after struggling against a tide of misfortunes, where disease and disaster followed fast, and followed faster, until one day, a white haired man, he was arrested on a fake charge, taken to jail to await trial, and in less than a fortnight, grief stricken and distressed, he contracted pneumonia and died. The residence passed into the ownership of Dr. Wm. Held, who fitted it up as a sanitarium and in less than six months, it burned down. Later Mr. Wayman bought the place and built his present substantial residence. Mr. Mitchel named the place Summit Lawn, claiming it to be the highest point in the village, the summit of the Heights.

Palatine

Mrs. Caroline Louise Albertine Dahms, 84 yrs., 2 months, 7 days, died Friday, Jan. 30, 1920, at the home of her daughter Mrs. C. Hildebrandt. Two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Blum and Mrs. Bertha Hildebrandt, 4 grandchildren, 3 great grandchildren, all of Palatine, survive her. A sister and brother still live in Germany.

Mr. Conrad Pohlman died in Chicago Jan. 29, aged 74 years. He was born Jan. 31, 1845, in Hast, Amt, Rodenburg, Kurfuerstentum Hessen, Germany, emigrated to America May 1, 1865, and on Dec. 8, 1871, was married to Miss Sophia Senne. Seven children blessed this union. His wife died Jan. 10, 1904, and May 2, 1905, he married Miss Emily Nemitz; one child was born to them.

From an article regarding farm bureau activity in connection with U.S. Department of Agriculture Extension Work: "Young folks' 4-H clubs, (Head, Hand, Heart and Health) are being sponsored by the farm bureaus all over the country, and the Cook County Farm Bureau is seriously considering sponsoring these clubs among the farm boys and girls in Cook County; and at the regular monthly board meeting in Chicago next Monday they are to consider getting started on this program this year."

At a meeting Thursday of the American National Jockey club, owners of Arlington Park Race Track, the name of the club was changed to Arlington Park Jockey Club. The first name was given to the club by Mr. H. D. Brown, builder of the grandstand. Three hundred apple trees from the old Klehm nursery have been set out around the track. The wooden fence along Wilke Road will be replaced by a better-looking steel fence, the vegetation around the track to make an effective and more artistic screen as well as a background for racing. The former mile track with additional space has been made over into a steeplechase course. It has been sodded down, an immense job, the sod being transferred from adjoining fields. The jumps are mounds of earth with shrubbery planted upon them. A beautiful lake has been constructed in the infield, with appropriate planting, and the whole infield seeded. The landscape work has been done by the Arlington Landscape Company.

The following men, representing the various districts of the local Council of Northwest Suburbs, Boy Scouts of America met at Des Plaines, to discuss plans and problems for the coming year: Norman B. Thompson, Park Ridge; A. W. Cates, Park Ridge; F. O. Proctor, and T. H. Wilson, Arlington Heights; D. C. Dickinson, Chicago; P. R. Harshberger and J. K. White, Des Plaines; H. W. Flynn, Mt. Prospect; and E. L. Jenson, Palatine, and R. H. Rose, Barrington.

Flu and Throat Infections Prevalent about Arlington: If you or some member of your family is not on the sick list you are fortunate. Even business men who are presumed to be immune to all ills, are kept at home. Some of the cases are serious, while others are just plain colds. However, watch out, take all precautions to preserve your health, say the local physicians, who are putting in many long hours these days, and would be glad of some relief.

Wilson School P.T.A. will hold its first birthday party Friday Feb. 9. Mrs. Bruce Jarvis will be the speaker, as she helped with the organization of the P.T.A. here. Joe Bauer has secured Martin Tadevic, concert baritone, for the evening. Mr. Tadevic will be accompanied by Mrs. Andy Wallor.

Doris Beerman Schroeder, one of the pioneer women of this community, died last Sunday morning after reaching the age of 87 years, 6 months, 16 days. She was born in Germany in 1852, and at the age of 11 came to America, coming immediately to this area wherein she has resided ever since. She was confirmed in the Lutheran Church of Churchville in 1866, and at the age of 17, she was married to Louis Schroeder, then organist of St. Johns Evangelical church. Her husband as well as three of her seven children, preceded her in death. She is survived by her four children, Louis of San Francisco, Alec and Clarence of Chicago, and Mrs. Anna Marxen of Bartlett; there are ten grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henjes, 619 West Campbell St., celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon. Both Mr. and Mrs. Henjes were born in this vicinity. Mr. Henjes is a member of the Busse family which located in Elk Grove in 1849. He is now 76 years old and in excellent health. He has four sisters, Mrs. Alvina Rittmueller, Forest Park; Mrs. Minnie Lagerhausen Des Plaines; Mrs. Martha Dunteman, Bensenville, and Mrs. Emma Geils, Itasca. Mrs. Henjes was Ella Dunteman before her marriage, and was born in Leyden Township.

Mrs. Lena Kuebler, wife of the late I. M. Kuebler, passed away Monday, Feb. 5, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. R. Godknecht. She was born Nov. 22, 1857 in Louisville, Ky., and was married May 12, 1875. She had five children, all of whom survive her. Mrs. Kuebler arrived in Palatine 65 years ago as a bride and was proud to be numbered among the pioneer families of the community. Her parents operated Palatine's first hotel, later known as the Hunnerberg place. She often told tales of the days when wood was used for fuel for the railroad engines, whose crews often stayed over night at the Kuebler hotel when snow drifts blocked the right-of-way.

Miss Lottie E. Hart, librarian of the Palatine public library since the organization of the library 26 years ago, resigned because of ill health. She will be keenly missed by the library patrons after her many years of faithful service to the community.

Chess Club Tournament Is Planned

A tournament for the championship of the Northwest Chess club will begin at the club's next weekly meeting Friday evening, Feb. 5, in the Park Ridge YMCA, 1515 Touhy.

The club has a growing membership already representing 10 communities in the northwest area.

In the coming weeks each member, whether beginner or master, will play each member once for purposes of the tournament.

This will permit the rating of members by playing skill to facilitate a more equitable pairing of players in recreational chess.

AT ITS last meeting the club elected John Richardson, 316 Rand, Des Plaines as the club's first secretary. Tom Peterson, 102 N. Grace, Park Ridge, is president.

Anyone in the northwest area who is interested in chess, regardless of whether he has learned how to play, is invited to attend club sessions. Further information can be obtained by phoning Emery Hutchison, Ta 3-0273.

Q. I know that the bridesmaids at a wedding pay for their own outfits. But who pays for the bouquets they carry?

A. The bouquets are a part of the wedding expenses and, as such, devolve upon the bride's parents.

League Supports Water Resources

The League of Women Voters of Arlington Heights this week called for expansion of the federal water pollution program.

The League strongly endorsed the bill now before Congress which would amend the existing law providing funds to local communities for the building of sewage-treatment plants. The proposed amendment is commonly called the Blatnik bill. It was introduced by Representative John Blatnik of Minnesota, and is formally designated H. R. 3610.

MRS. R. B. Yadon, president of the Arlington Heights league, announced that this agreement is shared throughout the Leagues in all 50 states. The local league has been studying water resources for the past four years; practically all the 1080 local leagues have taken part in some form of study during this period. All agree on the necessity of controlling pollution.

"The Blatnik bill is now in conference between the Senate and the House. When agreement is reached on provisions of the bill, the conference version will be sent back to both houses for final action. Every league member has been asked to write and encourage her party representative to vote yes on the conference report. For further information on league activities for this coming year please call Mrs. R. B. Yadon, president, CL 5-6488 or Mrs. L. Castle membership chairman CL 3-5765. (ACM

Suburban Human Relations Organization Lists Goals

by DICK HOFFMANN

". . . the principal task facing the Opportunity Council . . . is to change public opinion in those shadowy areas where justice and respect and freedom do not prevail."

The Opportunity Council, Inc., has done much to light these shadowy corners throughout the northwest suburban area since its formation two years ago - appropriately, following Brotherhood Week 1958.

A testimony to its efforts for justice and respect for the Mexican-American minority in this area is contained in the organization's annual report released last week.

And its future goals, as outlined by incoming Council President Charles Hayes, managing editor of Paddock Publications' newspaper chain, are multiple.

HAYES, in a report to the membership, touched on these knotty problems facing the group:

—equal opportunity for employment and housing for the permanent core of this minority; —relief of rural slums girdling the suburban area inhabited by migrant farm workers;

—federal and state legislation regulating the migrant's wages, health and housing.

IT IS IN this first area of concern that the council has taken definitive steps in the search for an answer to the question of housing.

Frederick A. Thulin Jr., chairman of the housing committee, reported that the plight of the migrant and other Spanish-speaking residents of the area has been presented to the Cook County Housing Authority for study.

"Because of the Mexican-American's economic status and the cost of housing in the northwest area, the only apparent solution to this critical housing need," Thulin declared, "is some kind of publicly - subsidized housing."

Groundwork for this eventuality was prepared when the council's housing committee met with County Commissioner Charles F. Chaplin to inquire into the availability of funds for low cost housing.

"He referred us," says Thulin, "to Paul S. Freedman, executive director of the housing authority, who was most responsive and requested a casual census of current and ex-migrant workers in the area to determine how many families are involved in the housing need and where they are located."

THE committee, with an assist from the Palatine Christian Family Movement members, discovered some 250 Mexican-American families in need of such housing. They are scattered throughout Cook county in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, and Palatine townships, in DuPage county in Addison township, and in Lake county in Vernon and Ela townships.

Thulin said the report was turned over to Freedman and his assistant, Emil Hirsch, who are "now ready to act on that report, and the possibility of such a program for Mexican-Americans in this area is now being studied by state and county authorities."

In other areas of commitment, the council has conducted an adult evening school offering elementary education at no charge at the Higgins school in Elk Grove.

And, according to Mrs. Jeanne D. Trout, chairman of the educational committee, a study is being made to investigate the possibility of establishing a scholarship program "to encourage Spanish-speaking youngsters to complete their high school education." Mrs. Trout said the plan will be tested with a pilot project at the Higgins school.

FOR 1960, the committee will explore: 1) the possibility of trade schools or night school classes in vocational education; 2) encouragement of suburban businessmen to accept apprentices; 3) providing free tutoring services to grade and high school students handicapped by language or interrupted schooling.

"One Spanish-speaking child tutored by the committee this past year was able to advance two grade levels in one year as a result of this work," Mrs. Trout explained.

An attempt to establish a medical clinic in the area failed, reported Mrs. Frank Hoffman, chairman of the health committee, primarily because there was not available room in the newly-opened Northwest Community hospital.

But the health committee did organize and supervise examinations, immunizations and Mantoux tests for 150 Spanish-speaking children in July. Twelve doctors and nurses from three local nurses' clubs made their services available.

THE COMMITTEE further obtained public health booklets for libraries in Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights and Palatine, and turned over a complete library of public health booklets to the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC). Twenty-four gift packs, containing the booklets, lists of area health facilities and a letter in English and Spanish, plus gifts of shampoo, baby powder, lotion, and vitamins, were distributed to 24 families and the 150 children who received inoculations.

An income statement showed a council gain of $101.36 during the year, bringing the balance as of Dec. 31, 1959, to $161.82, over $60.46 from the previous year.

New officers elected, in addition to Hayes, whose coauthoring of the series, "Shame of the Suburbs," (describing the Mexican-Americans' plight) gave the initial impetus to organizing the Opportunity Council, were:

APPOINTED by the board of directors were Nancy Ostos, 300 E. Rand rd., Mt. Prospect, secretary; and James Mason, 772 Stephen dr., Palatine, treasurer.

Joining Mrs. Hoffman on the health committee was Mrs. Wilma Wood, 8700 Ballard rd., Des Plaines, a public health nurse for Palatine School District 15.

Outgoing President Jensen who lauded work of the Bensenville chapter of LULAC commented: "If the first year could be considered to one of collecting ideas and information, then the second year must be marked as one in which the ideas began to find realization in action and definite proposals. The reports of the committees indicate that we have been able to do many of the things that needed to be done. The remarks of our new president make it clear that the fruition of one project merely prepares the seed for many more."

Hayes had noted: "Recent examples of anti-semitism and racial tensions in Deerfield and Park Forest demonstrate to us that the principal task facing the Opportunity Council is to change public opinion in those shadowy areas where justice and respect and freedom do not prevail."

The editor also observed: "If integration is to come, we must realize the necessity of bringing it about with planned judgment and a better understanding of human as well as race relations."

He said the Opportunity Council should tackle difficult social problems while they are still "manageable."

"We must bring about an end to discrimination," Hayes declared, "on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry. These discriminations tend to expand the relief rolls, instigate crime, and add to the public costs of welfare and indigent medical programs, not to mention the human toll it exacts.

"We are dedicated to protecting the fundamental rights of all citizens.

"To achieve this, active, determined leadership is desperately needed. We must demonstrate that the suburbs demand such leadership. The lethargic majority in the suburbs has suffered for decades from one fatal defect: it seems to feel that it is going to prevail through sheer weight of numbers," he asserted.

The new council president warned: "But numbers without intensity of feeling or skill of organization may be completely ineffective. The great weakness of public opinion is that so many people express it privately. We hope the Opportunity Council will vocalize that public opinion in 1960." (A13

State Personnel Unit Organized

by
W. RUSSELL ARRINGTON
State Senator
4th Senatorial District

Many of us have been watching with interest the operations of the somewhat newly created Illinois Department of Personnel.

This department became fully operative on July 1, 1957. In the 2½ years since then, a most impressive record has been achieved.

The Department of Personnel has produced an all-time record in the number of state employees with merit status.

LAST OCTOBER, for instance, of the 24,304 state employees subject to merit rating under the Personnel Code, more than 89 per cent, or 24,097 were on a certified or probationary status.

For years before the Personnel Code, a large number of employees were given a civil service status by provisional appointments. Under the law, provisional appointments were limited to a 90-day period - but a practice existed which permitted reappointments on a provisional basis over very lenghty periods. In effect such appointments were an abuse of the theory of the merit system.

For instance, in 1957 there were 5873 of such provisional employees. Many of these had been continued as provisional appointees for many months or years. But in only a little more than two years, the Personnel Department has substantially reduced these provisional appointments, so that as of last October there were only 207 workers in this category. And they are continuing to dwindle in number.

Illinois adopted its first merit law some 55 years ago. Never before now have so many state employees achieved a merit status. Nor never in the past, has so high a percentage of eligible workers been certified.

FROM 18,255 merit employees in July, 1957, when the Department of Personnel began its administration, the number of state workers with merit status has arisen to 24,097 as of last October.

It is true that the Legislature increased by 2150 the number of jobs exempt from the Personnel Code provisions. Nevertheless, the number of employees having merit status has been increased by 5842.

The whole morale of the merit employees has been immensely improved by diligent enforcing of the provisions of the Code. A secure tenure has been effected and at the same time an intelligent salary increase program has been applied.

Based on careful biennial wage surveys made in 1956 and 1958, the state employees' salary rates have been progressively but moderately raised. They now bear a more favorable comparison with those paid for comparable work by business, industry and other public agencies.

THE DEPARTMENT, by exempting 213 top level policy-making or policy-administering jobs from the merit and fitness jurisdiction of the Code, has more clearly delineated between the jobs providing tenure and those subject to political change.

All our state agencies are obtaining an adequate supply of qualified employees, turnover among State workers has been greatly reduced, and workers' morale is way up.

Young Church Hit by Growth

Growth.

This one word dominated discussion recently at the fifth annual congregational meeting of Our Saviour's Lutheran church, Arlington Heights.

The young congregation has completed its first full year in a new $200,000 building at 1234 N. State rd.

"Our growing pains, blessed though they be, point up our continued need to plan for expansion of our facilities," declared Rev. John P. Petersen in his annual report. His parochial report reflected the church's growth during the year:

—membership increased by 270, bringing the total to 844 at the end of the year and necessitating two services each Sunday, beginning in November;

—average attendance rose by 13 per cent over 1958 with 396 members receiving Holy Communion during the year for an increase of 24 per cent over 1958;

—paralleling growth in church membership was growth in parish education, with a 30 per cent increase in Sunday School enrollment during 1959 for a total of 323 students and a staff of 32 regular teachers. To accomodate the increased enrollments, double sessions are being planned; and —Vacation church school last summer totaled 150 children served by a staff of 52 adult and teenage workers. Enrollment next summer is expected to reach 278.

"IN ALL honesty, without any false humility, I know, and I think you know also, that what has been accomplished here is due wholly to the grace of God as He continually showers us with His blessings," said Pastor Petersen.

Elected to the church council at the recent annual meeting were Kenneth Machacek, 355 S. Newbury, vice president; Robert McReynolds, 538 S. Lincoln, secretary; Gust Hermanson, 437 S. Forrest, treasurer; Harry Wickstrom, 527 S. Dryden, financial secretary; John Gessert, 929 S. Chestnut; Russell Larson, 630 S. Walnut; Joseph Reinhardt, 205 S. Yale; Earl Snodgrass, 15 E. Fairview, all of Arlington Heights; and and Daniel Anderson, 3200 W. Fremont, Rolling Meadows.

The congregation approved a $31,420 budget for 1950 including $21,020 for general operating expenses and $10,400 for benevolences. (ACM

Hypnosis Expert Is Directing 'Stalag'

A man whose favorite hobby is hypnosis, George Daniels, will direct the Palatine Players production of "Stalag 17."

Daniels, a member of the Players for five years, is a "hypno technician" and has studied hypnosis and neurology for 20 years. He is a member of the national association to advance ethical hypnosis and is also a member of the Illinois chapter of the same organization.

THOUGH HE can't hypnotize his performers into a brilliant production, Daniels has high hopes for the play on February 18, 19, and 20.

He said, "Even with the drop out rate and shifting of casting from minor German roles to major roles of prisoners, I am confident that 'Stalag' will be a finished production."

Setting for the all-male production is a German concentration camp during World War II. The director must have knowledge of the armed service and male reactions to war and concentration camps.

To assist him in making the play a success, Daniels, of 567 W. Hellen rd., Palatine, calls upon experience with other Players' plays. He was stage manager for "My Three Angels," assistant director and production co-ordinator of "Teahouse of the August Moon," assistant director for "Guest in the House," and did stage and lighting for "Gigi."

DANIELS WIFE, Dorothy is an active Player, too, and is program chairman for this production. The Daniels' have three childfen, Sharon, 18, Judy, 14, and Jeff, 12.

Lead man under Daniels is Leon Stevens who will portray Sefton, the cynical of "Stalag." His army experience comes from three and a half years in the infantry and air force in Germany during World War II.

Stevens has appeared in three other plays for the Players. While he directed "All my Sons," he lost one of his supporting actors, and quietly stepped into the part A few weeks before opening night, the lead man in the play was transferred to another state. Again Stevens stepped in.

He also appeared in "Tender Trap," and "More than meets the Eye."

BEHIND SCENES, he has been a stage manager, set designer, and directed lighting. He was stage manager for "Gigi."

A past-vice president of the Players, Stevens and his wife, Rose Marie, have been members of the group since 1954.

Q. Is the practice of leaving a little food on your plate considered a mark of delicacy?

A. It was at one time, but now is considered wasteful. We do not leave food on our plate unless we really cannot eat it. It is, however, polite to leave something on the serving platter, as someone else might want another helping.

Q. My husband's brother died recently and many of his friends sent sympathy cards addressed to my husband alone. Should not these cards have been addressed to both of us?

A. No; the cards were correctly addressed to your husband alone. It was his brother who passed on.

Flu Bug Continues to Pull Rug Out from Party Plans

There were "sun dogs" visible in the late afternoon sky Sunday and they're a sure sign of almost anything, weatherwise. Nobody saw much of anything Tuesday which is a probable sign that groundhogs stayed in their burrows and said "To heck with groundhog's day." The social news continues at low ebb, a sign that the majority of local folk emulated the groundhog or continued to battle the flu bug which pulled the rug out from under many party plans last week. Arlington Heighters who did venture out or entertained deserve some sort of award. Without them there'd be what every columnist dreads —a picture of white ducks in a snowstorm — that big white space where the news usually is.

Five couples, all former Chicagoans who became close friends as members of the same church, farewelled a sixth couple Sunday at a dinner party in the Saunders Reinhard home, 801 S. Walnut. Guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Eaton of Wheaton, whose future residence will not rhyme nearly so well with their name. They're moving soon to Schenectady.

Ten neighborhood housewives welcomed Mrs. Walter Brown to the Coffeepots Anonymous association of N. Dunton at a morning coffee given by Mrs. David Gleckler, 1212 N. Dunton, last Thursday. The Browns resided in Stonegate for eight months two years ago, then moved to Iowa, returning here about two weeks ago, when Mr. Brown assumed general managership of the Loop Volkwagen agency. The Browns are at home at 1126 N. Dunton.

S. T. CHRISTENSEN of Jamestown, N.Y., is enjoying an extended visit with his daughter and family, the Evrell Planks, 609 Catino.

Linda Musich, 403 N. Chestnut, reigned as queen for a day Saturday when she celebrated her third birthday more or less all day, ending her reign with a festive family party Saturday evening.

The C. E. Plotners returned last Wednesday to Gowrie, Iowa after a 5-week visit here with their daughter and family, the Dale Hausers, 101 N. Forrest. The holiday season was doubly festive for both the Plotners and the Hausers with wedding anniversaries to be celebrated Christmas day and December 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Plotner observed their 40th anniversary December 29 and were honor guests at a luncheon in the Clarence Hendricksen home, 743 N. Belmont. Later in the day they were the Hausers' guests, enjoying first the matinee performance of "Music Man" and then a gala dinner celebration.

Enjoying the whole day with them was their granddaughter, Debby Hauser, who is pretty sure wedding anniversaries are more fun than anything. Her parents' anniversary was Christmas Day to make the best day of the year even more so, and a family party to celebrate her mother's January 16 birthday ended the holiday season dual occasions.

Before the Plotners returned to Gowrie they and the Hausers enjoyed a dinner party in the Hinsdale home of friends formerly of Des Moines, the Julian Brighams.

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS of the Robert Perschbacker family, 310 N. Derbyshire, extend sympathy to Mr. Perschbacker whose mother, Emma, died last week in West Bend, Wis., The family returned Sunday evening from West Bend where funeral services were held Saturday.

Fifteen neighborhood and school friends helped Barbara Monti celebrate her ninth birthday Friday evening at a supper party in the Monti home, 1012 N. Highland.

Recent visitors at the Jack Keller home, 308 N. Haddow, were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Welter of Elkhart.

Last Friday evening Susie Keller entertained seven high school friends at a pre-game dinner that was partly just for the fun of it and partly to help Carol Kent celebrate her 15th birthday. The young ladies attended the basketball game after dinner, then enjoyed the informal dance that followed the game. The birthday celebration then went into the last lap at the Kent home, 215 N. Derbyshire, where the double foursome didn't slumber much but had lots of fun at a slumber party.

Carol's birthday was a whole week previous to Friday's fun fest but exams were the unpopular trend at school then and she chose to celebrate on a cram-free weekend.

CHUCK REHFELDT, 315 N. Pine, returned to the Northwest Naval and Military academy at Lake Geneva Monday after a between-semester break at home. The vacation was pleasantly climaxed with a weekend stay at the ski lodge at Mt. Tellemark, Wis. where Chuck and fellow cadet, Carl Behrens, were accompanied by Chuck's sister, Charlene, for a 2-day ski fest.

Miss Jan Davis was home at 408 N. Evergreen for a few days last week on a between semester vacation from Waukesha, Wis. where she attends Carroll college.

Fourteen family members extended birthday best wishes to Mrs. Edwin Niemeyer Sunday afternoon and evening at a party in the Niemeyer home, 1650 Maude.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Coobs, 1145 N. Mitchell, went ice skating over the weekend which is not too unusual in mid-winter. However they also swam which is less common especially since they weren't in Florida at the time. They did however spend the weekend at the Wagon Wheel in Rockton where both sports are possible. The companionship of two other couples, college friends of Mr. and Mrs. Coobs, added to fun of the weekend.

TEN DAYS OF ideal summer weather were the recently lovely fate of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Clark Jr. who returned home to 608 S. Walnut Sunday from a vacation in Puerto Rico. From a beach house of the Dorado Beach hotel, situated about 20 miles from San Juan, the Clarks soaked up the warmth of the unremitting trade winds which are known for never blowing Arlington Heights way.

Basking in the breezes was of course not the sole activity of the Clarks who report a completely full 10 days with not even the beginnings of a lull.

The Walter Aronsons, 15 S. Salem, returned Thursday from a 3-week vacation in Florida and Nassau, where sun and slow, easy living was the rule. The decelerated pace of life in Nassau was lovely while it lasted and of course hard to shake upon the vacationers' return home.

BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS were offered to Robert Sielkins, 621 E. Grove, at a surprise party Friday in the home of his next door neighbors, the Richard Kervicks. When planning the party, Mrs. Sielkins and Mrs. Kervick wanted a relaxed atmosphere, making it a come as you are party, thus enabling the men to come sans ties and in comfortable attire.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Skinner, 721 S. Beverly were in Tecumseh, Mich. for the weekend to attend the 48th wedding anniversary of Mr. Skinner's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Verdi Skinner. The reception was planned as a surprise by members of the family.

John L. Lee left Arlington Heights January 21 for California, where he will make his home. He will live with friends at 23 Sylvan dr., in San Francisco. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Lee, 608 S. Pine, has spent the past several years touring the country with a singing group.

MRS. ALAN H. Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont, Mrs. Maynard Perkins of Mt. Prospect and Mrs. I. Wabeshaw of Arlington Heights countryside were cohostesses at a "kidnap breakfast," last Wednesday, Jan. 20, for the benefit of St. Simon Episcopal Church of Arlington Heights. Messengers, sent out by the hostesses, kidnapped the guests, bringing them to the Macdonald home just as they were, where they joined other guests for a hearty breakfast and a morning of fun.

Most every Friday night finds the Macdonalds and their children, Susan and Alan, headed for the Majestic Hill Ski lodge in Lake Geneva for an evening of skiing.

Last Friday, a group of Susan's young friends joined them for the evening. Among the guests were Craig Hartman, Diane Thackery, Bill Mahon, Barbara Swanson and Bruce McIntyre of Park Ridge.

ROBERT STAUBER, 833 S. Beverly, will probably become a confirmed skiing enthusiast before the end of winter. During a weekend at Mt. Telemark, near Warsaw, Wis., he donned skis for the first time and spent the day on the slopes without a single mishap.

Although Mrs. Stauber was unable to join her husband, having to remain home to nurse a cold, she is looking forward to their next trip. Mr. Stauber's companions for the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. George Hitchcock of Barrington, former Arlington Heights residents, and Alfred Wilcox of Stonegate.

Miss Judy Clabaugh, who was home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clabaugh, 510 S. Beverly, for a brief between-semester vacation, left Wednesday for deferred rush week at the University of Indiana at Bloomington.

The Mises Linda and Ginny Mann were home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Mann, 304 E. Fairview, for a semester break, during the past week. Mrs. Mann accompanied the girls back to Milwaukee and to Marquette university, where Linda is a Junior and Ginny a freshman.

Mrs. Thomas J. McGrath, 542 S. Dryden entertained 18 of her Dryden place neighbors last Thursday at a baby shower in honor of Mrs. William Brinkworth, whose fourth baby is expected early this spring.

MR. AND MRS. J. M. Otzen, 500 S. Dryden, were hosts at a cocktail party before attending the Continental club dance Saturday at the VFW hall in Arlington Heights. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Toffoli, Mr. and Mrs. Curt Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Decker and Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Strathearn, 720 Bristol, recently sepnt a gay weekend in New York City. In their brief stay, they attended two plays, "Destry Rides Again" and "Take Me Along," the musical based on "Ah Wilderness" starring Jackie Gleason. They also visited the Guggenheim museum of Modern Art and shopped.

Robert Taggart, 840 S. Beverly, home for a 5-day mid-term vacation from Beloit college, celebrated his 19th birthday Saturday at a family dinner party, after which they attended a performance of Ben Hur in Chicago. Adding to the happiness of the day was a heart warming congratulatory telephone call which came from his older brother, Ron, from Van Nuys, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Bredehoft, 201 Wilshire, welcomed for a weekend visit, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Blackstone of Waukeshaw, Wis. The Bredehofts and the Blackstones became friends during the war when both men were in the navy, stationed together at Harvard, Princeton and again in Tacoma, Wash.

During their stay, the Bredehofts and the Blackstones spent a day in Chicago, dining at the popular Japanese restaurant, the Azuma House, where guests sit on the floor and eat at low tables with chop sticks as their only eating equipment.

BILL BREDEHOFT, eldest son of Mr. and Bredehoft, and members of the Debate Club of Prospect high school, spent Friday and Saturday at Augustana college in Rock Island, attending a Debate Tournament.

Miss Maurita Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, 317 Stratford, received birthday congratulations and an album of her favorite records at a surprise party last Sunday given in honor of her 17th birthday by Miss Karen Koren, 322 S. Gibbons.

Weekend guests of the William A. Kellys were her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kocsis of Royal Oak, Mich., who joined Mrs. Kelly and her parents, the Harry W. Delaneys of Riverside, in celebrating her birthday with a dinner party at Sorinis Restaurant, near Riverside, Saturday.

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN Jurco, 217 Windsor, and Mr. and Wiliam Ball, 454 Banbury, entertained Sunday at a farewell dinner party in the Anvil club in East Dundee for Mrs. Robert Phillips, who is leaving for a 5-week vacation in Pheonix.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Carey, 220 S. Drury, will have as houseguests, his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carey, who arrive here February 7 from Sheboygan, Mich.

Three Stonegate neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Stahnke, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Gale Oberlin and Mrs. Fred Heiden of Arlington Heights attended a dinner party and a performance of the Skokie chapter of the Sweet Adeline Barber Shop singers in Skokie, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Miller, 1301 Woodford, entertained at a dinner party Friday for all the young men associated with Mr. Miller in business.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER Strobel, 1319 Mayfair were hosts at a dinner party Saturday, followed by an evening of bridge. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hawkey, Mr. and Mrs. H. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gran, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Klamm, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Metz and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Coward.

It was her first visit with her newest grandchild, Elizabeth Ellen, born December 22. Mrs. Prater, the former Ellen Wilson, and her husband have one other child, 22-month-old Richard. (A

Hagenbring's To Rer odel

A complete remodeling and expansion now underway at Hagenbring's department store, 105 W. Campbell st., Arlington Heights, marks the sixth enlargement of the store since its opening in the village in 1922.

Plans for the facelifting call for a new front on the building of rough cut redwood and ceramic tile. Planter boxes will also beautify the exterior. New doors will make for easier entrance and exit from the store.

The interior was expanded last October when the store took over the space at the corner of Campbell and Vail streets. New counters are being installed and an all new lighting system was recently completed.

The piece good section has been expanded by 38 per cent, and the children's wear department is also expanding its lines, particularly in name brands.

The first store opened a block east of the present location. The present building was built in 1926, with the store occupying the western portion. In 1938, the store expanded eastward. In 1947, the basement was opened and is today known throughout the area for its children's toy selection.

IN 1954, when a beauty shop closed, the store extended its space eastward once again.

Along with interior and exterior remodeling, the store plans to expand its housewares field into a complete department.

Work on the store is expected to be completed in the Spring, at which time there will be a grand opening. (A

LYLE NEWMAN

Hear Arguments In Suit Tuesday

Circuit Judge Cornelius J. Harrington will hear Arington Heights arguments Tuesday, Feb. 9, to dismiss the Consumer company zoning suit based on points of law involved in the dispute.

Dismissal of the company's suit, filed in 1956, would clear the way for the village to prosecute the concrete cement firm on charges of violating zoning and other Arlington Heights ordinances.

The hearing will open at 2 p.m. and will be the latest round in a battle launched by the company against a village order to remove the plant, valued at $200,000, as a zoning violation in a commercial district.

THE VILLAGE contends Consumers, a subsidiary of Union Chemical and Material corporation, is a manufacturer of ready-mix concrete, an activity that belongs in an industrial district under the Arlington Heights zoning code.

The company denies the ready-mix charges, says its business is that of the sale, batching (involves measuring), and loading of concrete materials—the same as that conducted since 1918 or 1919 by its predecessor, the Arlington Elevator company.

Stock Sale Announced By Manager

Dan Senne, manager of The Emerald Shop in Arlington Heights, has announced the third step up-dating his store at the corner of Dunton and Davis sts.—complete change of merchandise through a liquidation of stock sale.

Emerald Shop had its front completely remodeled this past year as the first move to attract more customers, and modernize. Second step was the cooperative effort of a group of merchants in working with village officials to make the downtown area an attractive, easy-to-park shopping area. This was announced last week.

This time it is the liquidation sale, now in progress, which will clear out all of the present merchandise and make way for expanded fashion departments. The children's department will be abolished. (A

Smallpox Shots Set For Pupils

Smallpox vaccinations are being offered to all first, fourth, and seventh grade students in Arlington Heights elementary schools, starting next week.

An Ordinance

AMENDING ARTICLE II OF CHAPTER 20 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS OF 1954.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, COUNTY OF COOK AND STATE OF ILLINOIS:

SECTION ONE: That Article II of Chapter 20 of the Municipal Code of Arlington Heights of 1954 be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 20-201. Definition of Terms. As used in this ordinance, unless the context otherwise indicates,

(a) "Dog" shall mean any member of the canine family, both male and female, three months or more of age.

(b) "Owner" shall be intended to mean any person or persons, firm, association or corporation owning, keeping or harboring a dog, or knowingly permitting a dog to remain on or about any premises owned or occupied by him.

(c) "At large" shall be intended to mean off the premises of the owner, and not under the control of the owner, a member of his immediate family, or the owner's agent, either by leash, cord, chain or otherwise; also, the running of any dog on the property of any but the owner without the permission of the owner of the aforementioned property.

(d) A "biting dog" is hereby defined to be a dog which has bitten, scratched or otherwise injured any person so as to cause abrasion to the skin of such person,

(e) "Board of Health" is hereby defined to mean the Board of Health of the Village of Arlington Heights,

(f) "Health Officer" is hereby defined to mean the Health Officer of the Village of Arlington Heights.

Section 20-202. License and Registration Required. All dogs kept, harbored, or maintained by their owners in the Village of Arlington Heights shall be licensed and registered annually. Said license shall be obtained on or before the first day of January in each year, except for a dog less than three months old, in which case a license shall be procured when the dog attains that age.

Section 20-203. Application for license. Application for dog licenses shall be made to the Village Clerk. At the time of such application the owner shall furnish upon printed forms provided for such purpose:

1. The name and address of the owner.
2. The name, breed, sex, and color of the dog.
3. The date of the most recent rabies vaccination and the name and address of the veterinarian who performed the same.

Section 20-204. Inoculation Certificate. A certificate of inoculation against rabies for each dog, issued by the county rabies inspector or by his deputy, or by a licensed veterinarian, shall be submitted to the Village Clerk for inspection at the time of application for license. No license shall be issued for any dog unless such inoculation certificate bears a date within one year prior to the date of application for license.

Section 20-206. Tag and Collar. Upon payment of the license fee, the Clerk shall issue to the owner a license certificate or receipt and a metallic tag for each dog so licensed. The tag shall have stamped thereon the year for which it was issued and the number corresponding with the number on the certificate or receipt. Every owner shall be required to provide a collar to which the license tag must be affixed, and shall see that the collar and tag are constantly worn. In case a dog tag is lost or destroyed, a duplicate will be issued by the Clerk upon presentation of a receipt showing the payment of the license fee for the current year, and the payment of a fifty cent (50c) fee for such duplicate. Dog tags shall not be transferable from one dog to another and no refund shall be made on any dog license fee because of the death of the dog or the owner's leaving the village before expiration of the license period.

Section 20-207. Running at Large Prohibited. (a) It shall be unlawful to permit any dog to run at large in the village at any time. Dogs which are running at large shall be taken up and impounded.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any dog, even though on leash and muzzled, to be or enter upon any public hall, restaurant, confectionery store, coffee shop, ice cream parlor, soft drink parlor, office, store, grocery, meat market, bakery or any store or shop for the sale of food, except any shop for the sale of animal pets, anywhere within the Village of Arlington Heights, during the time that any of said places or establishments are open for use by the public or persons entitled to use the same.

(c) It shall be unlawful for any dog, even though on a leash, to go or be upon any school premises, public playground, or public park within the Village of Arlington Heights, or upon a path or sidewalk extending through or within any school, premises, public playground, or public park within the village.

(d) No leash shall be longer than eight (8) feet in length.

(e) The provisions of this section shall not apply to dogs properly trained to assist the blind when such dogs are actually being used for that purpose.

Section 20-208. Impounding. It shall be the duty of every police officer to apprehend any dog found running at large contrary to the provisions of Section 20-207 and to impound such dog in the village pound or if there is no village pound then to a duly licensed veterinary establishment designated for that purpose by the Village Manager. The poundmaster upon receiving any dog shall make a complete registry, entering the breed, color and sex of such dog and whether licensed. If licensed he shall enter the name and address of the owner and the number of the license tag. Licensed dogs shall be separated from unlicensed dogs.

Section 20-209. Notice to Owner and Redemption. Not later than two (2) days after the impounding of any dog, the owner shall be notified, or if the owner of the dog is unknown written notice shall be posted for three (3) days in the Police Station describing the dog and the place and time of taking. The owner of any dog so impounded may reclaim such dog upon payment of the license fee, if unpaid, and all costs and charges incurred by the Village for impounding and maintenance of said dog, plus a lodging fee of one dollar ($1.00) a day. If the owner does not redeem within five (5) days of notice of the impounding, such dog may be redeemed by any other person paying the above fees.

Section 20-210. Disposition of Unclaimed or Infected Dogs. (a) If at the expiration of twelve (12) days from the date of notice to the owner or the last posting of notice, such dog shall not have been redeemed, it may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of as provided by the Village Board.

(b) However, any unlicensed dog required by law to be licensed, or any dog which upon a statement of a licensed veterinarian appears to be suffering from rabies or affected with hydrophobia, or other infectious or contagious disease shall not be released, but may be forthwith destroyed.

Section 20-211. Unclaimed Dogs for Scientific Purposes. Whenever any hospital or reputable institution of learning shall apply to the Village Clerk for permission to use for research purposes in the study of prevention of disease or the betterment of mankind, any dogs remaining unclaimed, the Village Clerk shall request the poundmaster to surrender to the institution or hospital such unclaimed dogs as it has requested, and they shall be so surrendered.

Section 20-212. Care of impounded animals. Animals which are kept in the village pound shall be humanely treated and fed; such pound shall be under the charge of the Chief of Police, who shall be responsible for the care and custody of the same, and shall appoint from within the police department a poundmaster.

Section 20-213. Rabies. Every veterinarian or other person discovering or suspecting any dog to be suffering with rabies shall forthwith report such fact to the Board of Health or Police Department, giving the name and address of the owner of such dog and the license number thereof, if known. If such dog, after examination by the Health Officer is suspected to be suffering with said disease, the dog shall be immediately, at the expense of the owner, placed in the charge of a veterinarian licensed by the State of Illinois, whose establishment is located in Cook County, for a period of not less than ten (10) days for observation. If such dog should die during the interval, the intact brain shall forthwith be delivered to the laboratory of the State Department of Public Health.

It shall be unlawful for the owner of any dog, when notified that such dog has bitten or scratched any person or has otherwise injured any person as to cause an abrasion of the skin, to sell or give away such dog or to permit or allow such dog to be taken beyond the limits of Cook County, but it shall be the duty of such owner, upon receiving notice of the character aforesaid, to immediately place such dog in a duly licensed veterinary hospital located in Cook County, where such dog shall be confined for a period of at least ten (10) days, for observation, or to deliver such dog to any police officer for such placement. In case such dog is delivered to a veterinary hospital, notice of the name and location of such hospital shall be immediately furnished to the Board of Health or Police Department by the owner of such dog, and upon receipt of such dog, the veterinary hospital shall submit to the Board of Health or Police Department, a certificate stating that such dog either shows no symptom of rabies or does show symptom of rabies. If at the expiration of ten (10) days of observation in such veterinary hospital, the said veterinary hospital shall submit to the Board of Health or Police Department a second certificate stating that the dog does not have rabies, the said dog may then be released.

Any dog which shall have been bitten by another dog having or suspected of having rabies, shall be immediately impounded in the manner provided in the above paragraph for the "biting dog."

Section 20-214. Duty to Surrender. The owner or custodian of any dog suffering from or suspected to be suffering from rabies as provided in Section 20-213 shall surrender possession of such dog to any police officer of the village.

Section 20-215. Violation. A violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punishable by a fine of not less than $5.00 nor more than $200.00.

Section 20-216. Severability Clause. The intention of the Board of Trustees is hereby expressed that the provisions of this ordinance are severable and that the invalidity of any section hereof or of any portion of any section hereof shall not affect any other section or portion of section of this ordinance.

SECTION TWO: This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication according to law.

Just for Fun

How Recreation Program Fits New Leisure Times

by JOEL CARTER

Life magazine recently ran a special issue entitled "The Good Life" emphasizing the huge part that recreation plays in American life. It points out the manifest ramifications that leisure time and its use has on this country. The hours we have off from work and household duties affect not only our personal life but the economy of the nation.

With mounting productive efficiency, wages have gone up and hours of work down, a Life staff writer points out, so much that the average wage earner has 3,700 hours off a year.

That's the equivalent of 230 full 16-hour days besides time for sleep. To a great extent it is this growth of leisure time that has kept the American economy strong and growing.

WE SPEND $40 billion each year just for fun. That's over 8 per cent of our gross national product and is almost as much as our annual defense budget. It exceeds our income tax bill and is more than the amount spent on new housing and automobiles combined.

Boating, fishing and swimming account for a big share of this fun bill. Bowling has blossomed into a billion dollar sport. Do it yourselfs - gardening, carpentry, painting, crafts, and the like - keep many people busy and consuming. More athletes are on our playing fields than ever before. Spectator sports and amusements are prosperous.

HOW DOES A PARK district with a recreation program fit into this picture? Many of the popular recreations are based on commercial enterprises and need no assist from a tax supported body. Others, though, are dependent upon the use of public facilities and land reservations. Athletics require courts. Like swimming pools these facilities are beyond the individual family's budget and are not well suited for commercial enterprises. As we bludgeon into an urban country we must save our nature areas with forest preserves, public water bodies, and wildlife refuges.

Public recreation leadership facilitates the non-individual sports by organizing the leagues, clubs, tournaments, and special events necessary for their indulgence. Professional recreators often plant the seed that results in community theater groups, orchestras, hobby clubs, and the like. In many areas we can get more for our recreation dollar from a public agency. Recreation is a major force in our way of life and our economy.

This Week with PTA

Miner Junior

"The junior high school combines the familiar experiences of grade school with some of the unfamiliar experiences of high school." This was illustrated at the January PTA meeting at Miner Junior high, through a series of colored slides. Joseph Beacom, assistant principal, provided the commentary, and a large audience of parents and teachers voted it an outstanding presentation of the "in-between school's" value and contribution to the student.

Through the combined efforts of principal, assistant principal and faculty members, pictures were taken of the students in all phases of their school life. Differences in weight, height, capabilities, maturity, desire to learn and interests were pointed out through the use of these slides. Because these were actual pictures taken in classrooms, corridors, home economics rooms, gym, art and music rooms, shops, library and the office, everyone present was vitally interested in the "actors" and the "actresses".

THE PROGRAM WAS divided into six groupings: articulation, integration, exploration, differentiation, socialization and guidance in education. The sildes clearly ilustrated each point and, therefore, the subject was readily understood by those in the audience.

Mr. L. W. Bredehoft, president of the board of education, talked briefly on the coming referendum, outlining our present and future needs in regard to K-5 and junior high schools. Residents are asked to cast their vote in the February 6 election.

Refreshments were served by sixth grade mothers, sections one through three.

South Junior

At the South Junior high school PTA program, Mrs. Gaylord Watland, chairman, introduced Brooks Smith, a representative of the board of education, who spoke briefly on the proposals to be voted upon at the February 6 election.

Mrs. W. G. Heddesheimer Jr., program representative, explained the evening's program and presented S. E. Alkire, who introduced a film entitled "Who Should Decide?" This film was used as a basis for presenting discussion problems involved in parental control. It pointed up several conflicts between two teenagers and their parents. Each of the major questions was discussed by one of the groups into which the audience was divided; chairman of each group then reported a summary.

In general, a common idea of "joint decisions" was mentioned by each group. The problems dealt with decisions concerning what to wear, who should decide how money is spent, for what career to plan, which friends to choose and determining what work is to be done in the home.

SOME IDEALS GLEANED from the summaries include the following: in order that all work in the home be done, not just the type that a certain member of family may excel in, mutual decision on assignments should be reached.

The group agreed that friendliness should be encouraged at all times. Parents should know who their children's friends are as well as with whom and where they are.

Parents should guide from the beginning any thoughts a child may have concerning his life work. Deciding upon his future, however, will eventually become the child's responsibility, according to the chairmen.

It is important that both parents and child decide together and have a definite understanding upon the time for the teenager to return home.

Who should decide what clothes or makeup a teenager should wear need not be a problem if a standard is agreed upon. Awareness of the situation and following a definite pattern may be helpful in determining many of his decisions.

It was unanimously agreed that most problems can best be solved in a family unit.

Bridge Leagues

Mrs. Clyde W. Foster, chairman of the Round Robin bridge tournament, reports that couples are running very close in the three leagues. Based on scores turned in (a few have still not been received), leading couple in the afternoon Women's league is Mrs. Jean Dietze and Mrs. May Keck. Close behind them are Mrs. Ruth Clabaugh and Mrs. Melba Massie, and Mrs. Joy Hall and Mrs. Claire Blackwell.

The evening Women's league is led by Mrs. Lucille Moeller and Mrs. Dorothy Hutchinson, with Mrs. Vesta Crow and Mrs. Marian Roberts running second.

IN THE EVENING COUPLES league Mr. and Mrs. William Nightingale are leading, closely followed by Mr. and Mrs. George Shartle, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kearney, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bloss.

Mrs. Foster urgently requests that the scores still outstanding be submitted to her as promptly as possible.

Ticket Time

Tickets are still available for the PTA card party February 11 at 8 p.m. Room mothers, Mrs. Stockdale, CL 3-3073 and Mrs. Spinks, CL 3-7184, may be contacted for tickets which will also be available at the doors of both Junior high schools that evening. (A

Candidate Is Granted ACLU Leave

Dr. Tyler Thompson, a candidate for congress in the 13th district in the April Democratic primary, has been granted a leave of absence from his post as chairman of the Illinois division of the American Civil Liberties union.

Included in the 13th district are Wheeling, Elk Grove, and Palatine townships.

"THE ACLU is non-partisan and non-political," Ken Douty, Illinois director, said. "We are pleased when our officers, in fulfilling their duties as citizens, aspire to public office, but during such periods we excuse them from their ACLU responsibilities.

Other members of ACLU's advisory or executive board who have been candidates for public office in recent years include Leon M. Despres, elected to the Chicago City Council as an indepedent in 1955; Robert Merriam, unsuccessful Republican candidate for mayor of Chicago in 1955; and Abner J. Budding Playwrights: Here's Key to Fame

By JIM PHILLIPS

In response to many requests from budding writers (all two of you), here are excerpts from my latest textbook entitled, "How to Write a Tennessee Williams Play in Your Spare Time."

Before you begin, whether it's a play or movie, to insure success as an author, you must change your first name. Ordinary names such as John, Aaron, Sam or Reginald will never sell. Go through your Rand McNally Atlas and pick the name of a state. You will then end up with something like Alabama Ashenfelter, Arizona Ockenblood or even Rhode Island Klotz. But at least you will have guaranteed yourself success before you even start writing!

THE NEXT thing you must do is choose a setting for the story. It must be down South. Way down South. The hotter the better. There's nothing more dramatic than people sweating.

You're now ready to choose your characters.

The male lead must be the strong, stupid, decadent type; the female lead the weak, stupid, decadent type. One of them must be a neurotic — that choice is up to you. The third character in your play is the antagonist, which means he is silent strong, bold, educated, thoughtful, and aside from being the only one in the cast who takes a bath, he is also a crashing bore.

Each character must have a "signature line." Your male lead should always say something like "You ain't nobody to talk!" or "Get outa da way, ya lousy dame!" or "Stella! I can't get the ice box door open!" The female lead always speaks softly and says either "You all don't love me no more!" or "Ah swear, Sidney, you don't know the meanin' of the word 'evil'!" The antagonist doesn't need anything but a few grunts to let the audience know he's a devotee of cannibalism!

NEXT COMES the plot. This is easy. You just combine the following elements: fear, murder, insanity, depression, hate, greed, jealousy, drunkenness and a few cases of upset stomach. If a plot doesn't come out of this mess, you'd better give up and go back to composing nasty letters to Congressmen!

The movie (or play) should be in two parts. The first part contains nothing which will tell the audience what the story is about. Instead, it should give a psychological picture of the main characters. And since you're not a psychologist, nobody will ever know what you're talking about anyway! But don't worry. The second part is a beauty! This is where the plot begins.

THE DEGENERATE wife is accused of being unfaithful; the degenerate husband threatens to run out on her until his rich mother-in-law shows up from New York. She gives him $20,000 to stay with his wife. He gives her $30,000 to take the degenerate wife off his hands.

In the meantime, the degenerate wife has taken rat poison because she finds her degenerate husband's torn T-shirt has lipstick on it.

While this is going on, the mother-in-law turns out to be an escaped lunatic who is living in the past, hates the present and can predict the future — a sort of upper class combination of Ma Perkins, Lizzie Borden and Madame LaZagna!

Seeing that there is a direct parallel between the mother and his wife, the degenerate husband decides to escape from reality by hitting the bottle. He not only hits it, he bludgeons it to death.

In the middle of his fourth fifth of Instant Tequilla, the husband imagines he is youthful again and tries to propose to his wife. This doesn't do any good because she's dead.

At this point, the antagonist arrives on the scene. He is a psychotic in his own right. He stares grimly at the dead wife, the drunken husband and the stuffed pocket book of the mother-in-law and — you guessed it. He runs off to New York with her and the "curtain goes down."

This type of ending never fails to leave your audience breathless. It even shakes up the ushers!

NOW THAT we've got our story, let's pick a title. This is quite difficult because the title must have absolutely nothing to do with the plot. Also it must be three words — no more, no less. Usually the first word is "the" so we must assume that words two and three should be something highly dramatic and attention-getting. Putting the trio of words together, you may come out with: "The Violent Kumquat" or "The Swamp Call" or even "The Magnificent Gizzard."

When you are established, you can break away from the "three word" title and go into deeper words, such as "A Subway Named Misfortune," "Peonies in the Oatmeal" or "Suddenly in the Middle of the Volga River."

By this time, the acclaim of the critics is ringing in your ears, and you have reached the pinnacle of success as a writer in the Tennessee Williams School of Writing!"

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Edward Rentz

Some of the foods enjoyed by the gourmet members of the Lucullus Circle banquets are:

Native guinea hen from Pennsylvania.

Oysters from Seattle, Washington.

Diamond-back terrapin from the Isle of Hope.

Wyoming buffalo steaks.

The meal is usually ended with dessert and about eight kinds of cheese. There are about 4 types of wines served with these meals and are, of course, of the finest vintage.

Imagination Can Become Dangerous

by LELAND TRUXEL

Imagination is one of the most wonderful and potentially valuable, and at the same time most dangerous, mental abilities a man can have. Without imagination, a person lives a dull and drab life, like that of the lower animals. With imagination, he can create desires, sharpen his will, visualize his future.

Imagination can create for an individual, a paradise in a dungeon. To a blind person it can bring shape, feeling, a sense of distance and direction.

IMAGINATION can create a goal toward which to strive. By imagination, you can picture yourself on a trip you are to make, visualize the things you need to take along, the sights you will see.

By imagination a novelist sees and translates into words the things that he sees, so that, reading them, the same scenes will be imagined by you as you read; the same, and yet not the same, for while the characters will resemble those of the author, they will be different in appearance, appealing to you in a different way. The scenes you see will be colored by the ones you have, through experience and reading, stored in your memory for use at such a time.

In his imagination, a beggar can become a king; a brick layer, the world's greatest musician, a school boy may ride a space ship to the moon.

But imagination is dangerous if it gets out of control. An individual which gives up reality to live in a world of fantasy, may completely lose connection with real life. An individual who lends his imagination to immoral or lewd day dreams may well be on the way to a life of recurring sex crimes. A person who by imagination identified himself with crime may become a thief and robber.

THUS IMAGINATION can be a boon, or a destroyer. Properly used, it brings an individual great moments of joy, success, and a great power for perceiving and understanding life, people, nature and the world which, without imagination, would be dull and drab indeed.

The Bible tells us we should cast down imaginations and every high thing that exalts itself against the knowledge of God, and bring into captivity every thought in obedience of Christ.

Arlington To Battle Two WSC Quintets

KICKIN' IT AROUND

By BOB FRISK

THAT SLENDER SHOOTING specialist who amazed fans at Arlington's last home encounter is assaulting the record books!

George Bork put on one of the top performances of his prep cage career last Friday evening when he sent home 35 points against Glenbard West.

Bork's effort against the Bards rocketed him into a comfortable lead in the West Suburban individual scoring chase and prompted us to examine the 6-1 senior's offensive achievements—past, present, and future.

TOM JACOBSEN

Bork's 35 points against Glenbard were within two of the Arlington gym varsity scoring record of 37 set by Tom Aley of Elgin in a sectional tourney test against the Cards March 9, 1955. Although Aley holds the varsity mark, the frosh-soph standard is better yet as Arlington's Johnny Sujack rimmed 38 in the rout of Palatine six years ago.

Arlington's current offensive standout is definitely within striking distance of the all-time Cardinal scoring record in West Suburban action.

Since Arlington entered the WSC in 1951, the Cards have had one scoring champion and one runnerup. Tom Jacobsen ranks as the school's only loop scoring champ as he collected 268 points in the 1956-57 campaign for a 19.1 per game average.

Jay Vawter, a 6-7 performer, was a runnerup behind George Wolz of Riverside in the 1951-52 season with 245 markers. Wolz collected 257.

The Jacobsen story is one of the most amazing ever recorded in the Arlington cage annals as Tom blossomed from an individual who had scored only eight points as a junior into the conference champion.

Bork's progress has been expected as he enjoyed an outstanding junior campaign when he finished sixth in league scoring and was named to the All-WSC unit. He tallied 186 conference points to move into fifth place in the list of the top Arlington scorers in West Suburban play, but his performance last Friday boosted his record to 189 with five games remaining.

George needs only five points against Riverside Friday to move past Sujack in the scoring parade and a 13-point performance would boost him into third place.

Arlington's top five scorers in conference history currently look like this:

	B	FT	Pts.	Avg.
Tom Jacobsen (1956-57)	99	70	268	19.1
Jay Vawter (1951-52)	104	37	245	17.5
Bob Lockwood (1956-57)	74	53	201	14.4
John Sujack (1955-56)	71	51	193	13.8
George Bork (1959-60)	83	23	189	*

*—Bork has five games to play.

If Bork averages 16 points per game for his remaining quintet of loop battles, he will emerge as the school's top scorer since entering the conference. In addition, he has a chance to place his name alongside Jacobsen as a conference scoring champion.

ONLY TWO GUARDS have claimed West Suburban scoring championships since 1951. York's Don Anderson copped the 1954-55 title with a 20.8 per game average and Maine's Jon Nelson hit 267 points for the 1955-56 title.

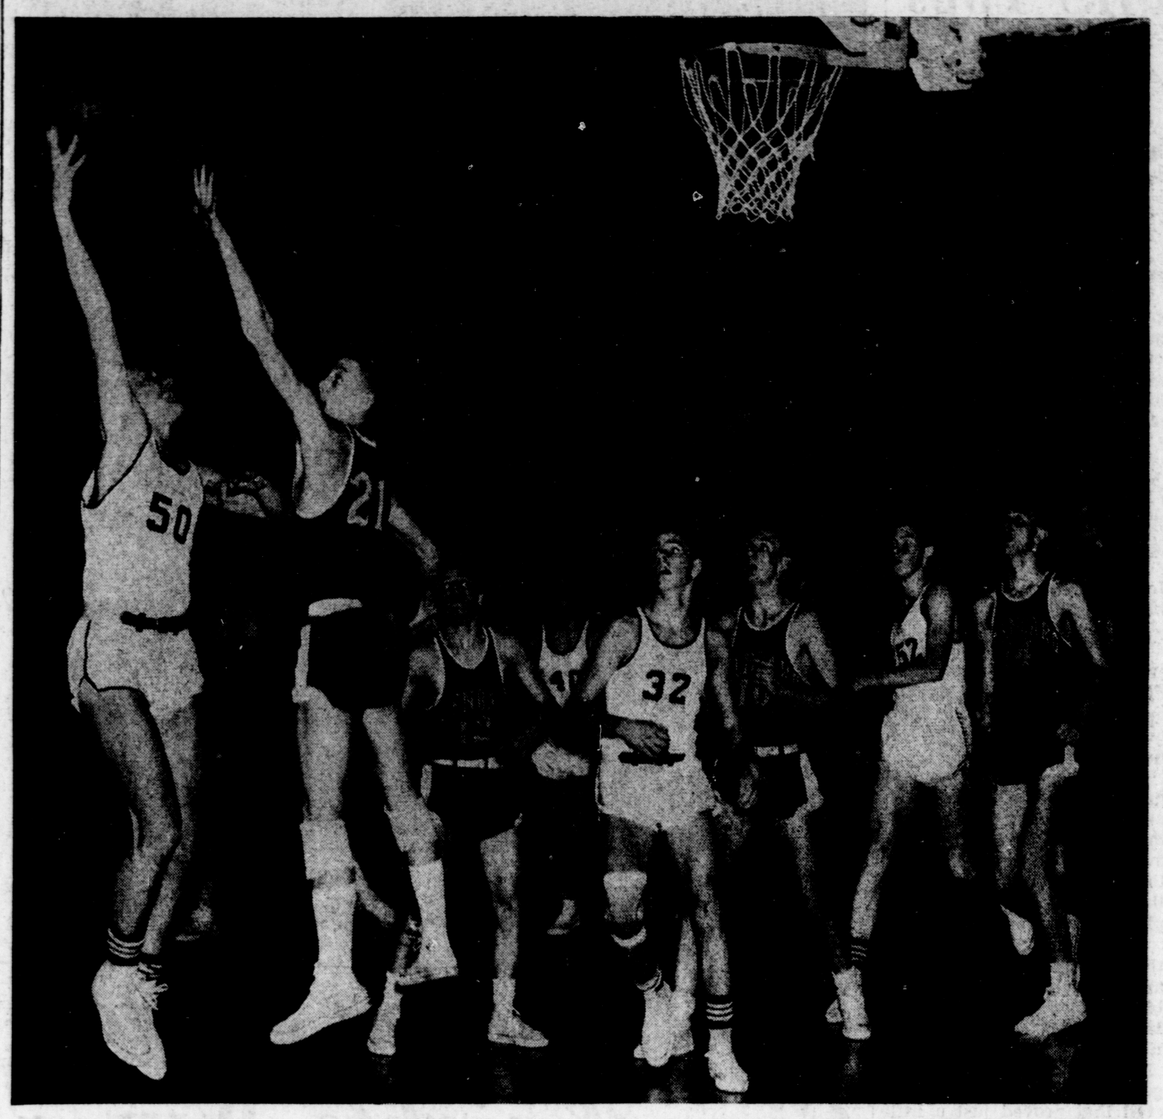
As expected, centers have ruled the loop scoring races. Riverside's Wolz won the 1951-52 crown and then LaGrange's Ted Caiazza captured the titles for the next two seasons. Riverside's Rich Jarom won the honors last year.

Caiazza, the 6-8, 230-pounder who led LaGrange to a state title, holds all the West Suburban scoring records. In three years on the varsity he netted 888 points for a 21.1 per game average. He averaged 28.1 per tilt in 1953-54 and his 394 points stand as a league record.

The mark of 300 points in league action has been eclipsed only three times and Caiazza did it twice. In addition to his 394 point season, he also collected 313 as a junior. Hinsdale's Ron Hain hit 326 in 1953-54.

Does Bork have any chance for a conference scoring record? Well if he averages 41.2 points per game for the rest of the league season, he'll have the new mark.

But don't hold your breath!



THIS FIRST PERIOD hook shot attempt by Arlington's Ross Retterer (50) failed to find the mark in the Cards' 59-34 frosh-soph loss to Glenbard West last Friday evening. Attempting to block Retterer's shot is Glenbard's Walt Larson (21). Other cagers watching the action unfold are Arlington's Chuck Close (32), Rusty Blix (52), and Bob Laughlin (40), and Glenbard's Brian Farney (32), Tom Wingader (12), Kent Fairfield (10), and Dave Muller (14).

Riverside, York On Weekend Slate

by BOB FRISK

Hoping to pick up where they left off Friday evening, Arlington's improving Cardinals will engage in their final double bill of the West Suburban season this weekend with clashes against Riverside and York.

Coach Frank Bohac's Cards, fresh from an impressive victory over a strong Glenbard West aggregation, will journey up to R-B Friday and then return home for a Saturday evening encounter with Dick Haselton's Dukes.

George Bork, Bob Inman, and associates are determined to prove that the current hardwood revival at AHS is something more than just temporary relief from what has been anything but a successful campaign.

THE CARDS exhibited the drive and desire against Glenbard which Bohac hopes will provide the impetus for a late-season rush. Arlington could surprise a lot of clubs if it continues to play the basketball displayed on the AHS floor last Friday.

Bork put on one of the top individual performances ever witnessed in the Arlington gym as he poured in 35 points, two shy of the varsity mark. Inman contributed 18 valuable points and Gene Dahlquist registered the deciding basket with seven seconds remaining.

Bohac inserted Junior Jim Clabaugh in the starting alignment against Glenbard and although the 6-3 performer suffered obvious first game jitters, he still collected five points and showed some strength on the boards.

IF ARLINGTON is going in the right direction, the weekend action could prove to be beneficial—both in prestige and in the record. The Cards are shooting to move above the .500 mark for the campaign and a double victory would put them at 8-9 overall and 5-6 in the conference.

Although Riverside hasn't been burning up the league, Coach Chuck DeWild's club is still capable of causing some trouble. The R-B mentor has a front line that averages a shade over 6-4, but the trio of performers hasn't boasted any consistent scoring punch.

Two juniors, Bob Schmidt and Tom Gard, have been the Bulldogs' top scorers in WSC play with 118 and 99 points respectively. Gard only played briefly in the 65-37 loss to Arlington but has been the squad's top scoring threat in recent contests.

Other probable Riverside starters with conference point totals in parentheses include Glen Hess (37), Ed Custer (52), and Gary Krogh (31).

Riverside's four victories this season were over Downers Grove, Proviso West, Elmwood Park, and Joliet Township.

Cardinals To Host Dukes

If the first game between Arlington and York was any indication of how the second battle will develop, AHS fans are in for a hardwood spectacle Saturday evening.

Coach Dick Haselton will bring his Dukes into the Arlington gym for a West Suburban encounter with Frank Bohac's Cardinals and there should be plenty of fireworks.

Arlington played one of its best games of the 1959-60 campaign in dropping a 69-63 loop affair to York with George Bork and Bob Inman combining for 45 points, Bork collecting 26.

IT TOOK a brilliant relief performance by 6-5 Jim Bolin to give the Dukes their six-point win over Arlington. Bolin came off the bench to counter nine points in the final three minutes.

Although Bolin didn't start in the first meeting between the two clubs, Haselton plans an opening with him Saturday.

"He's turned into one of our best scorers," the York mentor commented, "but we're going to lose him before the tourneys roll around. He turns 19 before we catch Hinsdale."

OTHER PROBABLE York starters Saturday are Jim Long at a forward, Bill Wendt at center, and Chuck Adams and John Coughland at the guards.

"Fouls trouble has hurt us in our last two games," Haselton added. "Wendt picked up four quick ones in a quarter and a half against Glenbard and Long fouled out with 6:35 to go in that loss."

Adams is the squad's top scorer in WSC play with 114 points. Long has chipped in with 110 and Wendt has 103 although he has only produced six in the last two contests.

Prospect on Road Friday; Tests Winless Willowbrook

Prospect may be looking toward that Feb. 11 clash with unbeaten East Leyden, but the once-beaten Knights can't overlook Friday evening's Interim association encounter at Willowbrook.

A look at the season records of the two clubs would indicate that Dick Kinneman's Knights are a heavy favorite for Friday's clash.

And they are!

PROSPECT has only one defeat in 14 games in the 1959-60 campaign while Jim Toman's Willowbrook Warriors are winless in 14 contests.

Prospect easily handled Willowbrook in the first meeting, 67-40.

But over-confidence has been the undoing of many strong clubs, and Prospect has to approach tomorrow evening's contest with the realization that Willowbrook has everything to gain and nothing to lose. The Warriors are expected to lose!

THE VILLA Park school gave East Leyden a better battle than anticipated and was only down by six points at halftime. "We're starting to play better defense," Toman reports, "and it's possible Dick Janssen will be back for Friday's game. He's been sidelined for about six weeks with a severe ankle sprain."

Janssen was Willowbrook's top scorer in the loss to Prospect and his absence has handicapped the Interim squad.

At Willowbrook

Prospect (14-1)		Wllowbrk (0-14)
6-3 Pomey	F	Teed 6-1
5-10 Empkie	F	Borneman 6-2
6-3½ Zadel	C	Rau 6-2
5-9 Lussow	G	Offill 5-10
5-9 Grams	G	Whitehrn 5-10

TIME
Frosh-soph game, 6:45 p.m., Friday.
PLACE
Willowbrook high school.
COACHES
Prospect, Dick Kinneman; Willowbrook, Jim Toman.

Toman plans to operate with one freshman and one sophomore in his starting alignment Friday. Gene Whitehorn, a 5-10 soph, is drawing plaudits for his defensive work and Bill Borneman, a 6-2 frosh, has been an aid to the offensive attack.

BORNEMAN netted 18 points in his first varsity assignment after he was elevated directly from the plebe unit.

Ron Rau is the Warriors' key man offensively, and the 6-2 senior has a season high of 36 points collected against Libertyville. Rau holds down third in the Interim association scoring chase but was handcuffed by Prospect's Fred Empkie in the first meeting between the two schools.

Prospect's Kinneman plans no lineup changes with George Pomey and Empkie at the forwards, Bill Zadel at center, and Keith Grams and Fred Lussow at the guards.

KINNEMAN passed out plaudits to Zadel for two impressive performances last weekend in the wins over Proviso West and Maine West. Zadel provided the squad with the offensive lift in two crucial situations as Prospect rolled to its thirteenth and fourteenth victories of the campaign.

Pomey was the Knights' offensive leader in the initial win over Willowbrook with a 17-point evening and Lussow added 14. Prospect opened up with a big first period lead, then coasted home for the 67-40 triumph.

Ticket Policies

Prospect high school students will be allotted 800 tickets for the Feb. 11 cage clash with East Leyden, Athletic Director Howard Lester announced this week.

The PHS gymnasium seats 1500 people but because of the importance of the game with East Leyden, Lester set up some policies regarding tickets.

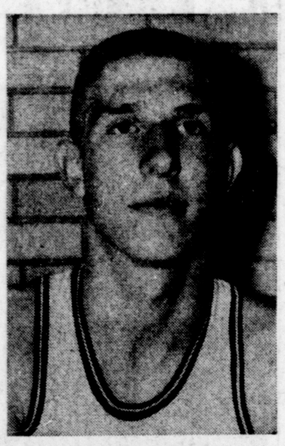
The 552 students with student books out may redeem their tickets for admission either Friday, Feb. 5, or Monday, Feb. 8, at the school.

In addition, East Leyden fans will be given 400 ducats for the clash.

Adults will receive a limited number depending on the response by students at the two schools, and the adult tickets will be available next Tuesday at the main office of the school after 8:30 a.m.

Members of the Prospect Booster Club may purchase two tickets for each Booster family at the adult sale.

Bork Hits 35, Takes WSC Lead



GEORGE BORK

Arlington's George Bork vaulted into the West Suburban conference scoring lead last weekend with a brilliant 35-point performance against Glenbard West.

Bork's performance, the highest individual effort of the conference campaign, boosted the 6-1 senior into a 14-point margin over runnerup Marty Riessen of Hinsdale.

Riessen collected 13 baskets against Downers Grove and now holds second by three points over the Trojans' Bill Miller, the former loop leader.

Sixteen West Suburban cagers are averaging better than 10 points per loop game, three each from Hinsdale and York.

Gil LaCroix and Bob Brown gained berths in the Boys Open Age group swimming test at LaFollette Park in Chicago last Saturday.

LaCroix finished second in the 100 yard breast stroke, third in the 100 yard free style, and fifth in the 160 yard individual medley.

Brown gained a fifth place in the 100 yard butterfly.

Arlington, Proviso East Gym Meet Highlights Week

Arlington and Proviso East, generally regarded as the top gymnastics powers in the state this season, will hook up a dual meet Saturday afternoon in the highlight of the week's athletic programs at both AHS and Prospect high schools.

Coach Gay Hughes' defending state champion Cardinals will host the Pirates at 2 p.m. with a large crowd expected to witness the meet.

Arlington won the stiff Northern Illinois Invitational last month but Proviso East finished in the 1959 state gymnastics meet.

WITH THE state meet about a month away, Saturday's battle in the Arlington gym will afford both schools a chance to appraise their respective strength against top-flight competition.

In addition to this gymnastics spectacle and the varsity and frosh-soph basketball games during the coming week, several other athletic highlights are on the docket.

Arlington's varsity wrestlers will be shooting for their second straight conference win when they host Riverside-Brookfield Friday evening at 7 p.m.

BOB EMMONS' Cards have shown marked improvement in recent meets, handling Glenbard West after a near-miss against a highly-regarded Maine West unit.

Comparative scores don't yield much in the way of evaluating mat teams but in recent meets Riverside has fallen to Downers Grove, 25-15; York, 30-13; and Maine East, 26-13. Arlington lost to York, 23-15; Downers Grove, 20-18; and Maine East, 32-10.

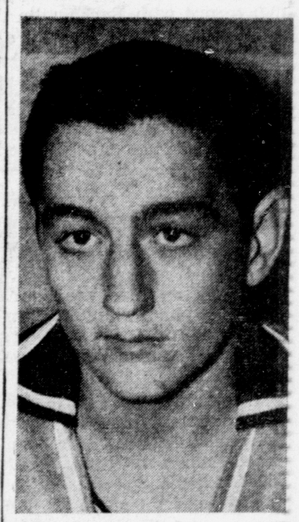
DICK MUDGE'S Prospect grapplers will take on a Willowbrook squad which decisioned the Knights in the first meeting, 25-17. The meet is slated for 4:30 p.m. Friday afternoon.

In considering the Knights' loss to Proviso West last week, Mudge asserted, "You can't win if you don't wrestle!" The Panthers won, 23-17, whereas Prospect had copped the first meeting between the two schools, 27-23.

RICK FARRIS' Prospect varsity gymnasts will host Willowbrook Friday at 7 p.m. with Jack Murray's frosh-soph aggregation also on the card.

Frosh wrestlers at both schools will perform Saturday with Arlington at Waukegan at 10 a.m. and Maine West at Prospect at 9:30 a.m.

Prospect's junior-varsity and frosh cage units have a pair with Willowbrook Saturday and Glenbard East Monday and Arlington takes on Riverside and Notre Dame.



BILL ZADEL turned in two impressive performances for Prospect's Knights last weekend. The 6-3½ center cashed in nine straight points in the third period of the win over Proviso West and came back with another surge of nine straight markers against Maine West. Zadel collected 29 points for the weekend, topping Prospect on both evenings.

Bork's 35 Paces Cards' Victory

MAC SAYS

by G. A. McELROY

FOUR GAMES REMAIN IN the North Suburban cage race with four teams in contention. After a double weekend, Libertyville's streak was ended as the Wildcats lost twice to drop out of the race with a 5-5 record. Zion-Benton and Crystal Lake won twice to remain just one game behind Barrington and McHenry, tied for the lead. Barrington's terrific scoring of the weekend, to us, means that the Bronchos are not going to be checked the rest of the season. They tallied 91 at Palatine and 107 against Woodstock. The 170 was eight points shy of Crystal Lake's 115 points in 1952. Dundee lost a one pointer and a 3 point overtime tilt to drop to 4-6. The Cardunals have lost three games by one point plus one by an overtime and with a few breaks could have been on top instead of residing in sixth place.

This week McHenry, the defending champ, takes on tough Zion-Benton. McHenry has been squeezing out close decisions to stay on top with Barrington. We think they are about running out of luck and pick Zion to drop them this week. Barrington should get revenge for its defeat at the hands of Libertyville, Crystal Lake will hammer Woodstock, and Dundee must be accorded the edge over Palatine but the game may be close.

Upsets In Suburban Area This Week

THERE WERE SOME upsets around the suburban area this past week as St. Charles upset Geneva in the Little Seven, and Thornton knocked off leading Argo in the South Suburban. It was the first defeat of the season for both. Argo is now tied with Kankakee. Joliet Catholic was knocked into a tie in the Suburban Catholic circuit by losing to last place Marmion. Evanston's tie with East Proviso lasted only one week as Proviso East really clobbered the Wildkits, 73-49. Waukegan and Highland Park split during a double weekend and dropped three games off the pace. Antioch won both Friday and Saturday and so did Warren. Antioch is unbeaten in the Northwest loop and Warren's lone loss was to the Antioch Sequoits. LaSalle Peru and Elgin are tied for the Big Eight lead. Sandburg gained in the Southwest Suburban as Homewood dropped Rich out of contention. Hinsdale whipped strong Downers Grove, 80-57, and is ready to clinch the West Suburban. York took over second by beating Maine. Arlington played greatly improved ball to edge Glenbard. North Chicago beat Fenton and has the Tri-County sewed up. East Leyden is still leading Prospect by one game in the interim Association with a rematch of these two coming up soon.

Regional pairings are announced. Porspect No. 1 and West Maine No. 4 are playing Maryville No. 8 and Niles No. 5 in the upper bracket. This should assure Prospect of a semi-final berth. We think their opponent will be Niles. In the lower bracket, East Maine rated No. 2 meets Palatine No. 7 and Arlington No. 3 meets Glenbrook No. 6. An Arlington-Maine semi-final would be a real drawing card. The way it looks to us the final will be Prospect versus Arlington or East Maine and we like to think their opponent will be Arlington.

Any Wonder Why Ohio State's on Top

RON KOZLICKI, Palatine's 6-5½ frosh center, tallied 26 points in a 53-42 loss to the Crystal Lake frosh-sophs Saturday. Dick Erlenbaugh of Immaculate Conception of Elmhurst scored 41 points as his team nosed out St. Edward in the Catholic League Saturday. The IC team lost its first 3 league games by one point and then won the fourth by one point. . . . Leyden will be the favorite when the state district wrestling tournament is held at Palatine February 12-13. . . . Palatine's big chance to get into the victory column in North Suburban basketball is when Woodstock comes to town and that game has been moved back to Thursday, February 11, the night before Lincoln's birthday holiday, due to the district wrestling tourney. . . . Anyone who watched the TV game Saturday, won by Ohio State 111-79 over defending champ Michigan State, can have little doubt of who will win the Big Ten title. This Saturday TV has Ohio at Northwestern. . . . As host to the state regional basketball tourney, Palatine invited head coaches, athletic directors, and principals of the competing schools to a dinner meeting to plan the tournament. There was 100 per cent attendance including Al Willis, Secretary of the Illinois High School Association, and his first assistant, Milt Sprunger. The tourney will be held five nights this year with each semi-final game held on a different night. Palatine is planning for a record attendance for a tourney held in this regional area.

Twenty Years Ago

BARRINGTON HAD BEEN beaten only by Palatine. Bensenville had not won a conference game. Results: Bensenville 38 Barrington 36 as Lennie Baumgartner scored 23 points for the Bisons. Palatine topped Northbrook, 30-19, as Snyder and Hahnfeldt dropped in nine a piece. Wauconda lead the league with 6-1 records. Crystal Lake has won eight in a row in the Northeast Conference and Saturday defeated undefeated Dundee of the Little Seven 42-38. Rockenbach scored 22 for Coach Njaa's Laker's. As Hebron has 18 wins, including one over Crystal Lake, the regional looms as more of a test than Coach deLacey of Dundee had expected. Ed Mueller and Art Miller each scored 10 as Arlington hit 33 per cent from the field and bested Warren 36-28.

Ten Years Ago

BARRINGTON IS nearing the Northwest clincher with a 10-0 record with Bensenville the latest victim. Palatine held on in second place 7-3 with a win at Wauconda. York leads the West Suburban, Morton the Suburban, and Argo the South Suburban. The Big Eight is the strongest prep cage loop in the state this year and may send 3 teams to Champaign. West Aurora is rated second in the Illinois ratings this week. Crystal Lake has clinched the North Suburban crown.

PHS Tops Another Stall!

by TOM McSHANE

Some fellows just never learn.

The Prospect Knights have spent seven of their last eight conference basketball quarters trying to convince the Interim association that it just doesn't pay to play stalling ball against them.

Two weeks ago the Knights went down to the final buzzer facing a Glenbrook stall. They beat the Spartans handily, 27-19, and it looked like that might be proof enough.

But Proviso West's Coach Joe Hartley apparently wasn't satisfied.

LAST FRIDAY his Panthers took to the floor of the Foundry rd. gym, and put the ball on ice for three more quarters before becoming believers.

When they finally opened up they were trailing 22-8, and had little hope of turning the tide, and when it was all over the Panthers took home to Hillside a 42-26 pasting that left them all alone in fifth place in the association.

The Knights maintained their second place ranking, and had a nice rest for their big non-conference clash with Maine West last Saturday night.

PROVISO West opened the game with a three minute stall that proved just a little more effective than Glenbrook's. With six minutes gone in the quarter the Panthers had a 4-2 lead on Al Ortt's two driving layups from the corner.

But the Knights came back to take a 6-4 lead at the quarter, and were never headed after that.

The Panthers did not score another field goal until the final minute of the third quarter when they dropped the stall and scored four points in 40 seconds.

PROSPECT, meanwhile, plugged away at the Panther passing and dribbling game, breaking up plays and blocking shots. George Pomey, who had been faked by Ortt for the two early buckets, pushed three more attempts down the scrappy forward's throat, and big Bill Zadel, whose shooting eye was off early in the game, was a workhorse under the boards.

The Knights limited their opponents to one free throw in the second quarter, and left the court with a 13-5 lead.

After the intermission, Zadel got hot and drilled nine straight points through the hoop to build the Prospect lead to 22-8 with 1:51 left in the third quarter.

After Hartley lifted his squad's freeze, the Knights outscored them 20-16 as Coach Dick Kinneman pulled his starting five in the closing minutes with a 41-18 lead.

Zadel led the Prospect scorers with 13 points. Pomey followed with 10. Harold Stott was high for the Panthers with 8. Ortt had 7.

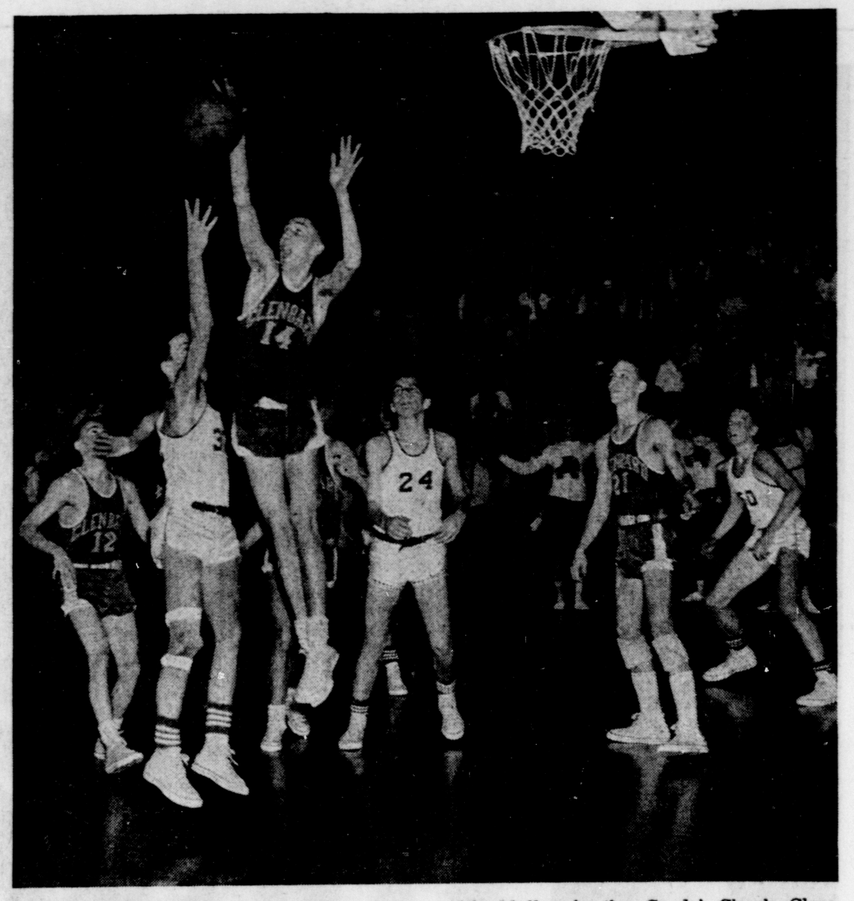
Beginning in 1961, Michigan State will play Illinois in the final game of each football season.



GLENBARD WEST'S Dave Miller (14) comes down with this rebound in the young Bards' 59-34 victory over Arlington's frosh-sophs last Friday. Battling with Muller is the Cards' Chuck Close with Don Kolstad (24) ready to give assistance.

Last Quarter Surge Gives Knights Win

by TOM McSHANE

The Prospect Knights got a taste of what lies ahead Saturday night as a scrappy Maine West team extended them to the limit before falling 59-54 under a last quarter surge.

The Knights will play in the same bracket as the Warriors at the Palatine regionals in March, and the Maine boys served ample notice Saturday that they will be no pushovers.

Maine jumped off to a handy 15-8 first quarter lead before Coach Dick Kinnemann's Knights could find their shooting eyes.

IT TOOK A six-point performance by reserve center Dick Palmer in the closing minutes of the first quarter second to bring the Prospect an dopening minutes of the five around.

From there they moved to a 31-29 halftime lead as Fred Lussow pumped through a 30-footer on the buzzer.

For the second night in a row big Bill Zadel opened the third quarter with a phenomenal, one-man, nine-point performance that boosted the Knights to a 40-32 lead with six minutes left in the period.

ZADEL CASHED in four baskets and a free throw in the two minute stretch, and it looked as though the big fellow might have broken the Warriors' backs.

But the Maine five took a time out with 5:33 left in the quarter, collected its wits, and came back with a crowd-pleasing rally of its own to tie it at 42-all as the buzzer sounded.

Fred Empkie took the tap opening the final period and hit an 8-foot jump shot to move the Knights ahead again. Baskets by Keith Grams, Lussow, and Zadel offset free throws by Keith Connolly and George Verber and a basket by Chuck Reid to give the Knights a 50-48 lead with 4:27 left in the game.

VERBER THEN hit a 20-foot left-hander and Bill Wegner tipped in a rebound to give the Warriors a 52-50 lead with 3:40 left.

This time, with the crowd tearing the roof off the Dempster st. field house, it was the Knights who asked for a time out.

The clock-stopping strategy worked; the Warriors cooled their heals; and the Prospect five came back with a seven point rally that put the game on ice.

Empkie tied it with two free throws at 3:21. Then George Pomey, who had had a bad night, came through with four more charity tosses and a layup to move the Knights out in front 58-52 with 1:15 left on the clock.

LUSSOW ROUNDED out the Knight scoring with a free throw after his team threw a full-minute stall on the Warriors.

Verber tallied the last Maine West bucket on a 20-footer just before the game ended.

Zadel, with 16, was high man for the night. Lussow had 11, and Grams had 10 for the Knights. Verber and Reid had 14 for the Warriors.

The win gave Prospect a 14-1 record for the season.

Tomorrow night the Prospect team travels to Villa Park to meet Willowbrook in an Interim association game. The frosh-soph match will start at 6:45.

Dahlquist Records Clinching Basket

by BOB FRISK

George Bork was the leading man but he had an able cast of supporting players last Friday evening as Arlington surprised Glenbard West, 69-67.

Gene Dahlquist delivered the winning basket, a 20-foot jump shot with seven seconds remaining.

Bob Inman added 18 points, six in the final eight minutes.

Rick Johnston and Jim Clabaugh combined for only 11 points, but both exhibited some impressive board strength with Clabaugh, a 6-3 junior, in his first starting assignment.

BUT WHEN the final return was in, it was the brilliant performance of Bork, a 6-1 senior, which stole the show.

Bork collected 35 points, 19 in the first half, and was splitting the net with driving layups, off-balance jump shots, and long 20-25 footers. He warmed up with nine in the first quarter, added 20 in the middle two periods, and wound up with six in the final eight minutes.

Arlington put together three strong quarters, then tapered off a little in the final eight minutes. But the Cards had enough when it counted and they walked off with their third conference win — and their most impressive triumph.

GOING INTO the final stanza, Arlington held a 55-47 lead, but Glenbard quickly cut that margin with baskets by Bob Early and Dennis Hansen.

Bork hit one of his specialties and the Bards' Dick Chandler matched that effort, setting the count at 57-53 Arlington.

Hansen, Glenbard's top scorer for the season, fouled out with 6:31 remaining and Bork connected on both of his efforts from the charity line. Sy Nelson and Bill Power put Glenbard back within two, 59-57, but then Inman registered two free throws and Bork another basket.

HOWEVER, the visitors weren't through and four free throws — two each by Finch and Nelson — moved Bob Metcalf's veteran Hilltoppers back within two markers of the hosts.

Inman gave the Cards a four-point bulge with a brace from the charity line, but Finch matched that with a two-pointer from the field.

That's when the cat-and-mouse game began. Arlington worked the ball around slowly but missed a shot and Glenbard took over, trailing by two, 65-63.

POWER, a transfer from Philadelphia, canned one to knot the count with 2:12 remaining and two free throws sent Glenbard ahead, 67-65.

A 12-foot jump shot by Inman sent the Cards back into a tie with 1:33 remaining, and when Glenbard failed to counter, Arlington took over with 1:01 on the clock and called a time out.

Frank Bohac's Cards played the cautious game, looking for that one shot, and with Bork bottled up by the Bards, Dahlquist delivered the clinching blow with seven seconds remaining.

Glenbard immediately called a time out but Chandler's shot rolled off and the Cards had a well-earned victory.

Jim Rybarczyk, young skating star of the Mt. Prospect club, has received an invitation to participate in the North American championships at West Allis, Wis., Saturday and Sunday.

Rybarczyk made his first start in a National event last weekend at St. Paul and was disqualified with two falls in semi-final races.

Dons Stand 12-5 For Season; Face Marmion Friday

by DAVE SCHLAVER

Notre Dame took to the air last weekend and flew past the St. Procopius Redwings and the North Chicago War Hawks. As a result, they moved into a tie for second place in the Catholic Suburban conference and put their season's record at a respectable 12-5.

Friday night the Dons will try to extend their victory streak to four in a row when they meet Marmion Military Academy of Aurora at home. They beat the Cadets 50-47 earlier this season. Game time is 8:30.

The Dons at present are in a second place tie with St. Edward of Elgin with a record of 4-3. Joliet Catholic leads the league with 4-2. Marmion, although not a serious contender with a 2-4 record, has proved to be a "spoiler" in its two wins, beating Joliet and St. Ed's.

LAST FRIDAY at Lisle, the Dons came from behind in the third period on a field goal by Bob Hammarley. They had trailed during most of the first half, by never more than five points. At half time the score was 42-39 in favor of the Redwings.

After Hammarley's basket, which made the score 53-52 in favor of the Dons, they gradually moved to a 66-59 advantage at the end of the third period.

Before the Redwings had a chance to score in the fourth quarter, the Dons led 71-59. Four baskets by Ed Bero helped close the gap but not enough as the Dons moved to an 82-78 victory, their second over St. Procopius this year. It also marked the first time the Dons had beaten St. Procopius on the Redwings' court in three years of competition.

THREE baskets by Hammarley enabled the Dons to take an 8-7 lead early in the first period against the North Chicago War Hawks. At the end of the first period they led 19-14.

The Hawks, aided by the sharpshooting of high scorer Alex Phillips were able to tie the score at 21-21, but could not take the lead. Just before halftime however, two more field goals by Phillips tied the score and gave North Chicago a 34-32 lead.

North Chicago again tied the score late in the third quarter at 45-45, but a basket by Bob Bachmann gave the Dons the two point lead.

BACHMANN scored ten more points in the final period as the Dons picked up bachmann scored ten more points in the final period as the Dons picked up a 74-60 victory. He was high scorer with 30 points. Having scored 28 the night before, he became two game high scorer for this season with 58 points.

It was Notre Dame's first win over North Chicago in three years of competition.

PHS Frosh Cagers Fall To Proviso

Tom Wingader, a starter as a freshman on the Glenbard frosh-sophs, tossed in 13 first half points with an effective shot from 20 feet out.

WHEN WINGADER calmed down in the final 14 minutes, his teammates picked up the slack. Four players collected at least two baskets in the final half.

Arlington was blanked from the field in the third quarter, hitting just six free throws, and the Cards piled up 12 fourth period points, 10 by reserve Vince Furlong.

Bards Tip Arlington's Frosh Five

Outscoring Glenbard in only one period, Arlington's frosh basketball unit bowed to the hosts, 42-25, last Saturday morning.

Coach Rog Steingraber's plebes fell behind at the outset and could never catch the young Bards. No player was able to score more than two baskets from the floor for Arlington with Ken Seeger's six markers topping the locals.

Dave Sell and John Weidner added five each for Arlington.

JUDO CLASSES have started at Arlington's Recreation Park. Initial workouts find instructor Mits Shioji demonstrating a maneuver on Richie Davis.

Skaters Urged To Register for Meet

Because mild weather prevented skating at Lions Park in Mt. Prospect during the past week, registrations for the novice meet on Feb. 13 were disappointing to Tom Cooper, park director.

Cooper urges youngsters in the various age groups to register so that attendance for the meet may be anticipated and proper plans may be developed.

Young skaters without previous club skating affiliations will be eligible and will be classified by age as follows:

WEE CLASS - under eight; Pony Class - under ten; Midget Class - under 12; Juvenile Class - under 14; Junior Class - under 16; Intermediate Class - under 18.

All winners, second, and third place finishers will receive awards furnished by the Mt. Prospect Park Board.

Some of the best young skaters developed in previous years are members of the Mt. Prospect, Pierce, and Northwest speed skating clubs. All youngsters who enjoy competition are invited to participate.

There is no entry fee and the youngster's regular skates will be official for the meet.

Prospect's Sophs In Weekend Split

Things looked better for the Prospect frosh-soph basketball team last weekend as the little Knights split a pair of thrillers.

Playing without the services of their high-scoring center, Tommy Thomas, the youngsters Friday night whipped Proviso West 38-35 to maintain their undefeated conference record, and then lost a close one Saturday evening to Maine West 40-34.

The absence of the dependable Thomas apparently brought the rest of the boys out of their previous lethargy. They played sound ball for the first time this season, and looked better even in defeat than they had in their six previous Interim association wins.

IN THE PROVISO West game the two teams came right down to the wire all tied up. The fourth quarter started with the little Panthers commanding a 28-27 lead. With 2:40 left they had stretched this lead to three points, at 34-31.

Then Doug Spaulding hit on two Prospect free throws, and, after Ed Silkaitis added another Panther point, Mike Francek tied it at 35-all with a 20-foot jump shot.

There were 11 seconds on the clock when Francek made it 36-35 with a charity toss to give the little Knights the victory. In the last 10 seconds Francek added another free throw when the Panthers were assessed a technical foul for taking an extra time out, and Dennis Mitchell made it 38-35 with a final charity toss.

FRANCEK LED the Prospect scorers with 19 points. Jim Hogarty and Spauding followed with eight apiece. Wayne Erdmann had 14 for Proviso West.

Saturday night the tables were reversed on the little Knights. This time they went into the final quarter with a one point, 31-30 lead, only to see Maine West's little Warriors wipe it out and win going away.

Led by Bruce Berlet, who got six important last quarter points, and Don Seagren, who boosted his team to a 34-33 lead with three minutes left on a nifty 25-foot jump shot, the Maine five outscored the little Knights 10-3 in the final crucial minutes.

BUT THE PROSPECT team looked very good in spots, especially during a hot, 18-point second quarter splurge that sent them off the floor with a 26-20 halftime lead.

Francek again led the scorers with 16 points. Hogarty, who played two fine floor games, trailed with seven. Berlet had 12 for the little Warriors.

Friday night Prospect journeys to Villa Park to take on Willowbrook in its eighth league clash. A win over the Warriors will assure the Knights of a tie for the conference crown.

Match Game Feature Feb. 13 At Wheeling's Jeffery Lanes

Hilton Shirts vs. Paddock Classic — that'll be the lineup next week Saturday, Feb. 13, at Jeffery Lanes in Wheeling when the outstanding Hilton Keglers take on the Paddock Classic Traveling League in the first of a series of match games.

Promoters of the Paddock loop are planning a series of such matches in this area to spread the fame of the local traveling league, as well as to raise funds for charity. Paddock Publications promotion department is cooperating in the venture, as is Bud Miller, owner of Jeffery Lanes. The match will start at 9 p.m. Feb. 13.

TEAM captain of the Hilston Shirts is Mo Schiffman, Illinois state singles championship in 1952, and a man who averaged 210 in last fall's National Team Match Game championships in Milwaukee. Mo is gainfully employed in the promotion department of AMF, in addition to leading his team to fifth place in that big event in Milwaukee.

Big four squads of that event were Budweisers and Falstaffs of St. Louis, Pfeiffers of Detroit and Hamms of Chicago. Hiltons, members of the Chicago All-Star league and Hilton Classic loop were just 80 pins short of that magic circle.

JIM STEFANICH is the boy wonder of the Hilton squad, all 17 years of him, with a 209 average last year. He was named Bowler of the Year in Joliet, and averaged 218 at Milwaukee tournament.

Frank Huspen, the outstanding left-handed bowler of the Chicago area, is also with Hilton. He is believed to be the only leftie seen on Chicago TV screens, and rates quite a following.

DICK RENCH is one of two of last year's Gary, Ind., all-star keglers, and averaged 219 for Hilton in Milwaukee, including two 279 games. Gene Rhoda will round out the squad, also hails from Gary, and averaged 210 in the national affair.

Paddock Classic loop, the league designed to give the highly rated bowlers of this area top flight competition all year, will be represented by Buck Perkins (203), Irv Hahnfeldt (197), Ed Duff (197), Casper Dewitz (196) and Tom Kouros (195).

March of Dimes will benefit from a collection to be taken at the match game, with funds to be turned over to Mrs. Edward Kloche, 245 E. Wayne, general chairman for the fund drive in Wheeling.

Tourney Titlists Official!

It's official!

Schmidt Construction won the Paddock men's bowling tournament, and Tire Terminal won the women's event.

Averages have been verified, computations checked and prize money totalled. All prizes and listing of awards for both tournaments were correct.

THE CHECKS went into the mail Friday, addressed to managers of the bowling lanes where the prize winning teams compete. League secretaries are currently picking up the checks from bowling managers and turning them over to team captains.

The ninth annual Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap bowling tournament is now history with the two large traveling trophies, plus the ten individual awards, given out this week.

SPONSORS of last year's two champions have received their permanent plaques too. Complete financial statement of the tournaments is reproduced elsewhere on this page.

Paddock Publications Promotion Director Bob Paddock extends his appreciation to bowling managers, league secretaries and team captains for their help in making the tournaments so successful.

Pentane Gas Hits 3081, Cops Two Classic Games

Martinetti's dropped two games to Pentane Gas in Paddock Classic traveling league Saturday night as the winners came through with a 3081 series, including an 1103 opener. Losing five from Barrington, but still leading the high-flying loop by three games, grossed 3041. Pentane won the opener 1103-1021, took the second 1075-999, and dropped the third tilt, 1021-903.

Seven of the ten men made the magic 600 circle with Casper Dewitz of Barrington, carrying the highest average for the two squads, missing by just one stick. Ernie Koche of Hoffman Estates carded a steady 235 and 684, Ed Duff of Niles shot 254 and 671, Al Walter of Arlington Heights 231 and 659, Ed Dudek of Barrington 243 and 635, Christ Pulos of Crystal Lake 621, Al Valentino of Rolling Meadows 234 and 610, and Don Bacon of Crystal Lake 236 and 604.

Advisor Has Cattle Book

Copies of the "1960 Beef Cattle Feeding Suggestions," one of the handiest pamphlets a cattleman can have, are now available at the Farm bureau, announced adviser Carl F. Mees.

This 25-page pamphlet is chockfull of information any cattle producer will need during 1960. It lists wintering rations, pasture rations and drylot fattening rations for different age groups of cattle. Even "emergency" rations are suggested.

Space and equipment needs and amounts of feed required for feeding programs are outlined.

In addition, the pamphlet gives answers to often-raised questions concerning hormones, pelleting, all-in-one silages and protein and liquid supplements.

THE PAMPHLET was prepared by University of Illinois livestock extension specialists H. G. Russell, G. R. Carlisle, D. E. Walker and T. R. Greathouse.

Farm adviser Mees said he would be happy to give a copy free of charge to anyone requesting it. The address is 201 N. Dunton st., Arlington Heights.

Dairymen may earn more money with fewer cows if they use a production record system to cull cows that aren't making a profit.

One of every three cows in Illinois does not produce enough to return a profit on the feed and labor she requires, according to Carl F. Mees, Cook county farm adviser.

Production records are the only sure way to cull. In 1958, all cows in Illinois produced an average of 7,050 pounds of milk. The average cow in Dairy Herd Improvement association test produced 10,265 pounds.

Mees pointed out that much of this increase is due to good culling with production records.

The question is often asked about planting rates of corn. Last year at the DeKalb experimental field, normal hybrids with a plant population of 16,000 per acre yielded 128.7 bushels per acre. When the plant population was increased to 24,000 per acre, the yield decreased to 120.7 bushels per acre. The increased planting rates produced a slightly higher lodging percentage as compared to the normal rate of 16,000.

In recent years there has been some publicity given to dwarf hybrids. Several inquiries have come to my office on how dwarf hybrids compare to normal hybrids. Again at DeKalb last year the dwarf hybrid yield was 107.8 bushels compared to 128.7 for normal hybrids. Until there is more research done with dwarf hybrids, they will not be grown to any great extent in Illinois.

PAUL SANDERS from Palos Park presented an illustrated lecture on Russia at the annual meeting of the North Cook Soil conservation district. He pointed out that the Russian people were quite eager to learn all they can about the American people, their customs and agriculture. Russia is being rehabilitated from the last war but it still has a long way to go. He said that the Russian people did not want war anymore than did our people. His opinion was that a great deal of good could be accomplished through exchange programs.

University of Illinois dairy research indicates that it is possible to shorten the gestation period in dairy cows by using selective breeding. Scientists point out that length of gestation is hereditary. With proper selection the period could possibly be cut by more than three days in one generation.

A new insecticide called Sevin looks promising for controlling earworm in sweet corn. Both sprays and dusts of Sevin were as good or superior to DDT or DDT and oil sprays in University of Illinois tests. As of this date its use has not yet been approved by the Pure Food and Drug administration.

ILLINOIS HOG producers can bring themselves up to date on new developments in swine research by attending the annual University of Illinois Swine Day, March 3.

Farmers who cannot drive to Urbana for this meeting can attend a meeting at DeKalb, March 17.

The Urbana program, March 3, begins at 8 a.m., with tours of the University swine farm, located on S. First st., Champaign. Visiting hog producers can see facilities and research programs in progress.

The formal program begins at 10:30 a.m. in the University Auditorium.

Ag Short Course Begins Monday

Enrollment for the University of Illinois winter short course in agriculture totals so far, reported Warren Wessells, short course supervisor. The 1960 short course dates are February 8 to March 18.

Animal Health No Place For Economy

Some hog producers are searching for ways to cut their cost, but M. R. "Swede" Johnson has a suggestion about one place where no compromise should be made with good management practices. Johnson is manager of Illinois Farm Bureau Serum association.

"Don't skimp on animal health practices. This is false economy because during a time of low prices it is very important that all good management techniques be used to save and market as many pigs per litter as possible," explained Johnson.

"Why should farmers take a chance of losing the advantage in more pigs saved by sleepless night at farrowing time — and then not immunizing at weaning time?" asked Johnson.

"BY trying to save on their animal health costs, farmers open the gate for disease to attack their herd and to cause them to lose some or all of their profit."

Widespread loss due to cholera occurred in unvaccinated herds in Illinois last year, Johnson added, as he noted that the sale of hog cholera vaccine by Illinois Farm Bureau Serum association was about 6 per cent less for the last three months of 1959 than it was for the same period of 1958.

GOOD management practices include good breeding, good feeding, good sanitation, and a good animal health program, he reviewed. "It is also false economy to try to save by not using a balanced ration. The temptation to feed corn alone is very strong but research shows that costs per pound gain on corn alone are much higher than when a balanced ration is maintained.

"The present low hog prices shold make farmers more determined than ever to follow sound management practices."

Rain, Dirt Boost Swine Dysentery

The stress of cold, rainy weather and crowding combined with poor sanitation makes swine a tempting target for vibrionic dysentery at this time of year, according to Dr. E. I. Pilchard, University of Illinois college of veterinary medicine.

Vibrionic dysentery, often called bloody flux or black scours, can strike swine at any age and at any time. It can spread quickly. It can kill large numbers of animals in a herd.

In newly infected animals, the dysentery droppings are watery and dark because of the presence of blood. In animals with advanced infections, the droppings are often black. Shreds of intestinal tissue are so sometimes passed.

DEATH LOSSES from vibrionic dysentery vary greatly. If it strikes while other infectious diseases are present, losses may reach 100 per cent. Usually, however, some swine die several days to two weeks or longer after the disease attacks. The remainder will recover, while a few may have been naturally immune and remained healthy throughout the attack.

Dr. Pilchard recommends that farmers review their sanitation and disease control programs to be certain that they are keeping all possible sources of contamination in mind. Not only may infected swine be the source of an outbreak, but apparently normal brood sows have been suspected of being carriers. In addition, contaminated pens, sheds, lots and pastures remain a source of infection for long periods after sick animals are removed.

To prevent and control vibrionic dysentery, farmers should avoid introducing new stock into a herd previously exposed to this disease, or onto areas recently vacated by infected animals. Herd additions from unknown sources or from sources with high animal traffic should be isolated two or three weeks in an area where drainage is away from the home herd.

IF VIBRIONIC dysentery does break out, healthy animals should be moved to clean surroundings. Continued circulation of infective material within the sick group can be reduced by placing swine on a floor that can be frequently and properly cleaned.

Careful attention to provide an adequate, clean water supply, a bland ration, such as soaked oats or rolled oats, and proper shelter will contribute to swine comfort, body resistance and recovery.

Recovered swine should not be retained as breeding stock. They are usually unthrifty. They are not immune to another attack of dysentery infection and may remain carriers and spreaders of the disease.

Early diagnosis and treatment by a veterinarian will pay for itself many times over by cutting losses, according to Dr. Pilchard. Immediate treatment of the infection reduces the severity of the attack and, along with supportive treatment, increases the chances for recovery of the affected swine. (Fm

'Sally,' Palatine Cow CompletesMilkRecord

A registered Guernsey cow Ideals Maytors Lady Sally owned by Charles J. Beranek Palatine, completed an official production record, according to the American Guernsey Cattle club.

This record was for 10,628 pounds of milk and 495 pounds of fat. "Sally," a senior 3-year-old, was milked two times daily for 305 days while on test.

This official production record was supervised by University of Illinois.

Weeds Biggest Crop Robber: Scientist

Weeds left growing in corn and soybean rows can rob a farmer of one-fourth his crop. That's what visitors at the Illinois Custom Spray Operators' school were told Thursday, Jan. 28.

In three years of research done by E. L. Knake at the University of Illinois, giant foxtail left undisturbed in corn rows cut yields by almost 23 bushels an acre. Clean plots with no weeds produced 93.5 bushels an acre. Plots where weeds were left growing in the row yielded only 70.6 bushels.

Clean soybean plots produced 38.5 bushels. The most heavily weeded plots made only 27.6 bushels — a drop of almost 11 bushels.

A poor cultivation job that leaves part of the weeds in the row also causes serious yield losses. When only one giant foxtail per foot of row remained, corn yields dropped 7 bushels an acre; soybeans dropped 1.7 bushels. Three weeds per foot reduced corn yields 8.5 bushels an acre and soybean 2.3 bushels.

IN THESE studies, cultural practices were similar to those used by farmers except that only the area between the rows was cultivated. The weeds were left growing in the rows and thinned to various stands.

In 1959, a study of yield losses from pigweed was started. The first year's results showed that just one weed every inch in the row would cut corn yields by 26 bushels and soybean yields by 17 bushels. Further tests are being planned with broadleaf weeds.

Giant foxtail has become a more noticeable pest in Illinois corn fields in recent years, Knake reported. The effective use of 2, 4-D to kill broadleaf weeds may have given giant foxtail, a grass weed, more favorable growing conditions.

NEW pre-emergence herbicides will effectively control giant foxtail. But they are much more expensive than the 2, 4-D used for broadleaf weeds. Illinois research shows, however, that a farmer can afford to spend $5 to $10 or more an acre for pre-emergence herbicides to get rid of giant foxtail.

Research also shows that adding fertilizer and letting the weeds grow is not the answer. Adding 240 pounds of nitrogen an acre on plots with both corn and weeds did step up yields from 80 to 100 bushels in 1958. But the nitrogen plots with no weeds produced 115 to 120 bushels.

In 1958 rain was plentiful. In 1959, when it was dry, no corn yield increase with nitrogen was obtained as long as weeds were present.

Three years' tests with weeds lead the Illinois agronomists to conclude that the only good weeds are dead ones. Even when the number of weeds seems small, a farmer can invest quite a little time in cultivating and in weed control chemicals and get a good return on his investment.

Donna Garland, 1317 N. Chicago, and her son, Johnny, recently spent a long weekend visiting with friends in Fairfax, Va., along, of course, with a side trip to the nation's capital. One of the highlights of this trip was the flight to Washington, D.C., the first for both Donna and Johnny. Moments they won't forget include viewing the White House, Washington monument and the visit to the tomb of the unknown soldier. Upon their return, they found that husband and father, Jack, had taken able care of the house and other Garland children, Karen and Debbie.

To brighten these dreary days, Dorothy Kirstein, 1310 Jo Lane, invited several neighbors, among whom were Phyllis Formhals, Mary Healy, Mary Lou Charleston and Edith Singer, to greet Helen Martin, the block's newest mother, at a "kaffee klatsch" Tuesday morning.

Friends and neighbors of Ray Knustman, 1309 N. Chicago, hope that he will soon return from St. Joseph hospital, Elgin, where he is now recuperating from surgery performed last Tuesday.

An afternon party was held February 2 at the home of Mary Ann and John Geer, 1515 Clarendon, in honor of their daughter, Nancy Jo, who celebrated her fifth birthday with many friends and playmates, among whom were Christine and Diane Henneman, Terry Trummer, Ellen Frisbie, Barbara Brown, Suzanne Burkhardt, Patricia and Colleen Coleman and Brad Parkin, as well as her sisters, Barbara Lee and Laura Jean, and former neighbor, Leslie Griffith, Northbrook. The children played games, indulged in ice cream and cupcakes, and went along home bearing a favor and the memory that the Valentine theme carried throughout made that event seem much closer.

WHILE HER husband, Victor, has been residing in their new home at 1266 N. Chicago, these past four months, it was only about 10 days ago, says Mary Lee Trumpy, that the rest of the family, which includes daughter, Mary Lee, 17, and son, Vic Jr., 15, was able to join him from their home in Beaumont, Texas. At that, the other daughter, Susan, has stayed behind so that she might continue classes at Lamar Technical college there. Mary Lee and Vic Jr. are presently enrolled at Arlington high school. The children, Leslie and Henry, remained at home with their maternal grandmother, Mrs. L. B. Wolfe, who resides with them.

SCENES OF THE Danube River, of the Rose Valley, and the peasant villages are a colorful part of the picture. Cities of Sofia, Plovdiv, and the new Soviet "model" city of Dimitrovgrad, which is only nine years old, show the metropolitan life of this country.

Registrations are now being accepted for the second half of the series, with five lectures remaining for the season. Following Wolff's Bulgaria film on February 9, there are four additional lectures on diverse and intriguing parts of the globe.

On February 23, Phil Walker's "Hong Kong" is scheduled; on March 15, Nicol Smith's film on "Scotland" will be featured, followed by Karl Robinson's "Finland," with the final film of the series on April 19, when James Metcalf narrates the scenes of "The West Indies."

The Adult Education office at Arlington High School will accept season registrations in advance, or on the night of the lecture at Prospect High School. Single admissions are also available for any single lecture. (ACM

Move to Merge Two School Districts

A move to consolidate Arlington Heights school district 25 and Wilson school district 24 to the north was launched this week with a report presented to district 24's school board by Hasbrook Civic Association's education committee.

Two-thirds of Wilson school's 431 enrollment comes from Hasbrook and Virginia Terrace subdivisions in Arlington Heights. The subdivisions, however, lie in school district 25 which offers only Wilson school on Palatine rd. to accommodate an ever increasing number of students.

The small size of district 24 also limits the services it is able to provide students in the way of counselors, special teachers, curriculum advisers, and plant facilities. In addition, the district has found it economically unfeasible to provide a kindergarten. This class is conducted privately by residents of the district.

CONCERNED over what appears to be increasing enrollment pressures with no hope of solution within the district, the education committee asked 24's board to pass a motion to meet with representatives of district 25 and Noble Puffer, county superintendent of schools to discuss consolidation.

The board noted that it had considered the possibility of consolidation for some time, and appointed a committee to review the education committee's report.

The education committee report, delivered by Ralph McGee, noted that both Puffer and George T. Wilkins, state superintendent of schools had been contacted, and favor the proposed consolidation.

"The number of school districts in Illinois has been reduced from 12,000 to 1,770 in the past 20 years in order to provide students with a better education," said McGee.

HE CITED the fact that the per capita expenditure on district 25 students was $415 last year compared with $338 for district 24 pupils. He expressed the fear that district 24 would be sending its students to Arlington high school with less preparation than other students.

A majority vote of both district's school boards could effect consolidation. Failing this, a majority of the voters in each district could do the trick at a referendum.

There is little doubt that consolidation would benefit district 24. A question that is sure to be asked, however, is what will it do for district 25. To this, McGee admits that there are few tangible assets that district 24 could offer in consolidation.

HE NOTES, however, that the people of Hasbrook are concerned with maintaining good schools and would enthusiastically support a consolidated district.

He further points out that while district 25's standards would not be lowered, district 24 students would be offered more, and "It should be the community's interest that all children receive the best education possible." (AF

Essen House Restaurant Purchased

The Essen House restaurant, 902 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights, has been bought by Loretta Cooper, owner of Loretta's restaurant, 101 N. Evergreen.

In the restaurant business in the village for 18 years, Mrs. Cooper said the Essen House will serve meals from 7 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. The menu and prices will be revised, she added. Cocktails will continue to be served.

PLANS ARE being considered to expand the basement into a banquet room.

Mrs. Cooper will continue to operate her downtown restaurant. Former owner of the Essen House, Oscar Craig, will continue to operate the adjoining motel.

Regional Tournament Pairings Announced

Huge Crowd Expected At Palatine

The long-awaited regional tournament pairings are out.

Arlington and Prospect and Maine East and West are in opposite brackets at Palatine.

Waukegan stacks up as having some of the roughest first round games and the newly formed East Leyden regional is expected to provide plenty of fireworks.

WITH THE announcement of the pairings by Albert Willis, Illinois high school association executive secretary, the five-night Palatine regional is expected to be one of the biggest drawing cards among the 60 regional centers throughout the state.

After first round games Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 29 and March 1, the Palatine regional is expected to get down to brass tacks.

Monday in the first game at 7 o'clock Prospect, No. 1 rated team at Palatine, will face Maryville academy of Des Plaines. In the second game, probably the most highly contested of the first round, Maine West and Niles will square off.

THE MARCH 1 games bring together Maine East and Palatine and in the second contest Arlington and Glenbrook.

The semi-finals, to be held March 2 and 3, are expected to pit Prospect against Maine West and Arlington against Maine East. The March 4 finals are anybody's guess in this tournament where rivalry and prestige are paramount.

Fenton high school drew Oak Park as its first round opponent at East Leyden where Proviso East is rated No. 1 and the host Eagles No. 2. Add Notre Dame to this tournament and it will be one of the tougher ones in the state.

AT WAUKEGAN, first round games will find Waukegan against Lake Forest, Zion-Benton against Warren, Evanston against North Chicago, and Highland Park against New Trier. Most likely this will be an all-Suburban league final.

District tournaments, which will start eliminating the first of 728 teams in quest of Springfield's state title, will be held Feb. 22-26.

The Palatine, Libertyville, Crystal Lake, and Waukegan regionals will feed their winners in the Arlington sectional March 9-11. The Arlington winner will advance to the super-sectional against the Chicago public league champion March 15 in McGaw fieldhouse on the Northwestern university campus in Evanston.

Linstrom Cops Third In 440 Race

Jack Linstrom, an Arlington Heights boy skating in his first year in competition, blazed his way into the Juvenile class picture by taking a third place medal in the 440 yard event last weekend in the Midwest Open at Oconomowoc, Wis.

Skating with the colors of the Mt. Prospect club, Linstrom performed with the poise of a veteran. He now teams with Jim Rybarczyk and Bob Grady to give the club strong Juvenile class representation for the coming events.

Sixteen local skaters made the trip to Wisconsin for the two day meet but showed the effects of the layoff due to mild weather.

Ford Motor Introduces New High-Styled Economy Auto

The Comet, newest automobile of Ford Motor company, brings high styling to the economy car field at a price lower than the "popular three."

The new car, with a longer wheelbase and smoother ride than other smaller cars, still is two to three feet shorter than standard size cars. It will go on sale at Mercury-Comet dealerships March 17.

"Although this date is six weeks away, dealer orders for the Comet already indicate a remarkably strong demand for our new car," said Ben D. Mills, Ford Motor company vice president and general manager of Lincoln-Mercury Division.

"Comet production will begin at the Lorain, Ohio, plant, February 15, and we have additional capacity at several other assembly plants if needed," he said.

COMET STYLING eliminates the stark utility car look. Its lines are smart, graceful and flowing. It is compact, but not stubby. The Comet is designed to suit the needs of a one-car family and seats six comfortably. Although it is priced with the new smaller cars, it has a longer wheelbase for a better ride, plus vacation-size luggage capacity.

The Comet has the clean styling of more expensive cars. Its horizontal anodyzed aluminum grille is flanked with dual headlights. Chrome ornamentation is limited to simple side strips which sweep back to the rear doors and then rise to meet the rear fender lines. In profile, the nearly flat roof ends in a clean angular line to the body, forming a wide, slightly curved rear window like some luxury cars. The "going away" view shows a wide rear window with extra visibility, canted oval taillights, and sturdy wraparound bumper.

Windshield posts have been designed to eliminate the hazard of bumped knees. Doors are wide for easy entrance and exit. Doors on the two-door sedan are 43 inches wide, giving exceptionally good entrance room for a car of this size.

THE COMET series is one of the widest in the new field. It includes a two-door sedan, a four-door sedan, a two-door station wagon, and a four-door station wagon. Each body type can be purchased either as a standard model or with optional trim which includes bright window moldings, contour seats, more luxurious upholstery, carpeting (in passenger cars), and bright trim door moldings.

In addition a Comet safety package is available which incorporates padded instrument panel and padded sun visors. Safety seat belts also are available.

Under its highly styled exterior, the Comet has a welded unitized body. The only bolt-on members are the front fenders which were designed this way for quick, cheaper replacement to reduce repair costs. The two and four-door sedans each has a 114-inch wheelbase, is 194.9 inches long (slightly more than 16 feet), 54.5 inches high and 70.4 inches wide. All models are powered by a 90 h.p six cylinder engine, located in front.

Because of weight savings of more than 1250 pounds, compared to a typical standard-sized car, the Comet gives excellent performance as well as fuel economy. A driver can expect to get up to 25 miles to the gallon with a Comet.

THE TWO AND four-door station wagons, built on a 109.5-inch wheelbase, are 191.8 inches long and have a roll-down rear window. As a safety feature, the tail gate can be locked so that it cannot be opened by children from the inside; the rear window also cannot be lowered from the inside.

Comet buyers have the choice of either a specially-designed three-sped synchro-mesh transmission or a two-speed automatic transmission. In both caes, the shift lever is mounted on the steering wheel column.

Each two-door and four-door sedan can seat a family of six and has a 26.6 cu. ft. vacation-size luggage compartment. Cargo space in the station wagon is 76.2 cu. ft., equivalent to a closet eight by five by nearly two feet deep.

"Living space" in the Comet is ample. The front seat passenger has 38.9 inches of headroom; the rear seat passenger has 37.6. Leg room in front is 44.6 inches. Rear leg room is 40.1 inches. Shoulder room is 55.2 inches for both seats. Unitized construction makes it possible to have these generous passenger dimensions within a car that is only four and a half feet high and less than six feet wide.

The Comet employs ball joint suspension in front and leaf springs with butyl liners in the rear for a big car ride. Special use of rubber spring mountings reduce the transfer of road noises into the passenger compartment. Also adding to the Comet's exceptionally good ride is the combination of low spring rate, 114-inch wheelbase and light weight.

ALTHOUGH powered with an economical 90 h.p. engine, the Comet achieves excellent performance because of weight reduction and design simplification. Its engine, for example, is 32% lighter and has 122 fewer parts than sixes used in standard-sized cars. Compared with a typical standard-sized car, Comet transmission weight has been reduced by 45% and 100 pounds have been saved on the front and rear suspensions. Yet durability has been increased in many areas because of simpler design.

Because of its lighter weight the car has the feel of power brakes and power steering without the need for these assists.

In addition to the deluxe trim, optionals are heater and defroster, radio, tinted windshield, and in the station wagons an electrically operated tailgate window. Accessories include back-up lamps, rear view mirror, seat belts, glove box light and a station wagon luggage rack.

The Comet heater is simple to operate and gives precise control over inside temperatures. Passenger comfort is assured because the interior temperature can be maintained at 75 degrees when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero. (BB

SUBURBANITES IN THE NEWS

THE COMET, TO GO ON SALE at Mercury-Comet dealerships March 17, combines economy with tasteful styling. Although it is two to three feet shorter than the standard size cars, the Comet has travel room for a family of six and their luggage. All Comets—the two and four-door sedans and the two and four-door station wagons—are powered with a cost-saving six cylinder engine and are available with either automatic or manual transmissions. The car's 114-inch wheelbase, longest in the Comet's field, gives driver and passengers an excellent ride.

Attends Conference

Frank Santelli, 539 S. Ridge, Arlington Heights, was among 75 Illinois teachers who attended a regional instructional conference in Louisville, Ky., Jan. 27-30. The conference was sponsored by the National Education association and six state education associations in the midwest area. (BB

File Tax Return Promptly

Don't delay filing that Federal income tax return you just got in the mail — especially if you are one of the many millions who may have a tax refund coming.

For, the sooner you file, the sooner Internal Revenue Service can process your return and get your check to you.

That is the advice of Harold R. All, district director for the Chicago district. He added:

"If we have to give your return a pre-refund audit and thus delay your refund check, we will inform you of that fact by letter. But even in such cases, the earlier you file, the earlier we can get at your pre-refund audit."

All also has a couple of tips for early filers who want to receive their refunds as quickly as possible.

One is to make sure you don't omit any essential information in making out your return, such as your signature (and that of your spouse if it is a joint return), your Form W-2 reporting your tax withholding, and your address as legible as you can print it.

The other tip, All said, is not to write for a few weeks asking where your refund is. "If we have to stop to answer such letters," All said, "it will slow down the refunding process and delay your check that much longer."

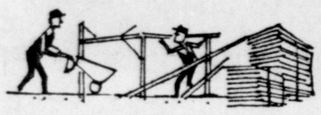
St. Paul Federal says...

"We're building for your youngsters too!"



Building Report No. 13 to shareholders and friends

Our liking for youngsters goes back to the very earliest St. Paul days. So naturally we've included the little folks in our plans for the big St. Paul addition now under construction.

Small-size teller window

Your child will have his or her "own" window for saving in our expanded lobby. It will be scaled down to size, permitting a youngster to transact business just like the grown-ups. We feel this will not only encourage your children to save, but also give them a personal purpose for accompanying parents on trips to St. Paul.

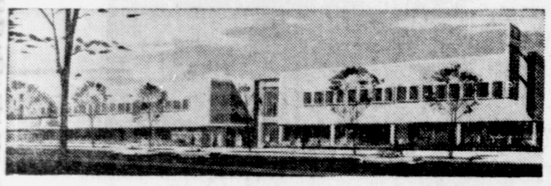
Supervised children's area

Imagine how nice it will be to have your small youngsters looked after while you attend to savings business at St. Paul. We'll have a supervised play area in our expanded quarters, a place where you may put a youngster and attend to your business with a carefree mind. There'll be ample books, toys and entertainment. Fact is, we are going to try and make it so attractive to youngsters that they'll beg you to visit St. Paul.

Drive-in service helps

Mothers with small babies will find our drive-in service handy, especially in bad weather. Our three drive-in windows will be completely under roof for easy and pleasant saving even during rain or snow. No need to bundle up the baby or risk a fall.

Yes, we're planning in a big way for you and your youngsters. More convenient features of our expanded headquarters will be discussed in our next report. Watch for it in your local newspaper.



It's your building... watch it grow!

Oak Park Federal Elects Directors

Members of Oak Park Federal Savings, Oak Park, re-elected Emily Bryant, John E. Mewherter and John L. Domeier to the Board of Directors for a 3-year term, Jan. 20 at the association's annual members meeting.

After the annual members' meeting, the board of directors elected the following officers:

John P. Domeier, president and chairman of the board of directors.

Percy E. Wagner, senior vice president and vice chairman of the board.

John L. Domeier, executive vice president and assistant secretary.

Frank J. Muriello, vice president.

Leonard W. Dodson, vice president.

Ernest T. Hoppe, vice president.

Robert L. Zeches, corporate secretary.

Ralph Bellon, treasurer.

President John P. Homeier also appointed George H. Braasch as general counsel, Edward Slivovsky as assistant vice president; Edward Ryan as assistant vice president; and Clark Eldridge as assistant treasurer at the same meeting, which was held in the Oak Park Federal office.

In his address to members, Domeier reported year-ending total resources up 25 per cent over the previous year, to $104,341,076.00, and net savings gain the greatest in the firm's history. He said, "It should also be pointed out that 9,461 new savers joined our family of savers.

"For the year 1959, earnings paid to savers, at the rate of 3¾ per cent per annum, totaled $2,628,696.00. The rate paid on savings has been increased steadily since 1950 and, beginning January 1, 1960 as has been announced, we propose to again increase the rate to 4 per cent."

And about the coming year, Domeier said, "The outlook for business generally in 1960 is for a slow but solid recovery from the adverse effects of the steel strike, with the recovery likely to be relatively slow until about mid-year, but gradually picking up momentum thereafter.

"There is every indication that consumers will again be spending at a fairly good rate; that personal incomes might advance to new highs; and that consumer purchases most likely will expand. It would appear . . . that despite some uncertainties, the year 1960 should prove to be one of the best business years of the post-war period.

"The outlook for Oak Park Federal in 1960 appears quite favorable. Our volume of home mortgage business has been expanding, and savings inflow, plus loan repayments —the two major sources of home financing funds — should continue to maintain current levels, or perhaps expand. (BB

Bulldozers Destroying Priceless Treasures

Priceless treasures are being destroyed every day across the nation.

These are the living antiques — rare greenery, bulldozed into oblivion on old properties to make way for new buildings and housing projects. H. J. Rice, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., says builders and estate owners can often change this waste of green gold from outright loss to modest profit by a simple expedient.

Let the tree man, nurseryman or landscape contractor look over the sites before the wrecking crews are turned loose. In most cases these horticultural gems are too old or too big for transplanting but finds of excellent usable material are not uncommon. Someone may be searching for the very plant you plan to destroy. Any of these authorities know which woody relics have outlived their usefulness and which should be movable.

By alert scouting, Davey experts recently rescued a saucer magnolia and a Franklinia, both considered prizes, on an old property in central Ohio. The Franklinia is one of the rarest trees and no longer grows in the wild here. The tree men also arrived in the nick of time to snatch a prized group of large evergreens from watery graves. These were dug up from the bottom of a future lake during construction of a city reservoir.

Occasionally existing horticultural specimens can be fitted into the new landscape scheme making them the center of attraction. But the condition of such trees should be carefully considered before planning is crystallized.

A LOG CABIN

Another fireplace in the 62-ft. basement makes you WANT to be King of this palace. $37,500.

A DOGS LIFE

is much more enjoyable when he has a place to run and romp without danger of getting loose and into TROUBLE. A completely fenced yard like the one with this 4-bedroom split-level will make your pet pant with joy. (can also be used for children without alterations). EDWIN L. SHAW (right) of 558 Grosverner lane, Elk Grove Village, was recently honored for leading all assistant managers in the North Central Region of the New York Life Insurance Company for 1959. Presenting the award is A. Charles Reali, general fanager of the Park Ridge general office. Shaw joined the New York Life's Park Ridge office as an agent in November of 1956, and entered management in November 1958.. He has continuously qualified for the Company's production clubs and is a National Quality Award winner.

Grow Flowering Bulbs in Winter

Flowering bulbs that grow in your home are sure to brighten dreary winter days. and the fun you'll have raising these flowers is as cheering as the blooms themselves.

G. M. Fosler, University of Illinois floriculturist, says and amaryllis bulbs are easy to grow to provide those welcome touches of color during the winter.

Plant paper-white narcissus bulbs in a low bowl, pebbles, sand, colored shells or coarse gravel. A clear glass bowl is particularly desirable as a planter for easy checking of the water line in the bowl.

ANCHOR THE BULBS, allowing the top half or one-third to extend above the planting medium. For best display, plant as many bulbs as the bowl will hold. Do not let them rest on the bottom of the bowl.

Keep one-half inch of water in the bowl just below the level of the bulbs.

Set the narcissus in a well-lighted place at a temperature of about 60 degrees Fahrenheit during the growing period. If the bulbs are kept at room temperature, they will grow too fast to develop a good root system and will die before they bloom.

Amaryllis bulbs, unlike narcissus, should be planted individually in pots. Allow an inch of space around the bulb. Let the upper half of the bulb show above the soil line. Keep in a room at 60 degrees to 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

GIVE THE BULBS plenty of light, and maintain a medium moisture level in the soil at all times. Avoid a waterlogged condition.

Flowers up to 7 or more inches in diameter will be your reward, and only a few weeks after potting. A top-grade bulb should produce two flower stalks with at least four flowers on each.

Paper-white narcissus are good for only one blooming period. But with proper care amaryllis will rebloom year after year.

You can get these bulbs at most florists, garden centers and dime store plant counters. Buy only top-quality, flowering-sized bulbs. Avoid bargain offers. (BB

More Youths Registering With Local Draft Boards

Selective Service local boards in Illinois acquired a heavier workload of registrants in 1959 as compared with the previous year, according to a year-end summary released by Willard A. Manning, State Director of Selective Service.

An average of 5,630 young men reaching age 18 registered each month throughout 1959, compared with 5,400 monthly in 1958. This reflected the rising birth rate in 1941 over 1940. At the year's end Illinois boards had 1,179,197 registrants on their rosters, representing a vast inventory of military and essential civilian manpower.

During 1959, 7,162 Illinois youths were inducted, all into the Army, making a total of 163564 inducted into the armed forces in this State since the outbreak of the war in Korea. In addition, the local boards were responsible for an even larger number of so-called voluntary enlistments into all the armed forces, according to Manning. He explained that thousands of youths who would not otherwise have enlisted were prompted to do so by the knowledge that their induction was near. By enlisting they had their choice of services.

Men inducted in 1959 were mostly 23 years of age and over, Manning said. Illinois boards supplied 7.4 per cent of all men inducted throughout the nation. Boards in Cook County delivered approximately half of the State's total. Nearly 7,000 additional men were physically examined to determine their acceptability for military service and approximately 60 per cent were found acceptable.

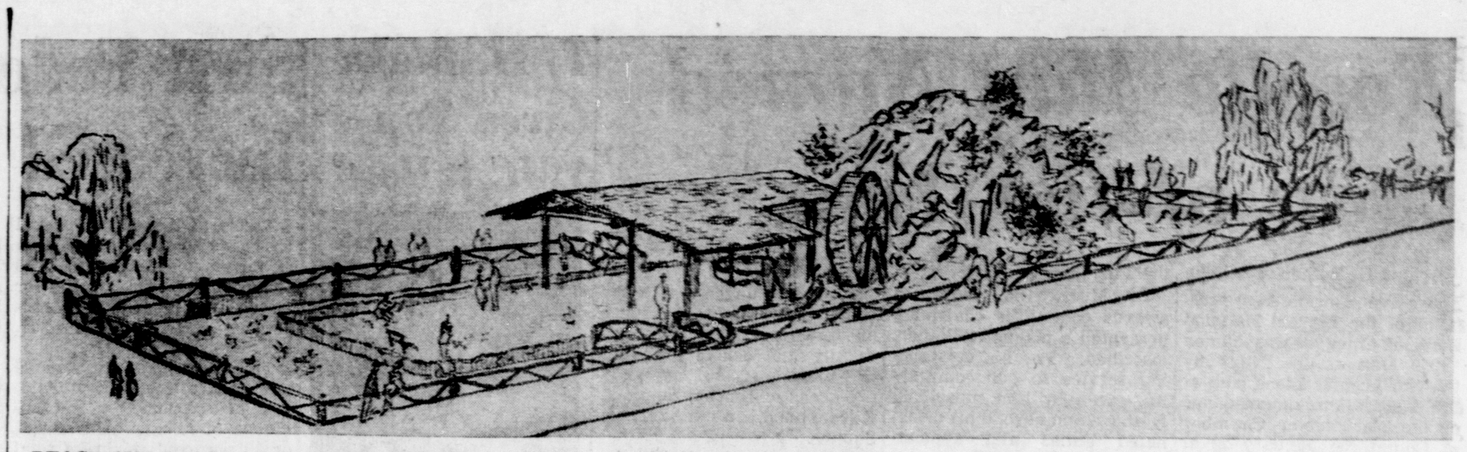
Another important function of the boards was the management and monitoring of the Standby Reserve of all the armed forces. Selective Service boards are responsible for determining the availability of each standby reservist for order to active duty in time of war or national emergency declared by Congress. At the year's end Illinois boards had determined the availability of approximately 100,000 reservists, of whom 42,000 were declared available in the event of need. Others were found not available because essential civilian occupation or hardship to dependents.

At the end of 1959 the 217 local boards and seven appeal boards in Illinois were manned by more than 2,000 volunteer members patriotically serving without pay, Manning stated. (BB

Regional Manager Honored at Confab

William E. North, CLU of 1310 Mayfair rd., Arlington Heights, general manager of New York Life Insurance company's northern Illinois general office in Evanston, was honored recently as the leading manager in the North Central region.

Three hundred general managers, district group insurance managers, field officers and home office executives — including chairman and president Clarence J. Myers, were in Palm Beach, Fla., for a 4-day educational conference, January 26-29.



PEACE AND REST at a modern shopping center? Yes! When Golf-Mill shopping center opens on an 88 acre tract at Golf road and Milwaukee avenue in Niles next September, there should be plenty of excitement in the sales departments, but the keynote will be Mill Island, a landscaped park completely encircled by a country stream, enlarged at the ends to form two duck ponds. There will be an actual old mill wheel operated by water. Small rustic footbridges will cross to the island. Though the trade mark will be antique rustic, the construction of the stores will be completely modern, with ample parking space for 6,500 cars. There will be an abundance of entertainment at Golf-Mill. A 28 lane bowling alley is operating now, and before September there will be a 160-foot outdoor ice skating rink, a restaurant, a radio station and closed circuit television run by the merchants, and a supervised play area where mothers can leave their children while shopping. According to J. Channon Bowes, vice-president of the center, 75 stores and shops will occupy the 650,000 square feet of floor space. Many of the biggest chains will have their most complete suburban stores here. Sears, Woolworth's, Hillman's, National Food Stores, Richman Brothers, Fannie May and Andes Candies, Lytton's, Father & Son, Kinney, and Baker Shoes, Heinemann's Bakeries and Walgreen's have all signed leases, as have a number of independent tenants. Sears will have the largest store with over 200,000 square feet of floor space. The center will cost in excess of $14 million. (BB

Hints To Home Owners

by

James Fizzell

Assistant Farm Advisor

Many home gardeners lift their geraniums in fall and carry them over winter in their homes. When the plants are placed outside in spring they have become long and ungainly. To avoid this disappointment it is advisable to use the old plant as a stock plant from which cuttings or slips can be made which will grow into nicely shaped plants for spring.

Plants to be used for this purpose should be pinched back as they grow so that many short branches (cuttings) are produced. Stop pinching the plants about Thanksgiving so that the stems grow enough by midwinter so that cuttings can be taken.

Geraniums are easily grown from stem cuttings. Such stems should be about six inches long, and all but the basal leaf or two should be left on the cutting. The lower end may be dusted with a rooting powder (available from most florists or garden supply stores) or may be left untreated. Rooting powders reduce the time required for rooting and are widely used commercially.

THE CUTTING is then placed in a light but shaded place with its lower inch in moist sand. At a 60 degrees F. temperature, rooting should take place in three weeks. The cutting may then be potted for growing.

Sometimes disease organisms attack the succulent geranium stems and cause them to rot. Such losses may be reduced by using rooting powder, since the sooner the cutting is out of the sand, the less likely it is to be attacked by disease. Dusting the cut surface with powdered sulfur or parzate will also help.

If geranium propagation is begun in the fall, good plants for spring can be grown from a leaf-bud cutting. Remove a single leaf with only enough of the stem tissue to retain the bud which is found in every leaf axil. Place it in the sand with the bud exposed to the light. The leaf-bud will root as quickly as a stem cutting but will require more time to develop into a large plant.

Unusual Currency Displayed at Bank

A large collection of ancient and modern currencies from all parts of the world went on display this week at Citizens Bank and Trust co. in Park Ridge.

The exhibit combines two complete collections making it one of the most extensive to be shown publicly, according to Herbert R. Stoffels, president of the bank. It will run through February 13.

INCLUDED IN the showing are such pieces as a coin of the Eastern Rome Empire, several coins dating from the time of Julius Caesar, and an original shekel of Tyre, in ancient Phoenicia, which became known as the "Judas coin."

Unique United States coins are also included, such as the Trade Dollar, the Flying Eagle cent, and coins minted in 1883 with arrows near the dates.

Crowns and dollar-size coins of many countries, plus an array of medals of the Presidents from Washington to Truman, also are shown.

OF PARTICULAR interest, in the paper money section of the exhibit, are the old large-size U.S. bills and gold certificates which preceded the currency we now use.

The collection of foreign paper money includes bank notes which have what appears to be blank spaces on their faces. These spaces actually contain a hidden watermark which makes counterfeiting difficult.

A few countries use the same paper money, the exhibit shows. Liberia and the Republic of Panama both use U.S. dollars. The Ukranian Soviet Socialists Republic and Byelorussia use the ruble of the U.S.S.R.

PICTURES OF women are featured on the currencies of many nations. Luxembourg bills show a likeness of that country's Grand Duchess; an Indian girl graces the money of Nicaragua; and the goddess of liberty and justice, which once appeared on American bills, is still depicted on the paper of many lands, notably those of Latin America.

Kings, presidents and patriots are widely portrayed on notes. Venezuelan currency, for example, shows a likeness of Simon Bolivar, the "George Washington" of South America. (BB

AN OPEN LETTER TO HOME OWNERS

DEAR HOME OWNER:

During the recent years, it has become increasingly difficult for home owners to get home improvement work done at reasonable prices. Large overheads, high priced salesmen, etc., have taken a huge toll in costs.

LITE-VENT combats high prices by making it a policy never to do any telephone soliciting or misleading advertising of unbelievable low prices in order to get into your home and then try to switch you to a better product at a much higher price. LITE-VENT'S policy is to treat each individual estimate in a fair and reasonable manner. No high-pressure sales tactics are ever employed by our firm. You can come into our showroom and look at our products, or we will send a representative out to your home to measure and quote you the lowest possible price for your needs.

All of our work is done locally by our own men. We do not sub-contract anything. If you need any repairs or service work done on your present windows, you can call us. We can reglaze or rescreen almost any type of unit.

If you need any type of home improvement work done, or if you plan on it in the future, give us a call now. This is our slow season, and we can give you fast service and lowest prices. Whether you buy or not, give us a chance to bid on your work. We can meet or beat any prices given by any other legitimate contractor.

Very truly yours,

Successful Homemaking

Here's Way to Make Round Steak into Company Fare

With a bit of effort and a little ingenuity round steak can be turned into tempting company fare.

Today we are featuring a recipe that does exactly this. A few seasonings which are prominent in oriental dishes add zest and an interesting flavor to round steak in this recipe for Chinese Beef.

This tasty beef dish is a family favorite in the Robert T. Cohrs household in Prospect Heights. Not only is it an appealing meal, but it is also simple to prepare.

IN THIS DISH strips of round steak are seasoned with garlic salt, browned, then simmered in bouillion. The gravy is thickened, seasoned with soy sauce and ginger, and crispy strips of green pepper are folded in. It is served over rice.

Mrs. Cohrs usually accompanies Chinese Beef with a tossed green salad and hot rolls. It is a good family meal and is also excellent to serve guests at a buffet supper.

Children, too, enjoy this flavorful dish and it is a favorite with the Cohrs' two boys, Tom, 10, and Tim, 6.

The family lives at 505 N. Maple in Prospect Heights. Mrs. Cohrs is on the board of the PTA and is also a member of the Prospect Heights Community church Women's Guild and the Book Review club.

Chinese Beef

1 pound round steak cut ½ inch thick
1½ tablespoons drippings
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 cups beef bouillion
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 tablespoons water
1 large green pepper cut in strips
¼ teasoon ginger

Cut meat in thin strips, ¼ inch wide

Heat drippings in a heavy skillet. Add meat and garlic salt and brown.

Add beef bouillon, cover pan and cook 40 minutes or until tender.

Blend together soy sauce, cornstarch and water, Stir into meat and cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Add green pepper and ginger and just heat through. Green pepper should remain crisp.

Serve over cooked rice.

Pvt. Merchant studied at Eastern New Mexico university and prior to his enlistment was employed by the American Fore Loyalty group insurance organization in Chicago. He will be reinstated there when his term of military service is completed.

Traveling with Father

Travel with Father is one big riot from beginning to end. That is, if you can get him to make a beginning and get him traveling. I mean I can have all the bags and stuff in the car, be standing at the front door with my coat on and my little suitcase in my hot fist, and he informs me that he will be right back as he is going to get a haircut.

Or, he has to make a couple of vital telephone calls. Or, he is going to the office and issue some last minute instructions. An then, as it is lunch time, let's eat. Things like this make my getaway fraught with pain. The children get tired of kissing me goodbye and I get tired of kissing them goodbye. So, they leave to go on with life and then I never do get to kiss them goodbye.

Another little trick he has is asking me to add up mileage. I'm not much good at numbers even when I have pencil and paper. Ask me to do sums in my head and I am thrown for a complete loss. So he says add 31 and 53 and then 49. Right away he has lost me but as he is adding them himself it doesn't matter too much.

When he gets all through and has figured that we must drive for hundreds of miles, I always ask him if there is anything else I can help him with. I'm a big help on navigating, too. You know how it is with the big cities. There is a By Pass route and a Business route. Invariably I send him winging right through the center of cities usually just as all the places of business are closing. On the other hand, I think that when one is traveling, one should see everything.

Restaurant hunting is great fun with father. Every time that starvation would set in the game began. It goes like this. "Are you hungry?" "Yes." "There is a nice looking restaurant." Three miles later he says, "Where?" Then I tell him it is back there and then he tells me that there will be another farther on. And, then we go through the whole bit again.

Sometimes I am writhing on the floor with hunger pains before we see a restaurant in time. I have taken to hiding candy bars in my purse to give me that last spurt of energy. It's either that or waste away entirely.

Just Around the Corner from Patty McArdle

Patty's in a Gasser!

Dear Peg:

This is the first installment of "Patty McArdle — Chorus Girl." Yes, dear, after some consideration I decided to take the job. Every Thursday night I dance in a line with five other girls, performing a fast routine of kicks and two-steps. The pay isn't much — you might even say nothing — in fact to be honest we even have to pay for the rental of our costumes! Well, that's a Parents Guild production for you — and one of the best ways we know to help pay for those twelve new classrooms now under construction.

Helen has a very persuasive way about her. When she called a couple of weeks ago, she said that she knew that I was busy, what with working with the choir, teaching music in the kindergarten, the Girl Scouts etc. HOWEVER, she just needed one more blonde for a chorus line and since we just danced one number and would be rehearsing only once a week until the end of February, she felt sure that I would be willing to help out. Besides everyone has such a good time doing it, she knew I'd enjoy the fun.

She convinced me and I arrived at the gym on the appointed Thursday night — creaking joints, housemaid's knees and all. We laughed when Mary, one of our busy gals who also teaches dancing, told us that the dance she was going to teach us was designed to lose her ten pounds simply by rehearsing with us. We weren't laughing the morning after the first rehearsal — she meant it and we were hobbling around with stiff joints. It's surprising to find that all that moving around all day that we do which absolutely wears us out, apparently isn't really much exercise, or else why would a few kicks and knee bends make us so sore? At any rate I think our group will all lose ten pounds, at least.

Last year the parents presented Mopheads of 1959, our first venture into the world of variety show business. It was so successful and so much fun that another show this year was inevitable.

The theme for Mopheads of 1960 is a trip through New York City. Various couples on a sight seeing tour of the city visit different places such as Central Park, the theatre and several night clubs. From what I've seen so far it's going to be a gasser!

My love,
Patty

Can She Bake a Cherry Pie...?

Someday a man is going to come along who wants a cherry pie even "better than mother used to make." And that man is going to find a young lady who is now a freshman at Arlington high school.

She is 14-year-old Judy Krambeer who, as first place winner in Arlington's pie baking contest, represented the Northwest suburbs, Saturday, Jan. 23, in an area baking contest.

With 14 other young ladies from eighth grade through senior in high school, Judy went to work at Glenview high school to try and bake the best looking, best tasting cherry pie in the county.

THOUGH she didn't place first in this contest, Judy presented a beautiful lattice-topped pastry that put her in third place according to the judges' opinion.

The contest, sponsored by Penny Flame, required contestants to bring all their own equipment and ingredients. A work table and oven were supplied. Music was played to make bakers less nervous. Each was given a 2-hour time limit, and judges tasted the pies in the order they came out of the oven.

Judy's awards for entering the cherry pie competition were a cookbook, potholders and earrings.

Credit for this gal's cooking ability was given to her junior high school training. For not only is she a cook, but an accomplished seamstress, with apron, jumper and blouse to her credit.

WHEN SHE talks about her culinary ability, Judy talks like the veteran she is. Since the Arlington contest, held before Christmas, Judy has baked more than 20 cherry pies. All the neighbors had to sample her works of art, and besides she needed to practice. Needless to say, now that the Glenview contest is completed, it will be some time before the Walter Krambeer household, 840 N. State rd., even wants the word mentioned, much less taste a pie.

Now Judy is going to work on perfecting her meat cooking. She helps her mother fix dinner, usually taking over the mashed potatoes and salads.

She also likes to make cakes — from scratch, not the box varieties. Her favorite is the fudge cake and frosting on the back of the cocoa box.

THE SECRET of Judy's pie is use of a well-tested recipe used by her mother and carefully measured ingredients The recipe, written here, i from a Calumet baking pow er recipe book. Judy has add ed a few of her own touches the addition of lemon juice being one of them.

Cherry Pie: Crust;
2½ cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon calumet baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2/3 cup cold shortening
1/3 cup cold water

Sift flour once, add baking powder and salt and sift again. Cut in shortening until the pieces are about the size of small peas. Add water, a small amount at a time, mixing lightly with a fork. Handle as little as possible. Roll out on a lightly floured board.

Filling: which Judy makes before the crust so it can stand and set.

2½ tablespoons minute tapioca
1 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted butter
2½ cups canned, sour red cherries, pitted and drained.
1 cup cherry juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine minute tapioca, sugar, salt, butter, cherries nd juice. Let stand. (Judy oesn't cook her filling.)

Line a 9-inch pie plate with 1/8 inch thick crust. Put in filling. Top with second crust. Slit to let steam escape. Put in preheated 450 degree oven for 15 minutes. Turn back to 375 degrees and bake for 30 minutes longer. Judy usually knows her pie is done by looking at it.

WITH INGREDIENTS before her, Judy Krambeer, champion cherry pie baker, goes to work. Judy, an Arlington high school freshman, was first in her school baking contest and third in an area contest held at Glenview high school. (SOC

Coffee Break Can Relax Homemakers

A "coffee-break" is relaxing for homemakers too. And to help you make good coffee Nyla Gorham, University of Illinois foods and nutrition specialist, gives these suggestions:

Start with a clean and well-rinsed pot. The oily film deposit on "used" coffee pots gives a distinct and disagreeable flavor to the next cup of coffee.

Use one or two tablespoons of freshly ground coffee for every measuring cup of water.

PERK THE coffee slowly for 7 to 10 minutes to get the desired strength and yet avoid a bitter flavor.

If you are using a dripolater, pour boiling water into the top of the pot to drip through the coffee grounds in the basket. To help keep the coffee hot, rinse the bottom part of the dripolator with hot water just before making the coffee.

Use very low heat to reheat coffee because boiling tends to make it bitter.

Experiment with Foods To Perk Up Winter Meals

Humdrum menus may contribute to winter doldrums. So take time now to see whether your meals may be guilty of monotony and then take steps to vary them.

To check menus for repetition, do a mental retake of your meals for the past few weeks. Have you used one food over and over again? Or has the combination of foods been too much the same?

For example, consider how many times you've served hamburger in the last month in exactly the same way.

IF YOU find too much repetiton in the ways you are preparing or serving foods, look for five new recipes for any one food, such as hamburger. Select recipes that include as least one ingredient that you do not usually use a different method of cooking. The ingredients may be spices or herbs, vegetables or sauces.

To help avoid combinations that may be too radical for your family's taste, choose recipes that contain only one ingredient you don't ordinarily have on hand.

The resulting new recipes need not require gourmet cooking or hours in the kitchen or more expense.

FINDING these new recipes should be easy. Look in that box or drawer full of recipes you've been saving. Or take another glance at the cookbooks, magazines or newspapers. Radio and TV sometimes suggest new recipes. And don't forget to ask your friends for their favorite recipes.

After you've found these five recipes, plan to serve them in the next month. Favorable family reaction is sure to boost your spirits.

Cooking Method Improves Hot Chocolate

Sediment in hot cocoa made with regular cocoa can be lessened by careful cooking procedures. Making a sirup of cocoa, sugar and water before adding milk, helps to prevent the cocoa from settling out of the beverage.

Preliminary cooking assures complete cooking of the starch portion of the cocoa and helps to keep the mixture blended. It also improves the flavor of the cocoa.

Be careful while cooking the cocoa sirup to keep the heat low, because cocoa burns easily.

Mother and Sentiment In 1960's Valentines

Mother will be the most popular sweetheart of all this coming Valentine's Day, and good old-fashioned sentiment is making a strong comeback.

When it comes to collecting valentines, Mother ranks as a three-to-one favorite over any other sweetheart including the girl friend, statistics released by Hallmark Cards reveal.

As for sentiment, the new styling trend in 1960 valentines actually is a return to the lacy, sentimental, flower-strewn "mechanicals" so popular in the 19th Century.

These are hinged cards that open out in three dimensions to reveal cupids, lovers, bowers, gondolas and stream locomotives. One contains a music box that plays Sigmund Romberg's "Will You Remember?"

BASED ON originals in the Hallmark Historical Collection that numbers 40,000 pieces, these 1960 replicas are the first to appear in more than 50 years, the company said. They are priced from 50 cents to $5.

Inflation not withstanding, there are still penny valentines for the kiddies, both the ready-made varieties and the "make-your-own" kits from which hearts, lace and other traditional symbols of the day can be selected and assembled.

Approximately 90 million Americans will exchange valentines this year, Hallmark estimates, adding that a half-million women will dispatch Leap Year sentiments.

While only a small percentage of the new crop of love notes is designed for the Leap Year maiden, the message is as unmistakable as ever — "I'm being as good as I possibly can, and hoping and praying for something — A MAN," one card laments.

ANOTHER, an off-beat sample from the Hallmark selection, declares: "It's Leap Year, so I'm going to come right out and ask you—will you fix me up with one of your good-looking friends?"

A bigger demand than ever for humorous valentines also is reflected in the cards for 1960. "If you don't really, honestly, sincerely love me," says the text on the cover of one "fake it," the message concludes on the inside.

There are valentines, too, for grandmothers, aunts, babies, and dads. And one intended to be useful in any relationship simply says:

"I'm yours . . . whatever that means." (Soc

HUMOR AND ROMANCE join hands in 1960 as card manufacturers present a variety of Leap Year valentines. In the greeting shown here, the rear card folds to conventional size with hillbilly shotgun art and verses at each turn. The message inside the off-beat card on the left reads: "Fake it . . . Be my Valentine."

Visit with Your Child; Encourage Him to Converse

If you want your child to be a good conversationalist, take time to visit with him. Talk with him about things he knows and likes in addition to answering his questions.

The logical time to begin visiting with your child is when he first shows an interest in talking. You'll be surprised how quickly he'll be trying words, saying them over and over and listening carefully to their sound. Then he will begin to use words together.

STUDIES show that 2 and 3-year-olds differ greatly in their vocabulary and their ability to converse. Those children who converse freely have had experience in conversing at home. They have been told stories and have had stories read to them. They have been encouraged to talk with others.

One of the best ways to develop companionship with your child is to take time to answer his questions in terms he can understand says Mrs. Margueritte Lynch, family life specialist. He is interested in new things and new experiences and will express his ideas when given the chance.

You have a rare opportunity to add to his fund of information every time you go for a walk or a ride, every time you prepare a meal or clean the house, provided you are interested and alert and willing to give the time.

Janis Serve Becomes Mrs. Donald Chessman

In a three o'clock ceremony December 4 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Bishop, 530 S. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, their daughter, Janis Serve, was married to Donald Cheesman, son of the Henry Cheesmans of Round Lake. Justice of the Peace Carl Behrens officiated at the double ring ceremony.

(Times Candid

For her marriage, the bride wore a short, ballet-type white moire gown with an off-shoulder neckline. A crown of lace leaves held her fingertip veil in place and she carried white roses centered with tiny red rosebuds. Mr. Bishop gave the bride in marriage.

Karen Van Hoorbeke of Arlington Heights was the bride's only attendant and wore a yellow-flowered balloon-skirted dress and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The bridegroom's attendant was Richard Hesseling of Donahue, Iowa.

A reception for 50 guests was held in the Bishop home where Mrs. Bishop received in a beige knit dress and Mrs. Cheesman in a pale blue sheath dress with jacket. Both mothers wore corsages of pink and white carnations.

After a brief wedding trip to Galena, Ill. and Iowa, the newlyweds are at home in Ingleside, Ill.

The new Mrs. Cheesman attended Arlington high school and St. Pat's in Kankakee and Mr. Cheesman attended Grant high school in Fox Lake. He is now employed by American Motors in Kenosha.

LAMBDA ZETA chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met twice last month, January 14 in the home of Mrs. Alex Scott, 303 Lonnquist, Mt. Prospect, and January 28, in the home of Mrs. Charles Coon, 801 S. I-Oka, Mt. Prospect. The chapter assisted in giving a party January 29 for the Golden Age group at West Park lodge Des Plaines, with all prizes and refreshments being donated by the chapter. The chapter also held a bowling party January 30, with husbands as guests.

Mrs. F. Vernon Schlexer was hostess last Sunday afternoon in her home at 1518 N. Mrs. Caren Reed and Mrs. Arthur King of Evanston, co-chairmen of the 1960 benefit, state that this dance will benefit the Evanston Children's Home, and the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

FOR 12 YEARS, all ways and means affairs have been given to benefit the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. Through the years, members of the Junior Chi Omegas have been doing volunteer work at the home's main office in Chicago, have worked on Tag day and have decorated the Evanston Children's home at Christmas.

Planning to attend the benefit and bring guests are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kittell and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stevens, all of Arlington Heights, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Suckow of Wheeling.

Pi Beta Phi

Wednesday, Feb. 10, is the date set for the next Pi Phi meeting. On the program will be the annual bridge party, one of the most "looked forward to" programs of the year.

Mrs. Robert Whiteley, 102 Eastwood, Mt. Prospect, will be hostess for the meeting, which will start at 8 p.m. Charles Smith, Mrs. George Heiden and Mrs. Clinton Bowman.

Chi Omega

It was a happy occasion when the newly - chartered Chicago - Northwest Suburban Alumnae of Chi Omega fraternity presented a gift in the form of a check to the newly-opened Lutheran General hospital. The check was a direct result of the proceeds from the first public benefit sponsored by Chi Omega, a luncheon book review.

The check represented half the proceeds from this first successful venture, the other half going to the new Northwest Community hospital, Arlington Heights.

The Chicago - Northwest chapter has been meeting unofficially since 1952 as national requirements of forming alumnae chapters requires that the group meet at least five years prior to granting of a charter.

Chi Omega is the largest national women's fraternity in the country with 120 active chapters in colleges and 127 chartered alumnae chapters. While meeting in its formative years, the chapter has always done philanthropic work and supported the Park Ridge School for Retarded Children, the Park Ridge public library, Junior Chambermaids and helped deserving persons in the community.

The Many Faces of Richard M. Nixon

Our Vice President Leaves Baffling First Impression

(Last week the United Republican Fund of Illinois invited Paddock Publications to send a representative to cover its Go for '60 $100 a plate dinner in the International Amphitheater honoring President Dwight D. Eisenhower, celebrating the centennial of President Abraham Lincoln's nomination, and officially opening Vice President Richard M. Nixon's campaign for the 1960 presidential nomination. This story and the accompanying pictures are the results of an evening Republican).

by TOM McSHANE

Richard Milhous Nixon is a strange man.

He is a man of many faces, one kind and friendly, cross-hatched with the push-button smile of the perennial politician; another strong and forceful, as when he speaks of his country's position of leadership; still another harsh and coldly analytic, as when he counts out friend from foe in those he meets.

When he smiles the face is handsome; the teeth are very white. With mouth closed it becomes less so. The nose from the side is long, sloping like a ski jump to a point. And the brow is pinched above the full cheeks.

His body is slight; so slight, in fact, that the head seems almost too large. The hands are small; the feet normal.

His gait is slightly stooped, with very little movement of the upper body. And the steps are quick and sure, even in front of 14,000 eyes.

To one who never has seen him before, the Vice President of the United States is baffling. But one thing is quite obvious.

Richard M. Nixon is as professional a politician as this country has ever seen.

In watching him closely, one cannot help but notice the calculating manner, the deep concentration and keen awareness of what is happening around him.

Strangely, Nixon is not as magnetic a personality as many other public figures. There is an air of aloofness about him, perhaps stemming from his highly-polished professionalism, that causes one to doubt his sincerity.

The warmth our nation has found in President Eisenhower is lacking in his potential successor.

But when he stands before a microphone, when he talks politics, and when he extolls our way of life, he is very good.

He speaks clearly and distinctly, using his hands to gesture forcefulness, and darting, flashing eyes to connote confidence and power. He has great ability as a public speaker; years of practice have seasoned him.

His speeches are written clearly, expertly. They can be grasped quickly. Though not as brilliantly constructed as those of Democrat Adlai Stevenson, who is rated one of the finest public speakers in America's history, Nixon's speeches follow fairly closely the prescribed standards of rhetoric.

His delivery sets him apart as a standout. And this is where the years of professionalism shine through. He is calm, forcefully so. He is so sure of himself, so confident in his words, that a listener cannot help but be very impressed with what he says, and cannot help but believe that Nixon means every word he says.

This is the quality that shone through on his trip to Russia, in his talks with Nikita Khrushchev. He was on a stage for all the world to see, and he came through brilliantly.

Perhaps this is a quality Americans will demand in 1960. Perhaps Nixon, in his calculating fashion, is playing up this quality. Perhaps he feels that his people will want this dramatic contrast to the lovable, though unpolished, Eisenhower, in this decade of even greater decision.

Perhaps Nixon feels his aloofness will set him apart from the Democratic candidates this fall. Perhaps he feels his obvious self-confidence will sweep him into the White House over all opposition.

Whatever the reason, he is different, and he is impressive.

Richard Milhous Nixon is a strange man.

THE BEAUTIFUL, graceful Pat Nixon appeared at the amphitheater in the same champagne dinner dress that won the praise of Nikita Khrushchev last summer in Russia. Here her husband escorts her to the speaker's table.

ANOTHER SMILE and friendly wave from the vice president as he takes his seat at the speaker's table. The huge portrait in the background is of Abraham Lincoln before he assumed office in 1861. Nixon later was given a copy of this and another Lincoln photograph as a memento of the dinner. (PP

MR. AND MRS. NIXON greet Congresswoman Marguerite Stitt Church (back to camera) of the 13th Illinois district before the Go for '60 dinner. Mrs. Church is the northwest suburb's congressional representative. She is seeking re-election this year. (PP NIXON (circled at lower left) is mobbed by enthusiastic followers as he leaves the amphitheater after his address and the nationwide closed circuit television tribute to President Dwight D. Eisenhower. At the far left is William H. Rentschler, Republican candidate for the United States Senate seat of the Hon. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.). (PP

Shop for Value in Meat Cuts

Be fair with yourself when you judge meat costs. Before you buy, compare costs on the basis of price per serving of edible meat, not the price stamped on the package on the meat counter.

Elizabeth Nyholm, University of Illinois home economist, gives this advice to homemakers who are trying to stretch their food dollars and at the same time protect their families' health.

To estimate the amount of edible meat, deduct the amount of bone, fat and gristle that will end up in the garbage can. When you view meat cuts critically in this way, you may be surprised at how much you are paying for inedible portions.

FOR EXAMPLE, spareribs may cost considerably less per pound than pork loin roast, but the edible portions are quite different.

Miss Nyholm also recommends that homemakers remember that the price of meat does not measure its food value. The lower priced meats are just as nutritious as the higher priced.

Low-cost pork liver, for example, is a better source of vitamin B1 than many higher priced meats.

LOWER COST meat cuts, such as beef chuck, short ribs, flank steak and lamb shoulder are also flavorful if well cooked.

And, while you're searching for lower cost meat cuts, don't overlook beef heart and beef liver. If they are fresh when purchased, and promptly and carefully prepared, they are a real taste treat at a reasonable price.

The Way We See It

Arlington Heights' Downtown Sets Pace

Some downtown shopping centers are "committing suicide because of internal apathy."

This warning was sounded recently in New York before the National Retail Merchants Association. It could just as well have been directed at a group of downtown merchants from our northwest suburban communities.

J. Palmer Murphy, general manager of the Commercial Fund for Paterson's (N.J.) Future, described many of our area communities accurately when he told his audience, "Downtown is not doomed from the pressure of external forces but there are many communities where the downtown shopping district is doomed because of internal apathy."

Just as the "central cities" of larger communities are suffering from decay, so are many of our suburbs' downtown shopping areas.

When the shopper looks past the shiny, spacious shopping centers with their adequate parking lots, wide selection of goods, and up-to-date customer services, he is often faced with a downtown area that offers limited parking, streets choked with traffic, tumbled down storefronts, and property owners who have forgotten what it's like to accept the challenge of competition.

In addition, the problem of downtown renovation is often complicated by the mutual distrust that exists between "old-time" businessmen and "new" village officials. The officials accuse the businessmen of being reactionary, and the businessmen bemoan the village's lack of cooperation when they try to enlarge or modernize their stores.

A big step to bridge this gap and halt the decline of its downtown area, was taken last week by a group of Arlington Heights' businessmen and village officials.

The businessmen and property owners formed a Downtown Plaza Association several months ago. They retained a professional planner with whom they spent many hours in drawing up a plan for the renovation of a portion of the downtown district. Unlike many other such plans, however, this one wasn't allowed to gather dust.

The Plaza Association took it before the village's plan commission and the plan was eventually routed to the village board, where trustees, after studying the proposals, unanimously passed a resolution last week approving the plan in principle.

A meeting was scheduled this week to work out the details of financing and define areas of responsibility in implementing the plan.

While it is not likely that any buildings will be razed next week, businessmen and village officials have set an example for other area communities by demonstrating a willingness to work together to create what could be the finest downtown shopping center in a northwest suburban community.

Boy Scouts Mark Golden Anniversary of Service

At 8:15 p.m. next Monday more than five million men and boys across the United States will bare their heads and renew their pledges in an organization that has become as much a part of Americana as George Washington and Daniel Boone.

February 8 marks the 50th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Since its humble beginning in 1910, the organization of scouting probably has done more to develop and maintain the spirit of freedom and brotherhood in our men than any other single group.

During these 50 years more than 33 million boys and leaders have participated in scouting programs. Last year alone saw 5,040,000 of our males take to the woods and hills for outings, camporees, and hikes.

In our northwest suburbs we have 10,000 men and boys involved in the scouting program of the Blackhawk district. Next week they will be celebrating their anniversary at meetings and special ceremonies, one of which will be the renewal of the Scout oath — their pledge to God and country.

It is with deep sincerity that we join them in their pledge and congratulate all Scouts, past and present, on a job well done.

Our Faith in the Future

For those skeptics who question whether or not suburbia has a future, three reports issued last week should dispel any doubts.

It most certainly has a future — and a spectactular one at that.

On a national level, the tremendous growth of suburbia was pointed up in a Census Bureau report showing the suburbs have accounted for most of the population advance since 1950. Between April, 1950, and April, 1959, the civilian population increased by 16 per cent from 149.6 million to 173.7 million. Suburbs accounted for 15.3 million of this gain of 24.1 million, according to the bureau. Population of the suburbs during this period advanced from 34.7 million to 50 million.

This exodus to suburbia is also reflected in a recent Federal Reserve Board report which announced that the number of American homeowners has risen from 20 million early in 1949 to nearly 29 million at the start of 1959 — a rise of 44 per cent in the decade.

As a result, a decided majority of American families now own their own homes — 58 per cent of all nonfarm families this year as compared with 51 per cent 10 years ago. The home ownership ratio had never been as high as 50 per cent before World War II.

The attainment of this record growth in home ownership has been concentrated in suburban areas and largely caused by a rising population and increased family needs, a marked expansion in personal incomes, the persistent uptrend in the standard of living, availability of mortgage funds — and a keen awareness of the desirability of suburban living.

For our northwest suburban area, the 1950's established all-time records in housing construction. According to figures just compiled in a survey of new buildings, the northwest area accounted for the greatest share of growth in metropolitan Chicago since 1950. A total of 19,091 new houses were built in the northwest suburbs from 1950 to the present; valuation of these homes during the 10-year period was more than $350 million.

These facts strengthen our faith in the dynamic role which northwest suburbs are destined to play in the future expansion of metropolitan Chicago's economy.

What Is Church Role In Community Life?

by CHARLES HAYES

A somewhat sardonic co-worker stopped me at the door recently and asked if I was also available for weddings, banquets, receptions, and Rotary conventions.

The full import of that jibe escapes anyone unfamiliar with my new role as a fledgling public speaker. As a matter of fact, the staff member caught me as I was about to leave for another appearance at the podium.

This so-called "popularity" as a platform personality is one aftermath of the "Religion in Suburbia" articles which I wrote for the newspaper this fall.

An attempt to report-in-depth the condition of church life and growth in this area, the series resulted from a year-long study of the changing religious complexion of our suburbs.

AS A RESULT of the newspaper series, which raised several controversial issues, I was invited to speak before several suburban church groups. Since then my speaking engagements have snow-balled to the place where I'm now committed for most weekends.

These programs have afforded me a unique opportunity to meet and talk with a cross-section of suburban church members. I value the experience for it has helped me better understand the strength and weakness of suburbia's spiritual life. This is particularly important for an editor in view of a growing awareness for the need to better interpret the affairs of the church and to educate the public on the nature and implications of expanding religious life.

I'm frequently asked what I think is "wrong" with the suburban church.

PERHAPS ONE of the gravest problems confronting the chruch today is relating Christian principle to everyday life. Too many of us have built walls of insulation around ourselves, protecting ourselves from a vision of the world's greater needs.

The church in suburbia — as elsewhere—lacks a social conscience.

This was forcefully demonstrated to me Sunday morning.

I was invited to speak at an Elgin church, a parish whose local history dated back into the last century. This was a middle-class congregation not unlike those in our own community.

And like so many other Protestant churches, this one had fallen victim to decentralization.

FOR YEARS THE old church building with its massive spire was a familiar landmark in downtown Elgin. Recently they condemned their old building and sold the downtown site for conversion into a commercial parking lot.

Last year the parish moved to a magnificent new suburban setting and occupied an imposing modern structure situated high on a hill overlooking a wooded valley.

Set apart from the center of community life and well-protected from the distractions of everyday life, this church has unconsciously isolated itself from the reality of today's revolutionary world.

The hilltop has become a temporary refuge from the ugliness of life.

In my discussion that morning, I said the church — this church — has a responsibility to the community in which it stands. It has a responsibility to speak on social concerns because it has the resources of the Christian faith to provide the judgment as to what is right and the perseverance to keep going.

MANY PEOPLE in that discussion group couldn't grasp the significance of that responsibility. They saw no relationship between their Christian faith and personal relationships, community life, world problems. Their Sunday hilltop was something set apart from the other six days of the week.

These were typical parishioners, typifying what I conceive as a grave challenge for Protestant Christianity in a suburbia which has become a synonym for a higher standard of material living. In prosperous suburbia, the church has flourished in terms of membership rolls and physical plants and impressive ceremonies. But the suburbs have yet to become a synonym for a higher standard of spiritual living as well.

This isolation of church life from everyday life has been a characteristic development of religion in suburbia.

One churchman has summed it up: "The church's insulation from the world was not created by suburbia; it has simply found its consummation there."

The World at Large

Waiting for Madame Chiang

by WILLIAM DULANEY

Ask any member of your family, including yourself, to trace the rise of nationalism in Africa south of the Sahara since World War II.

Stumped?

Admittedly that's a pretty tough request, so maybe one of you can name three of Africa's seven new nations that have come into being in the past 15 years.

Perhaps the "Dark Continent" isn't your interest so we'll move eastward and ask your high school age son to tell why India's economic growth is being so closely watched by our government.

Still no response?

Let's try one closer to home and have him, or you, tell why the President's forthcoming tour of Latin America is of vital importance to this country.

AN APPALLING lack of awareness and knowledge of a changing world economic, political and social order permeates our country. It extends from a junior high school student whose textbooks tell him that the world revolves around Western Europe to an ambassador to Ceylon who confessed to newsmen shortly after his appointment that he didn't know the name of that country's highest official.

In addition, there are millions of Americans who think of Africa only in terms of Stanley and Livingston, diamonds. Pygmies, blowguns.

They know nothing of the impact of The People's Republic of China on the rest of Asia and are waiting for Chiang Kai-shek, aided by his wife and the Flying Tigers, to launch a counter-offensive and retake the mainland.

MOST OF us are familiar with Latin America's Incas and Llamas and the Amazon river. But how much do we know about the anti-American hatred that caused Nixon to be stoned in Venezuela? What's behind the recent Panamanian riots? What happened to the "Good Neighbor Policy" enunciated by President Roosevelt in the early 1930's?

In any situation, enlightened policy and intelligent action should be based upon understanding. With old orders crumbling on every hand, and the balance of power shifting daily from the Western world — the only world we've ever really known — never has such understanding been more urgently needed or woefully lacking by the American people.

In many of our schools the emphasis, even in higher grades, in history and geography is upon basic recitation of facts without relation to events in today's fast changing, shrinking world.

History books, notes C. Vann Woodward, a Johns Hopkins University professor, must be revised to give prominence to such cultures represented by Jakarta, New Delhi, Peiping, Tokyo and Moscow.

HE LISTS three events in the last decade that compel the revision of history textbooks:

—The collapse of Western European imperialism.

—The rise of nationalism among colored peoples.

—The polarization of power between the United States and Russia.

With a few notable exceptions, our general circulation newspapers give relatively little space to news of the world. Such news as there is of international affairs often appears only in times of crises and lacks depth backgrounding.

In the home there is little if any discussion of contemporary international issues.

Knowledge of the aspirations of the world's stirring millions need not involve a detailed knowledge of geography or of the names of the heads of all governments. It does involve comprehension of world conditions, with some feeling for the backgrounds and political and social trends of the people involved.

A Different Face

Pastors Seek New Resources

by MARTIN E. MARTY

A couple of years ago, while doing a church survey, I visited the head minister of a large church in a new suburb.

It was Friday evening. Two scout meetings were in process; a gathering of adults occupied another room; downstairs a teen-age group was having a dance; the sanctuary had room for 500 people. Everything breathed a spirit of busy-ness.

So when the minister told me what was the busiest, most used square-footage in the edifice I didn't really believe him. Like most journalists I have some healthy skepticism in me: it permits one to smile knowingly—just enough to keep from antagonizing the interviewee and yet just enough to keep one's own integrity, to telegraph to him that you don't really believe him.

FOR THE minister was contending that the most used part of the church was the 18 by 24 feet of the pastor's study. Since he didn't look as if he did much studying, I knew he meant that he undertook a great deal of counselling there.

Being a sort of layman at the time, I didn't really believe him. But I would now. Like so many other Chicagoans, I looked at the people on the suburban fringes as prosperous, successful, happy, contented. The books which suggested a different realization for the American dream were, I thought, the products of cynical sociologists who didn't care for anything beyond the walls of the academies.

Fly over any of our new, neat, antiseptic suburbs and the illusion will present itself: from the air these towns are indeed model towns. Their houses look like doll houses. Everything seems to be so in order.

But the residents know from their own experience and from knowing their neighbors that this is only an illusion.

Sometimes the dream-world persists.

On a patio on a summer's eve or a skating pond on a crystal winter's night; over cocktails and around dinner tables and after the commuter trains come home, all seems to be well. But the American Dream is so often frustrated here where it seems nearest fulfilment. And the suburbs nurture hosts of problems.

WE DO NOT yet have the resources for coping with them. When Richard Hoffman of this paper did a survey on mental health needs last year, he found the area woefully lacking — partly because of our nearness to city and partly because of our sudden growth.

We are beginning to have enough hospitals and, with a gasp for breath, we try to keep up on schools.

But so many services for personal help are still lacking. Where do people take their problems? More and more, they are going back to ministers, for every town has them in abundance; most of them are technically and humanly equipped to counsel or to refer cases.

This willingness, once again, to "talk things over" with a clergyman implies several changes.

First is a renewed acceptance in society of the idea that at the root of most of our personal problems are religious or quasi-religious confusions about the meaning of existence or of personal relations. The church and the clergyman symbolize some sort of access to solution.

Second, the churches have been more and more concerned to train ministers to help people with problems. That does not mean only to train the young generation; through workshop and retreat and literature, denominations and agencies show their concern for constant professional growth. An institute on alcholoism at the new Lutheran General hospital near here was a symbol of that concern.

CHANGES in society have also permitted or forced ministers to show a different face to the world. There was a day when people were afraid to talk things over because ministers were inclined to be shocked, or to express themselves pompously or judgmentally.

In our insulated, protected world this has changed; nowadays ministers are among the few people who participate in the meaning of other people's births, divorces, imprisonments, deaths, and all the other messinesses from which suburbia shield, us.

Such contact necessarily makes one more understanding, more ready to listen and to share in the profound anguish which the blunting edge of life brings also in the suburban setting.

FINALLY, the minister knows his limits. He can serve as a contact point to other agencies.

For ministerial colleagues let me recommend the book that inspired this week's column. It's a little spiral-bound work from Bethany Press in St. Louis, "The Pastor and Community Resources," by Charles F. Kemp.

For a dollar and a half they can find what resources communities need and even blank space to jot down phone numbers of the few we have.

It's a reminder of the work we have ahead before the pastor's study has room once again not only for counselling, but also for study!

Emotional Thinking?

The following are comments concerning some of my reactions to the article, "Medical Care is Cheap for What You Get," which appeared in your January 21, publication.

The physician who wrote the article concerning the cost of medical services has demonstrated admirably the type of fuzzy emotional thinking so characteristic of the medical profession when they are confronted with the topic of socialized medicine. This obvious state of panic was particularly shown by the numerous unsubstantiated statements expressed by the writer of the article.

FOR EXAMPLE, the doctor makes this statement, "Government control of medical care is bad — whether it is called compulsory health insurance, socialized medicine, or any other name. It is bad for you and your family because it will bring you medical care that is even more expensive, less personal, less efficient, constantly deteriorating, and politically controlled." All the implications in this ridiculous dogmatic statement are too numerous to mention and discuss, however, some of the more obvious ones deserve consideration.

1. The statement must be true because no man of science would dare state it unless he had sufficient proof.
2. Since socialized medicine would be more expensive, the public is presently getting a deal.
3. We now get personalized attention.
4. It is possible for medical care to become even more inefficient.
5. The Hypocratic Oath is less binding and the desire to serve mankind is lessened in a socialized situation, or why else would medical care deteriorate?
6. Politically controlled services are understandably bad.

THE GOOD doctor would have us believe that the increased life span is primarily due to the efforts of the practicing doctor, therefore, the fees for his services the fees for his services should be accepted as fair at any price. Such an attitude is particularly unbecoming to a physician who knows full well where he would be without the development of the "wonder drugs" by the unsung, underpaid research scientists. Also, due recognition should be given to our high standard of living and its effects on longevity brought about by efforts other than the medical profession. Actually, the invention of such things as the automobile which enables the doctor to increase the number of patients he is able to serve should indicate a decrease in fees rather than increases. The concept of volume production would seem to apply here also.

After reading the article it becomes understandable why it was written anonymously. If this doctor approaches medical diagnostics as he does the subject of socialized medicine, he will soon run out of paying customers.

We enjoyed your article on the dog census very much, but we feel that you overlooked the most unusual dog name in this village.

Working Moms Earn Tribute

In defense of working mothers, may I ask C. W. Peterson and Rose T. Buchanan one question? How many working moms do you know who work to "get away from it all," "buy happiness," and who "do not watch, check, encourage and inspire their children?"

All mothers are "working" moms! Small fry and teens; gardening; chauffering; shopping; cooking and baking; nursing; sewing; yes, even husbands; let's settle for homemaking (I did not say housekeeping) make "working" moms out of all of us!

The so-called working mother does all this in addition to "working." I use the last "working" conditionally. I believe any working mother will admit, "working" is the easiest task of the day.

WORKING mothers do not slight their husbands, homes, yards, children, or family-together fun! They DO give up making a career of cafe clatching, shopping all sales, luncheons, backyard get-to-gethers, and afternoon bridge. Since when did these inhitions of personal "mama" pleasures contribute to family life? Working mothers are, instead, speaking to adults in the business world and bringing home tales of what is going on in this large suburban area of ours outside of our immediate community. This, perhaps, contributes more to family conversation and small fry's interest in people, places and activities.

If youngsters become ill or are injured at school, mom may be easily contacted by 'phone at the office. How—at a department store, neighbor's home or bowling alley?

Most working moms are home when youngsters are home. They run the household efficiently: seldom put off chores realizing the following day would be crowded; have a few extra dollars to treat children to a restaurant meal now and then; do not dole out money freely, but do pay their children for extra chores; implant a feeling of self-confidence and responsibility in their children; have been stay-at-home moms for 10 or more years and now have a feeling of ability that should it ever become necessary, their returned skills would permit them to earn a living again. This is their own private little mental bank account in life.

THIS IS where I must give the employers of working mothers their tribute, also. They know family comes first! When Johnny is ill, employee stays home. When Grace is in a special assembly, employee takes off. When special children's activities tax mom's strengh, employee is tired. When Joe is in a recital, mom must go. Also, as stated above, most working moms are 10 or more years behind in skills. Employers are tolerant and take this into consideration. Employers of working moms know that family comes first! Recitals, special assemblies, scout activities, birthdays, swimming events, ice skating parties, etc., are very very important!

I believe enough has been said not in defense of, but as a tribute to, working moms. Incidentally, working mothers can be met ice skating directly after supper with their families at Lions Park (dishes left soaking at home not important) or in the summer at Lions Park Pool helping junior learn to swim, or correcting older sister's dive, or just enjoying a swim with daddy and all.

Dulaney Wins More Praise

You are to be congratulated for the stimulating article by William Dulaney on January 21 titled "Pacifists May Have Answer to World Ills."

I believe that all people must try to understand that the war system in a nuclear age is absolutely out of the question as a realistic method of dealing with disputes.

As far as Americans are concerned, I feel we must try to realize that distrusting the Russians, and concluding that it would be better to mutually annihilate than to submit to the Soviet scheme, merely are symptoms of our denial of the realities of the world and, therefore, our unwillingness to face these realities.

A NUCLEAR arms race is not the answer. It is the problem!

Responding with our emotions instead of our intelligence is not the answer. It is the problem!

Failure to recognize war as the true enemy is not the answer. It is the problem!

Reluctance to accept ignorance, poverty, disease and illiteracy as the real causes of the world's ills is not the answer. It is the problem!

It is time that we renounced the idea of war for all time. We MUST before it is too late. This cannot be done by stockpiling weapons too terrible to use and increasing the likelihood of war by accident, intention or both.

Keep Up Your Punch: Reader

I was happy to read in today's Herald of the progress and forward step our present council is making toward the matter of transportation. This was much needed for years. The sensible people will now take the bus instead of their car. This will relieve traffic and make more room for parking at the station and expose less people to accidents.

It just goes to show what can be done when the elected officials take their civic duties seriously. We have had too many with a large mouth and a small brain to go with it.

YOUR paper I know has a great influence on our aldermen. For they know you are watching their progress and report to the people as you find it.

Suburbanites State Position

Recent events in Deerfield have focused widespread attention on the prevalent practice of discrimination in housing opportunity. All of us have been challenged to reexamine our own consciences and to recognize the difficulties which the minority groups face in obtaining good housing.

The Lake Forest Meeting of the Society of Friends is aware of its own prejudices and failures, and feels deep sympathy with the citizens of Deerfield in their divisions. Nevertheless, we wish to affirm publicly our belief in brotherhood derived from that of God in every man. We would apply this belief not only in distant places, but right here in the North Shore.

THE MEMBERS of the Lake Forest Meeting, who are residents of Arlington Heights, Deerfield, Des Plaines, Highland Park, Kenilworth, Lake Bluff, and Winnetka, therefore urge their fellow citizens to make their voices heard to encourage everyone to put into practice the tenets of our common religious heritage in offering equal opportunities for housing without discriminiaton without discrimination based on religion, race, or ethnic origin.

Who Builds, Runs Our Hospitals?

Who builds and runs our hospitals?

Most people never take the trouble to find out. They contribute to hospital financial drives, enter a hospital for surgical or medical attention occasionally, pay their bill either direct or through some prepayment plan, and that's as far as their interest goes. Yet they are glad the hospital is there when they need it.

The fact is most hospitals are non-profit voluntary institutions, built by individuals and organizations who really care about your health and well-being. Catholic hospitals are ordinarily built and operated by one of the Catholic orders, while other voluntary hospitals are organized under state law as not-for-profit corporations and run by boards of trustees recruited from the community.

FOR EXAMPLE, the trustees of the new Lutheran General hospital in Park Ridge include seven business executives representing such fields as manufacturing banking, real estate and advertising, four clergymen, two lawyers, two school superintendents, a deaconess, a research scientist, a dentist and an editor.

Northwest Community hospital in Arlington Heights draws its trustees from a similar cross section of community life and work.

Some hospitals have doctors on the board, although there is a tendency for doctors to disassociate themselves from hospital administration since they use the hospital in their work. Doctors do, however, play a key part in systematizing medical practice and establishing and maintaining the standards of a hospital. In this they work closely with the governing board of trustees which must always carry the overall responsibility for the institution.

A HOSPITAL is a multi-million dollar business. It requires two employees for every bed, which means a 300 bed hospital takes 600 employees to operate it around the clock seven days a week. It is a restaurant, hotel, drug store, clinic, chemical and biological laboratory, surgical service, emergency station, chapel and business office all rolled into one. It is therefore a very complex institution requiring great administrative skill to keep it running well.

Much of this skill is now provided by hospital administrators who have built a profession all their own to help set the standards and provide the executive personnel. However, standing behind these administrators and representing the public are the trustees who serve without pay and who give to this complicated institution their own varied experience.

They set the rates so that you may get the best life-saving service at cost. They put on the financial campaigns when new equipment and new buildings are needed. They also keep a close watch on the whole operation to see that the community is well served, that the hospital is efficient and safe and the equipment is the best that has been devised for the saving of life.

ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME... AND THEN SOME

Some comforts go beyond the physical. To families with savings accounts at the house that security built, there are subtler satisfactions than fireside warmth and after-dinner contentment.

There's the tacit understanding, between yourselves, that tomorrow will take care of itself . . . because you've seen to it.

There's the peace of mind that stems from absolute, unexcelled savings safety. There's the feeling of progress—the achievement of family objectives together, as you share in Oak Park Federal's progress. There's the gratification of knowing that in all the world of savings, you chose the Save-by-Mail leader . . . the pace setter in savings convenience.

THE HOUSE THAT SECURITY BUILT

Wintertime Can Be Menace to You

By FRANK R. PUSTAVER

The winter season with all its frozen beauty and holiday festivity can be a menace to many who will not heed basic preventive measures conducive to a longer life span.

Enormous festive mealtimes, shoveling four inch snowfalls, manually pushing stalled cars; all considered part of the winter seasons, are situations which most of us should attempt in a very controlled manner. To hurry a snow shoveling task adds stress to a heart which is working hard pumping enough blood to keep you warm.

THERE IS A greater demand on the circulation in response to either heat or cold, because of the increased metabolism. It is said that an external temperature of about 85 degrees fahrenheit, with a low humidity, requires minimal cardiac work. This is certainly a factor which should be taken into consideration by persons with cardiac inadequacy, as an added uncontrolled physical stress during the low external temperature periods might be more than can be compensated for. How can you tell if your body is conditioned and accommodating properly or not? A too rapid pulse and respiratory rate is the best indication. The pulse may be so rapid that counting the beats may be an impossibility.

There are thousands of people whose occupation requires but little physical activity, these are the individuals who should be wary of hurrying through their snow shoveling chores in order to return more quickly to the warmth of their television sets.

THE SAD fact is that despite its indispensability, the human heart receives less care, until it starts misbehaving, and much more abuse than any other organ except the stomach. Ghastly statistics testify to this in that heart conditions of one sort or another have become the leading cause of death in the United States. The heart is a remarkable organ, it does tremendous work and deserves the best of care.

A key phrase which might enable you to achieve a greater longevity than your predecessors reads as follows, "To partake of all things in moderation."

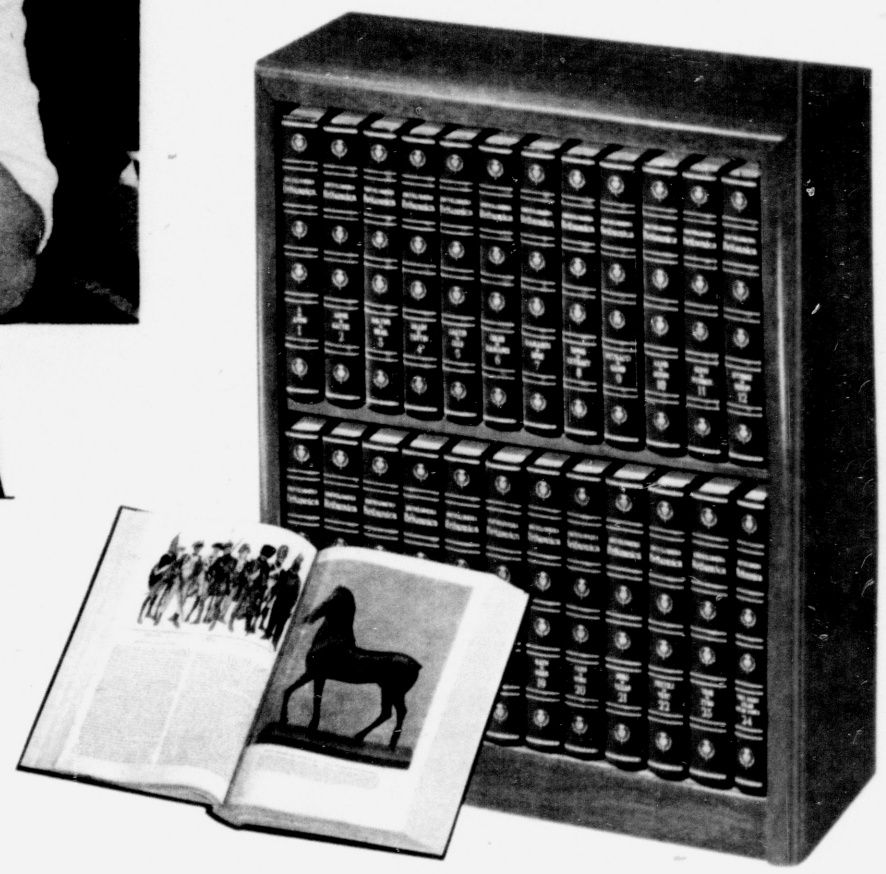
WHAT MAKES ONE HOUSE IN A NEIGHBORHOOD THE PLACE EVERYONE LOVES TO GO?

Everyone knows one house where people love to go. Every child in the neighborhood seems to gravitate to it from the time he can toddle. Friends drop in for a moment and find themselves staying for hours. Everyone feels welcome and leaves stimulated by the invariably interesting conversation. It is sometimes a big rambling place and sometimes a tiny apartment, but it is always a happy house—and its atmosphere rubs off on everyone who enters it.

What gives such a house its life and warmth? It is, of course, the personalities of the family who live in it—active, alert, informed parents and children whose enthusiasm and joy of life spill over on everyone they meet. Characteristically, they are interested in each other, in other people, and in every subject under the sun. Books are as much a part of their home as the beds, tables, and chairs—and the most essential of their books is usually the Encyclopaedia Britannica. It is to Britannica they turn during family discussions, for homework, for information on history, politics, hobbies . . . to answer almost any question fully and authoritatively. And like all families who develop the habit of "looking it up in Britannica," their minds are constantly enriched by knowledge unlikely to be obtained in any other way.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica contains the accumulated knowledge of the world since creation. It is a heritage of priceless value . . . a heritage every thinking parent will want to give his children.



Brand new edition

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

All 24 handsome volumes of this world-renowned reference library will be delivered to your home NOW direct from the publisher. You pay later at a cost so low it is as easy as buying a book a month!

Equivalent to a library of 1,000 books

The Encyclopaedia Britannica is the most valuable gift you can give yourself and your family—the priceless gift of knowledge. Information on every subject significant to mankind is contained in its new edition. It is equivalent to a library of 1,000 books, bringing you the knowledge and authority of world-recognized leaders in every field.

Just think of a subject—and you'll find it in the Encyclopaedia Britannica—whether it is information on the rules of a sport, the background of a religion, how to build a brick arch in a fireplace, or the science of launching a guided missile.

The new Britannica almost "televises" information to you, with 25,042 magnificent photographs, maps, and drawings. In every respect, Britannica is the largest and most complete reference set published in America, containing 27,357 pages and over 38,000,000 words.

Symbol of a good home

Encyclopaedia Britannica cannot help but have a lasting effect on you as well as on the growth and development of your children in school and in later life. Benjamin Franklin said: "An investment in knowledge pays the best interest," and Britannica gives you the accumulated knowledge of the world in clear, easy-to-read language and superb illustrations. It is essential in every home where education is valued and respected.

James Grover Thurber

Memoirs, James Thurber reminds us, are supposed to "paint a picture of our time." If so, then he's been writing his for 40 years. They run to 22 volumes, and include Men, Women, and Dogs, Fables For Our Time, and Alarms and Diversions. He is our most remarkable image-maker, because his is always a humorous picture as well as a sharply focused chronicle of a world of deranged sanity and "noisy desperation." He makes us laugh at what we see in his mirror, at times with a self-conscious giggle, at times with a muffled roar, at times, even, with a whimper.

Still hard at his life's work of "memoir" writing, he took time off from his current projects (a play, a book, a musical review) to produce a brand-new story for us. We are proud to be able to bring you "A Moment with Mandy."

The Super City Is On Its Way

By the time we bid farewell to the 20th century, the face of 1960 America will exist only in our memories. There are massive combines of suburbs and cities on the way that will one day be home for 85 percent of our people. We present one story that glimpses a new world most of us will live to see, and another that tells how fast urban ways are even now overtaking our countryside. May we urge you to read "Super City" and "Don't Let Them Bulldoze You."

Now, Here's A Blooming Salad

You take the leavings, and bury them. That's right – turnip greens, citrus seeds, carrot tops, pineapple leaves, all go into pots of dirt, sand, or pebbles in some corner of the house that needs a bit of brightening. Then water lightly, and simply wait for the pretty garden to grow. It's fun, and costs next to nothing.

Robert J. Lee

Our prize-winning cover artist is 37, attractive, witty, intelligent; has an estate with a two-story studio on it; chops trees for fun – an ideal catch any Leap Year, except (and alas, girls) Mrs. Lee got her jewel long ago. They met when she was five.

GETTING AROUND

...to Our Pleasant Places and People

HUNTING around for evidence of academic zeal, we came across a report that when pupils of a grade school near Mannasas, Virginia, were told that classes were discontinued for the day, their eyes filled with tears. Digging for more facts, we learned that one of the pupils had found a canister of tear gas and had taken it into the classroom, where it exploded.

Out around Altadena, California, some Crown City thespians featured a barbershop quartet in their production of "Rally Round The Girls, Boys." The group: Helen Carrier, lead; Louise Pewsey, tenor; Marjorie Fuller, baritone; and Barbara Huston, bass.

When Cub Scout den mother Bernardine Andis of New Palestine, Indiana, got ready to troop her pack home from a visit to a nearby automobile plant, she carefully checked to see that each boy had his coat, hat, and gloves. They had. She left her coat behind.

• •

Mrs. Edward J. Burns from around Garden City, Long Island, way is our champion boodler this month. She never spends fifty-cent pieces, but throws them in a drawer. At the end of the year they go to the bank. Last year's cache joined a growing fund that will one day send her daughter Barbara to college. Runner-up: an Ohio commuter who buys himself a new sports coat every year with the dimes he has left in his pockets at the end of each day.

The pick of candidates for the vacant office of Livonia, Michigan's, Public Service Commissioner finally dwindled down to twenty-five men and one woman. The winner, and new boss of Livonia's (pop., 60,000) police and fire departments: blonde, blue-eyed, five-foot-ten Loree ("Dolly") Mariwurm.

Little Sylvia McDonald, four-foot-six, of Raytown, Missouri, took home the imposing National Junior Free-Style Roller Skating Championship Trophy (three-foot-two).

A Hollywood, Florida fellow, who signs himself "Fishing Fool" reports: "Last weekend I caught a lot of fish. Since I couldn't use them all myself, I decided to offer some to neighbors. The first guy I called greeted my query with 'Are they cleaned?' I got so mad I buried them under a coconut tree. From now on I bury all my extra fish."

The school kids of Baltimore County, Maryland, drink up 10,000,000 bottles of milk per annum. To give all milk suppliers a fair shake, officials of the Department of Education asked for bids. In every zone, low bid was 6½c per half pint.

Struck by this curious coincidence, authorities asked questions, found that some adjoining counties paid 6c and others 5½c.

Making use of an escape clause in the milk contracts, authorities have asked for new bids. Net potential saving: $50,000 to $100,000.

The Keystone Automobile Club has set up a Bicycle Safety Lane (a device for testing brakes and frame alignment) at the Valley Forge Elementary School in Wayne, Pennsylvania.

Keystone's Safety Director Edward P. Curran tells us that over 20,000,000 kids are zipping around on bikes.

"The toll is appalling," says Curran, "largely because the kids don't really understand the rules of safe bicycling."

The toll: each year 500 dead, 20,000 injured. Mechanical defects and lack of skill help make up the total.

The safety program, which includes comprehensive bicycle instruction by qualified experts, is offered as a public service and is available to interested schools and organizations.

"Four months," broke in the judge, "suspended sentence."

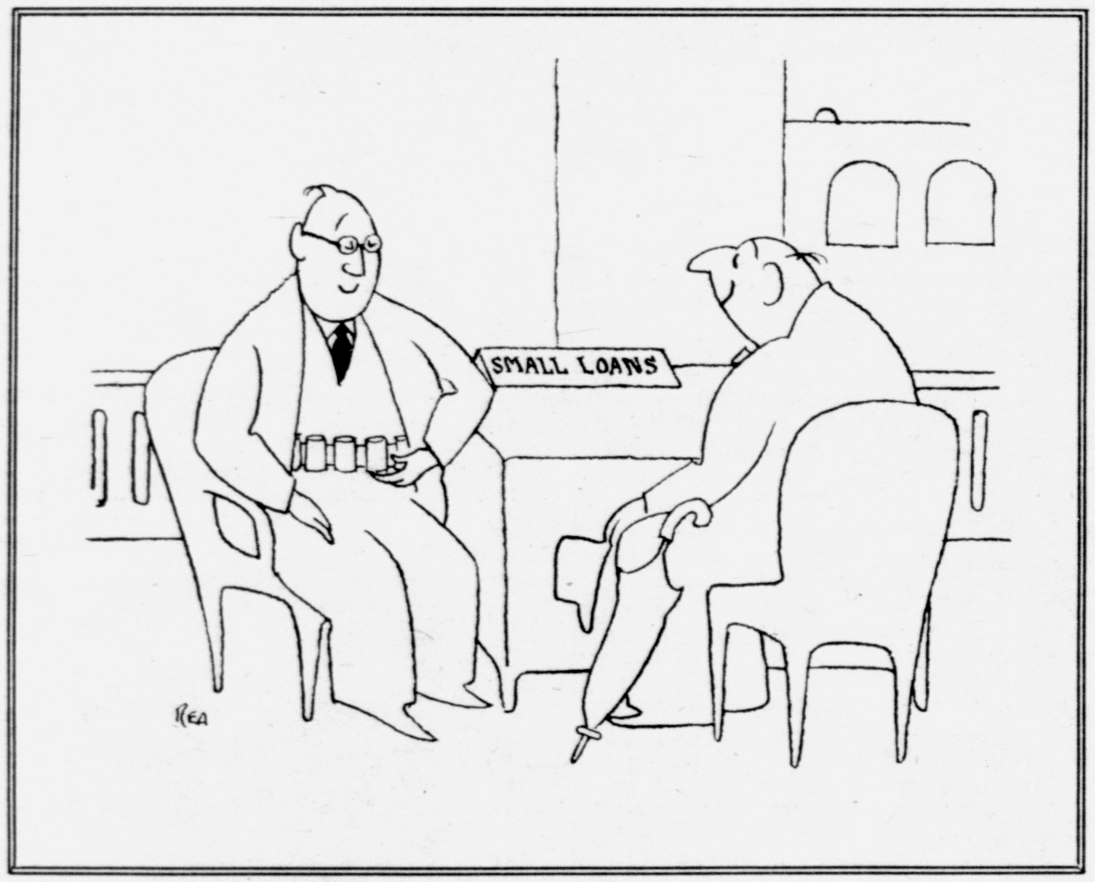
Folks out in Arlington Heights, Illinois, and environs who are approaching a stop sign with their eyes slightly glazed and their brains revolving at half speed, have been given a special assist in being properly alert, by the highway department.

Three hundred feet of "Rumbler" pavement —a pebbly aggregate—has been applied to the approaches of almost 200 stop signs.

The rough surface causes a car to vibrate and "rumble," thus warning the driver to sit up, take notice, and STOP.



Bulldoze You!

The outsider's appeal and several subsequent ones were turned down by both the County Court and the Planning Board.

So far so good. But we had had a narrow escape, and we realized that there were going to be more problems ahead and that we were going to need an organization which could get public attention, promote discussion, and come to a decision when necessary. We seized the first opportunity and sent out notices with the water bill calling for a "town meeting" at the schoolhouse, which resulted in the forming of our Community Club and the election of officers. Since then, the Club has sponsored speakers and some very lively question-and-answer periods on such subjects as county planning, maintenance of roads, fire protection, water pollution, and, of course, local taxes.

Further Advantages

The Club, I am sure, is creating a feeling of unity among us, and we are being recognized as an entity. Those who attend meetings regularly are few in number, but determined. We have become acquainted with our County Commissioners and the members of our Planning Board at public meetings and over a cup of coffee in our homes. We are in agreement as to what we do and do not want. We would like to keep our neighborhood the completely residential area it is ideally suited for. But if we must accept some commercial development, we want it planned and orderly, attractive, suited to our needs, and within definite boundaries. We have learned that "zoning" is a vague and variable condition at best.

To the proud possessors of other newly green suburban lawns, may I make a few suggestions? Even though you don't care too much that Betty Beanblossom had Uncle Fred and the kids over for Sunday dinner, take your local paper. The established county paper will carry notices of local elections, zoning changes, appeals, and other activities of vital importance to you and your neighbors, your children and your grandchildren. Turn your allegiance away from your old home in the city and become genuinely interested in your community. Go to your local meetings. There'll be another Western tomorrow night. In most places, these are the only means we have at present to combat suburban blight.

Living in the country is surely one of the best things in life, but it is not free. The price is the same as for safety at sea and the prevention of Black Spot on roses—eternal vigilance.

"Now let's try it with the lining."

WHAT IS YOUR STORY?

Are the bulldozers threatening to close in on you? . . . Any ideas about developing your town's resources for recreation? . . . How are your teen-agers going to find jobs this summer? . . . If you have any problems you would like to air—any success stories to tell—send them in to SUBURBIA TODAY. Manuscripts should run about 1,000 words and we pay $100 on acceptance.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, we bought the ten wooded acres upon which we live. Despite the fact that we were on a navigable river and less than an hour from Portland, Oregon, our land was almost untouched as when it became a Donation Land Claim over a hundred years ago, and for a long time there was nothing to indicate that it would not remain so, which made us very comfortable and happy.

Then, in that unpredictable and mysterious way in which populations move, the exodus from the city turned south in our direction. Slowly and inexorably it came, like lava down a mountainside, and about as welcome.

In three brief years, the old River Road, the orchards, and the fir forests have become a solid community of attractive country houses. We no longer make a Grand Tour by jeep, between ivy-twined trees, or heave debris from the woods over the fence. And I must admit we've grown to enjoy the lights through the trees on dark winter nights; life is pleasant in our suburbia.

But where do we go from here?

The first step we took was to get ourselves zoned as a residential area. Oh, happy day! We could relax. We had built our moat and our drawbridge and could go back to the old rocking chair.

Everybody makes mistakes. We learned from ours. We learned new terms like "interim zoning," which was what we had, and which serves as a delaying tactic only.

Shortly, a landowner – an outsider – appealed to the County Court for a zoning change to permit him to build a service station next to our general store. This institution already furnished us with gas and minor car repairs, as well as stocking emergency rations and, true to tradition, acting as our neighborhood news and information centre. Before our zoning went into effect, a second service station had been started and was now making a precarious living.

A third one we would have none of, so a few of us made our first appearance in court to state our objections. We did not want our still uncluttered highway to be turned into that scourge of the countryside – a strip development. That ugly and endless chain of gas stations, hot-dog stands, drive-ins, motels, trailer courts ad infinitum – you can be bulldozed into it before you know it.

Our arguments were sound and our voices were loud.

Mandy

"You said there was a bear with you."

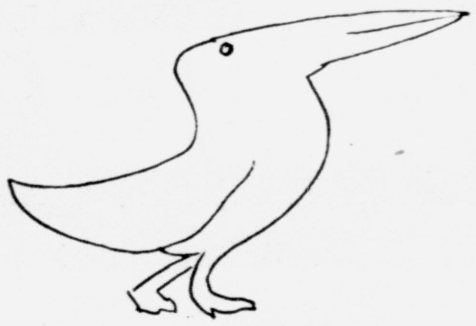
"I didn't say anything about a bear."

"I didn't say anything about a bear," I said.

"You said there was a bear with you," she said, "but there isn't any."

I went back over what I had said and found the bear, but ignored it. "We are getting nowhere faster than usual," I told her.

"What animal would you rather be?" was her next question. I must have been unconsciously preparing for this one.



"I have been a lot of animals," I told her, "but there are also a lot I haven't been. I was never a road hog or a snake in the grass, but I was once a news hound."

"Once my daddy brought an Elk home to our house for dinner," she said, "but he was just a man." She sighed, with the dark light of an old disenchantment in her eyes.

"Men hate to be called animals, but then they form lodges and luncheon clubs and call themselves animals—Elks, Moose, Eagles, Lions, and so on. Don't ask me why they come home dog-tired from stag parties and try to outfox Mama with a cock-and-bull story." I was all set to go further with this line of attack or defense, but her interest, after her fashion, had wandered back. "Why don't you want to be a road hog?" she demanded.

"Because they turn turtle, and then the bulls ride up on motorcycles and arrest them."

"Make up a nursery rhyme," Mandy commanded me.

I pretended to be having a hard time making up a nursery rhyme, but my anguish was rigged, for I had made one up long ago for just such an emergency, and I recited it:

"Half a mile from Haverstraw there lived a halfwit fellow,
"Half his house was brick and red, and half was wood and yellow;
"Half the town knew half his name but only half could spell it.
"If you will sit for half an hour, I've half a mind to tell it."

"MY DADDY makes up nursery rhymes, too," Mandy said. I felt sure her daddy's doggerel would top mine, and it did. "Tell me one of them," I said, and she did.

"Hi diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle,
"Moscow jumped over the moon."

"That isn't a nursery rhyme," I told her. "That is political science."

"No it isn't," Mandy said.

"Yes it is," I said.

"No it isn't," she said.

"Yes it is," I said.

"No it isn't," she said.

It was at this point, or, to be exact, sword's point, that Mandy's mother and my wife (they are not the same person) entered the room and broke into the debate. "You mustn't say it is if Mr. Thurber says it isn't," her mother told her.

"Are you two arguing again?" my wife wanted to know.

"No," I told her. "I was just explaining to Mandy that she shouldn't get her hopes up if she asks a bull on a motorcycle the way to the next town, and he says, 'Bear left at the church.' There won't be any bear there."

"Yes, there will," Mandy said.

"No, there won't," I said.

"Stop it," my wife said. "It's time to go." We broke it up, but, at the door, I said to Mandy, "Next time I'll explain why the wolf is at the door. It's on account of the stork."

"There isn't any stork, if you mean babies," Mandy said. I am sure she would have explained what she meant, in simple, childish dialectic, but my wife doesn't want me to know the facts of life. "For heaven's sake come on!" she said, and roughly but mercifully dragged me out of there.

FOR MORE THURBER — turn page

Whether writing or drawing, James Thurber is one of the funniest men in America. Much of his humor has been labeled "nonsense," but there is an uneasy feeling abroad that it may be simply reporting, and that the inhabitants of "Thurber's World" of deranged sanity may be us.

A Moment With

engages in a debate with an eight-year-old girl

...and emerges practically victorious

BY JAMES THURBER

"WHY DIDN'T GOD make bats butterflies?" Mandy suddenly asked me one day. Her questions always demand a grave consideration which her impatience with the slow processes of the adult mind will not tolerate. Mandy is eight, but I state her age with reservations because she is sometimes fourteen or older, and sometimes four or younger. "I want to hang by my heels like a bat," Mandy said, "but I want to be a butterfly. Daddy couldn't spank me then because I would be on the ceiling."

"He could get a stepladder," I said finally.

"I would push it over," she said. "Bang!"

"He could call the fire department, of course," I suggested.

"I would push that over, too," Mandy said, adding, "bang, bang!"

"Butterflies don't hang by their heels," I told her, but she was off on another tack.

"God didn't have to give turtles shells," she told me.

Here I thought I had her, but she does not corner easily in debate. "Turtles are very slow," I explained, "and so God gave them shells they could hide in, to protect themselves from their enemies."

"He could make them faster," Mandy said. "Why didn't he make them faster?" She had me there. I realized, for the first time, that if God had made porcupines and skunks faster, they wouldn't need their quills and vitriol, respectively.

"Why didn't God give us wings?" was her next question, and I began to lecture on that point.

"We have developed wings," I told her, but she cut me off with that topic sentence.

"It took God a million billion years to give us wings," she said. "They are no good." To this she added after a moment's thought, or half a moment's, "We don't have anything."

"We have better sight than dogs. People can see better than they can," I told her.

"Dogs don't bump into things. People bump into things," she said.

"Dogs are guided by better hearing and a better sense of smell than we have," I explained.

"They can't see a light way way off," was her answer to that.

"No, but when the man with the light gets nearer, they can hear him, and then they can smell him," I told her.

She left me flat-footed with a quick passing shot. "This light doesn't get nearer, 'cause it's in a lighthouse."

That annoyed me, for I am a bad loser. "All right, all right, then," I snapped. "We'll move the dog nearer the lighthouse. Aren't you going to allow me to score a single point in this colloquy?"

Mandy has a standard answer for any questions she doesn't understand. "No," she said. "Why didn't God give dogs glasses?"

For days I had been practicing some questions of my own for Mandy, and I served them all at once. "Why don't foxes wear foxgloves? Why don't cows wear cowslips? What was it Katy did? If cowboys round up cows, why don't bulldogs round up bulls? Why don't badgers play the badger game? Why aren't there rats racing in this rat race?"

"Katy who?" Mandy asked, her quick feminine instinct for scandal making her ignore all the other questions.

"You're too young to know who she was and what she did, and I'm too old to care," I said.

"My daddy says the bugs are going to get everybody." Mandy repeated this prophetic piece of eschatology indifferently, as if it didn't matter.

"Your father was referring to a recent announcement by some scientists that insects are increasing alarmingly on this planet," I told her. "It is my opinion that they are increasing because they are alarmed by the steady increase of human beings."

"I want a swan to get me," Mandy said. "What do you want to get you?"

I HAD to give this some thought. "Bear with me," I said. "It isn't easy to decide. It would be colorful and exotic to be got by a green mamba in the Taj Mahal, but my friends would say I was just showing off, and such an ending would also be out of character. I shall probably stumble over my grandson's toy train and break my neck."

Mandy, true to form, lobbed her next question over my head. "What bear?" she said.

Ken-L-Biskit!

Why is Ken-L-Biskit the daily diet at America's top kennels?

Why is it the official food at more American Kennel Club dog shows than all other dog foods combined?

Economy? Yes! Cup for cup kibble-sized Ken-L-Biskit provides more nutrition than most other dry dog foods—so you can feed less because this food does more.

Goodness? That's important too. Dogs get more out of Ken-L-Biskit. Rich in meat protein. More digestible because it's baked. There's less waste.

But the real appeal is the fact that dogs eat it up. They like it. They love it! An empty feeding bowl is all the proof you need.

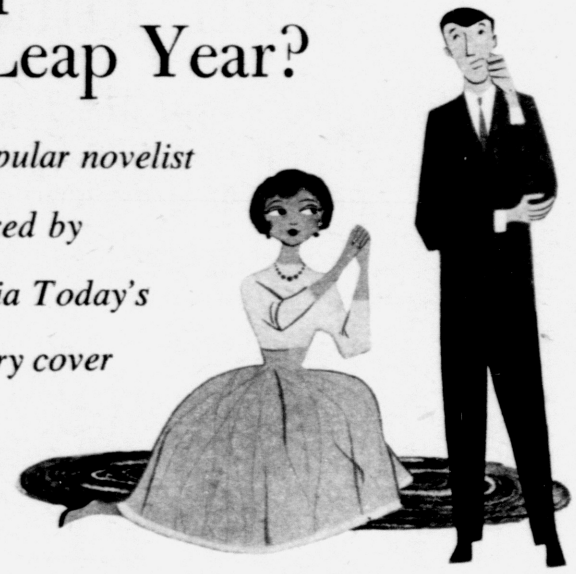
Should a Girl Propose... Even in Leap Year?

The popular novelist is inspired by Suburbia Today's February cover



BY FAITH BALDWIN

WHEN I was first asked this hearty searching question, my immediate reaction was, why, she always proposes, in any year!

This isn't strictly true, of course. But I am of the opinion that the majority of men are gently led into matrimony by implication. I know a woman who has been happily married for twenty years; she'd been courted for five, and she grew a little tired of not getting a chance to say "Yes!" so she took to leading him past furniture stores and stopping to admire the lighted windows; she also steered him away from the small expensive dinner-and-dance outings (which she greatly enjoyed) and into dinners at home, or in a cafeteria, plus a movie and a soda. It worked. First thing you know, no one had proposed, but the date was set.

Another, a business girl, began cooking dinners in her flat and requesting her roommate to take the evening off somewhere. When her beau remarked that it was wonderful, almost as though they were married, she replied brightly, "as we might possibly be some day. . . ."

In my own case I do not recall a proposal . . . on either side. I do recall my father's walking into the living room and saying to my young man (who was very hard to acquire), "Suppose we have a little talk . . . upstairs?" In those days the male intentions were often inquired into, if not as openly as in another generation. Drifting and dreaming were all very well, but what about reality?

How to get your man really isn't important except to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—the pressing question is, where do you find him? There's said to be a shortage of eligible men today; I'm also told that the wide-open spaces grow more of them, Alaska particularly, so now that it's a State maybe more and more females will crowd highways and seaways in search of husbands. I must, however, remind you that it isn't necessary or wise to use a whip, and it's never smart to linger in front of shops displaying ten-carat diamonds and mutation minks.

And at home or abroad, let us remember that while February brings Leap Year every four years, it offers Valentine's Day every year. This is an important day. I know a woman who "found herself engaged" by the simple expedient of investing in a five-cent valentine and an air mail stamp. If that wasn't proposing, I'd like to know what it was!

Happy Leap Year . . . and may the best girl win!

3 Cheese-Garlic Dressings no one can buy

... make one tonight with this GOOD SEASONS MIX

Good Seasons Cheese-Garlic Dressing. A fresh and creamy dressing, full of fine blue cheese and with an undertone of garlic! Takes seconds to mix. Easy directions on the Good Seasons envelope. You add your favorite oil, vinegar and a little water to the Mix. The water, or a substitute liquid, makes the blend smoother. (A continental chef's secret!) You can use many substitutes, vary the dressing to your own taste. See recipes below for delicious suggestions.

Cheese-Garlic and Olive Dressing. To make this, substitute sour cream or mayonnaise for the water when making your Good Seasons Dressing. Just before final shaking, add 1 tablespoon of chopped ripe or stuffed olives. Wonderful on a green salad. Add French fried onions (canned or prepared frozen), toss with this dressing—a triumph!

Cheese-Garlic Dressing with Wine and Chives. Men cheer for this one. Use wine—white, vermouth or sherry—instead of water. Final touch: add 1 or 2 teaspoons of minced chives or onions. Try it with a new salad of greens, sliced raw mushrooms (marinated briefly in dressing) and slivers of sweet red peppers. Delicious, also, with salads of tomatoes, avocados, sea food, or chilled, cooked vegetables.

- 1¼ cups chilled ginger ale
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 ripe avocados, peeled and diced

1. Empty gelatin into a bowl. Add hot water and reserved sirup; stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Blend in the ginger ale and the salt.
2. Chill in refrigerator or over ice and water until mixture is slightly thicker than consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. If chilled in refrigerator, stir occasionally; and if chilled over ice and water, stir frequently.
3. Lightly oil a 1-qt. mold with salad or cooking oil (not olive oil); set aside to drain.
4. When gelatin mixture is of desired consistency, mix in the avocados and kumquats. Turn into prepared mold and chill until firm, about 3 hrs.
5. To unmold, run tip of knife carefully around edge of mold. Invert onto a chilled serving plate and remove mold. (If necessary, wet a clean towel in hot water and wring it almost dry; wrap hot towel around mold for a few seconds. If mold does not loosen, repeat.) Garnish with water cress.

The sweet-potato vine shown here is just beginning a journey that will take it all over the window frame if no human hand interferes. Common vegetables and fruits will thrive in indoor gardens and provide decorative and unexpected foliage effects as a background for your more familiar flowering plants

SEEDS AND PARINGS that usually go in the garbage can be planted in soil or water and will grow, in a short space of time, into thriving, engaging plants, grateful for the houseroom and asking the minimum in care and upkeep. For instance:

Turnips: Slice the yellow root off about two inches from the top, and cut the green stems back close. Place in a dish of sand or pebbles and keep moist until sprouts appear, then water at regular intervals. In a few weeks you will have broad fluted leaves of tender green, effective for a window-garden border or as a green cover to surround pots of flowering plants. Carrots may be treated the same way (the delicate, ferny tops, incidentally, make wonderful "trees" for a toy village or barnyard). Beets cut in half and planted in moist sand produce spectacular red and green foliage. Sprouting sweet potatoes should be supported, sprout-end up, over a container of water, so that only the lower quarter

Here are beets, alligator pears, and pineapple, comfortably established in an indoor garden. Seeds of grapefruit, orange, and lemon are planted in tidy circles in the big bowl and will be tenderly transferred to individual pots when they make their appearance. All parlor fruits and vegetables relish sunlight and most of them—except squash and melons—take kindly to moisture.

Want A Community Skating Rink?

Towns and clubs and investors are building them—there'll be

BY GEORGE J. JAFFE

over 500 by the end of this year

A NEW Ice Age is upon us.

Ten years ago we only had 96 artificial rinks in the whole country, and most of them were indoors and in the big cities. Now they are spreading out everywhere, in practically every state in the Union, and in the most likely and unlikely places. There is a skating rink today in a Miami Beach hotel and another one on the main floor of a New York City bank. The first industrial rink for employees is under construction in a large plant in Kingsport, Tennessee, and there will be another big one in the $30-million Lloyd Shopping Center outside Portland, Oregon. Schools and colleges are finding that figure skating and hockey and ice dancing are more and more popular with their students – witness Yale's vast Ingalls rink, designed by the celebrated architect Eliel Saarinen and just opened last year.

The engineer-consultants who design rinks are astonished by the calls they are getting now from small towns and suburbs.

"This is real proof that we are going all out for the sport," says the founder of Peter Carver Associates, who specialize in artificial rinks. "An unprecedented number of suburban communities have already built rinks, indoors and outdoors, or are planning to build them. And they're not necessarily private or commercial ventures now. The towns and neighborhoods themselves are doing it, nonprofit, in the name of pleasure.

"And when you realize that it usually takes a community an average of two and a half years of work and planning – plus an initial financial outlay of maybe $200,000 per rink – well, the picture of what's happening with ice rinks seems fantastic."

The initial outlay is serious – it has to be, to pay for land, building and ice-making machinery – but skating is a sport for all ages and, once the rinks are established, they earn their way.

In some neighborhoods, where there are no community rinks, people have started their own ice skating rinks, similar to the summer "swim clubs." A hundred or so families will group together and each put up a $1,000 bond to raise money to start building a clubhouse and rink. Additional funds, if needed, come out of annual dues, as is the custom with all clubs.

Why are we building a hundred mechanical rinks a year now, and "riding our skates" in all directions? There seem to be a great many reasons, all of them splendid.

Rinks Are Community Centers

"Increased leisure time is my explanation," says the manager of a rink outside San Francisco. "How can you and your kids do better for fifty cents on a Saturday afternoon?" California ranks second only to New York state, with 32 rinks in operation and seven more being built.

An instructor at one of Buffalo's seven town-owned rinks claims there is a skating boom because the public's interest has been greatly stimulated by the many travelling ice shows it has seen in recent years.

Around Boston, where the city fathers expect to be maintaining fourteen rinks within a few years, they say they always did go in for ice skating.

"But," said one fan, "the weather seems to be getting warmer each winter and our natural frozen ponds are getting too undependable. That's where artificial rinks have won out. It's always 'Skating Today,' and you're not held up by soft spots and rippled ice."

The manager of a Michigan rink says:

"People are beginning to find that municipal ice arenas are great as community centers, places to get the whole family together for local events, or just plain fun and exercise and music. Our rink has become popular as a teen-age get-together spot in the winter months, which is a mighty healthy sign. But it's amazing how the thing has caught on with parents, too, who are discovering the sport is fun at any age. It's a good way of exercising off middle-age spread – skating is the only sport besides swimming that uses all the muscles."

By the end of this year there are going to be over 500 mechanically frozen rinks in operation, and another hundred or so will be built during 1961. One big community rink, completed in 1958, now has a Saturday schedule filled from 6:30 a.m. till midnight. The first skaters to arrive are a batch of ten-to-fourteen-year-old boys who play on the local "Little League" hockey teams. They are replaced at 8:30 by the teen-age members of the Figure Skating Club. Then, in the public skating period, from 9:30 until noon, the ice is taken over by the hundreds of gaily dressed skaters who strike out hand in hand and whirl and glide to the strains of the "Blue Danube" and "The Street Where You Live." These lighthearted fans range from four to seventy-four, and turn out in everything from leotards and short flared skirts to plaid kilts and tweed jackets. From noon to 2:30 there is a skating instruction period for beginners, and for the rest of the afternoon and evening more sessions for general and figure skating. At 11 the Speed Skaters take over, and the call to "Clear the Ice" comes at 1 a.m.

It was an Englishman, a Professor Gamgee, who invented the first mechanically frozen rink in 1874, and to hear the rink managers tell it, after nearly a hundred years his invention looks better than ever.

But the circumstances of one's own birth are difficult to pre-arrange and so you're as likely to be born in Peoria, Illinois, as in Paris, France. Assuming that you were born in Paris, French would be your native language and you would learn it as a child does—by hearing, seeing, associating objects and actions with sounds, repeating, imitating and, finally, speaking. This is by far the best way to learn any language.

If you are not native to France then the next best way to learn French is to simply go and live there. Surround yourself with all things French, listen, ask and learn. This, of course, takes time and can be very expensive.

But if you were not born French and if the prospect of pulling up stakes and settling down in Paris seems remote, then we say in all modesty: the best way to learn to speak French is at Berlitz.

The Berlitz Method (and we use the capital "M" advisedly) is very similar to living in France except that it is quicker and more economical. At Berlitz your instructor is a cultured native of France. He knows the language, the accents and the customs of the land of his birth. No one is better qualified to instruct you in French than he is. Right from the very beginning he speaks to you in French—never in English. And so you learn to speak French as a child does. You hear, see, associate, repeat and eventually you're speaking French. Sound simple? It is. It's so simple that by the end of your first hour at Berlitz you will actually be able to carry on a simple conversation in French. (You have a great advantage over the French child in that you have an adult's mind and an adult's ability and willingness to concentrate.)

Our aim is to enable you to understand and be understood in another language. In short, we want you to be able to speak and communicate in another tongue. 80 years of experience and 10 million graduates testify to the effectiveness of the "Berlitz Method". You do not learn about another language—you learn the language itself, in terms of itself. You learn to "think" in that language. You learn to enjoy that language as if it were your own native tongue. Once you have mastered the basic sounds you then move on to reading and writing. Again—this is exactly the way a child learns. Grammar is not drilled into your head. You learn it through usage and familiarity—not as a set of rigid and tedious rules. The "Berlitz Method" is a simple concept. The most compelling thing about it is that it works.

If you have unpleasant memories of high school or college language courses—put them away. Lock them in your trunk or press them into your yearbook. There's no place for them at Berlitz. We abhor inflexible routines and we sometimes wish that the word "School" were not a part of our name—we feel that it frightens some people away. Our aim is to teach you to speak another language. We can do it for you enjoyably, quickly and inexpensively. Perhaps we're mistaken but that's what we think most people want.

What we have written here applies to every spoken language for we teach them all—and from Arabic to Zulu, the "Method" is the same. How long it takes and how much it costs is entirely up to you. Instruction is arranged to fit your schedule and a course is designed to fit your needs. (An engineer off for the Venezuelan oil fields will need a more specialized knowledge of Spanish than a young couple off to spend three weeks in Madrid.)

Since all Berlitz instruction is tailored to individual language needs, the best procedure for you would be to stop in or call the nearest Berlitz School (listed below) and have a chat with the Director. You'll find him to be cordial, informative, interested in your particular needs and, most important, able to help you better than anyone we know. This is enrollment month at all the Berlitz Schools . . . so stop in or call today.

which you know must be the Ohio River; shortly, massive groups of houses come into focus. There is green land around them and here and there the blue expanse of big swimming pools. Now the buildings stretch below you as far as you can see, a city reaching to the horizon. Groups of magnificent, tall, light-colored buildings tower above the general level and everywhere the settlements make way for parks and bodies of water. Innumerable narrow white ribbons crisscross the place like spider webs and you can see tiny bright objects moving along the white trails. Nine minutes and three hundred and fifty miles from Bristol your rocket swoops to a landing at Cuyahoga blastport.

Your family meets you in the "suburbile"—the car especially designed for super-city life, a bubble on wheels with a tiny jet motor in the rear. You get in and start slowly down the road till you reach your suburtrail, a narrow one-way highway with a raised concrete strip down the center. You drive on when the signal indicates and then your motor accelerates full speed, and at a hundred and fifty miles an hour trees, houses, bridges and buildings whiz past you. Collisions are impossible, since the trail is one-way and the vapor jet of the suburbile ahead exerts enough pressure to prevent a rear-end accident. At the end of forty miles you turn off and drive slowly along a tree-shaded road to your house in the hills of Medina County. When you get out of the car, you pull a lever and the suburbile deflates like a bubble shrinking. The parts fold up automatically until there is only a small jet engine attached to a package the size of an ordinary suitcase. The whole apparatus is stored till you need it again in a locker beside the front door.

BACK in the "fifties" and "sixties," you remember, they had cars with tops that folded back automatically, and even a little power-driven vehicle—the "Joy Ride"—that weighed only 51 pounds and could be collapsed and packed in a suitcase when the commuter reached his destination. They did not have miniature jet engines then, or the condensed atomol fuel that powers them, but the idea was there.

Your house is one in a row of long, low houses. Inside it is beautifully illuminated by walls that glow with a soft, clear light. In the back it opens on a court surrounding a swimming pool. You can swim here in any weather because the court is really a part of the house, covered with a great transparent dome

THE SUPER CITY

A population expert forecasts vast city-suburbs and new ways of living in ten key areas of the U.S.

BY JEROME P. PICKARD
Director of Research, Hammer and Company Associates

"Downtown," a generation from now—no more stalled traffic, no more smog, plenty of air and space.

FROM what we know now about our development as a nation and the forces at work on us, it is possible to make some startling projections of a world many of us are going to see, the world in which our children will be living and working and raising their families.

Barring a war catastrophe, we can expect to be a population of three hundred and twenty million by the next generation and almost all of us—eighty-five per cent—will be living in urban areas, hopefully living better than we do now and certainly living differently. In ten key areas today's populous suburbs will be combined with their cities in vast super cities which, if we plan carefully, will offer the pleasant living of the original suburbs plus the stimulation and scope of the city. These are the shapes of some of the super cities to come and, typically, to describe them, we give them country names and great-city populations:

"Chesapeake and Potomac City" will sweep over Baltimore and Washington and surrounding areas like Annapolis and Arlington, Silver Spring and Aberdeen. Nine and a half million people will live here.

"Delaware Valley City" will center on Philadelphia, with Trenton and Wilmington included in a super city of eight and a half million.

"Southeast Florida City" with Miami as its hub will have six and a half million, and will reach beyond Palm Beach.

"New England City" will include Boston, Worcester, Providence, the Merrimack Valley cities and surrounding areas. Six and a half million will live here.

"Cuyahoga Valley City" will extend from Cleveland to Akron and Lorain, and will have five million inhabitants.

NEW YORK with its environs, already a super city, will have twenty-three million inhabitants and will still be the nation's greatest population center. Suburbs and cities together will build other vast super cities around Los Angeles and Chicago and Detroit.

Thousands of square miles of land—an area about equal to the state of Illinois—are going to be taken up in the expansion. If the thought makes your heart sink, it is comforting to reflect that this only means urbanizing another two per cent of the country. We have no land to squander—we never had—but if we conserve and plan wisely there will still be open space for farming, forests, and recreation.

Altogether, a hundred and seven million of us are going to be living in the ten gigantic combines of city and suburbs and if we are to flourish we shall have to have means of living and moving around quite different from the ones we have today. To bring projections down to earth and see what life is going to be like, imagine yourself in the year 2000, which is no longer a remote, imposing date in history, but four fast-moving decades from now.

You are, let us say, at the blastport in Bristol, Virginia, where the Zoomer rocket is waiting on the runway pad to take you back to Cleveland in Cuyahoga Valley City. You get aboard and settle into your suspended seat for the ten-minute trip. The Zoomer tilts up and you flash through space, out of earth's atmosphere into a starry night. In three minutes, shining, bluish gray, the curve of the earth reappears and in another minute you make out a winding black thread below, reminiscent of the early Fuller dome which made such a stir at the United States Exhibition in Moscow, in 1959. Beyond your own court and pool there is a big common garden which you share with the other houses like your own, having joined all your lots for the purpose when the site was developed. This again recalls the planners of the mid-twentieth century, men like Edward Stone, the architect of the $60,000,000 National Cultural Center in Washington.

Forerunner of the "Suburbile," today's 51-pound "Joy Ride" does 100 miles to the gallon, folds into its case in 15 seconds, goes anywhere.

"The time has come," he used to say, "to realize we are no longer living in the era of the country squire. Can't we finally abandon the illusion of the isolated dwelling, and not let our heritage of beautiful land be dissipated by miles and miles of little places with no parks, no open countryside, no beauty?"

Your close-set houses with the shady garden sweeping behind them are the logical outcome of the architect's foresight. So are the handsome massive apartments you see way out in the country, housing many families and saving land for pools, bird sanctuaries, picnic groves, tennis courts, and golf courses.

THIS countryside that you value so much in your Cuyahoga Valley City has been developed finally by popular demand. Now that people are only working a twenty-hour week, they have more time to play and they have been determined to have their Ohio country restored so they can enjoy it at their leisure.

It takes about fifteen minutes to get from your house and swimming pool to your office downtown. If you don't want to drive, you can take the "sizrail," a super-city express, which travels on a single rail track at one hundred and ninety miles an hour.

In the early days of the "suburban explosion" many central cities like Cleveland and Akron started making plans for renewal to fit them for their new position in an expanded metropolis. The Cleveland you see now is the outcome—a city of tall towers reached by moving ramps and framed in landscaped open space. The big buildings stand well above ground and through their open foundations the sizrails and suburbiles and carriers zoom about, and the pedestrians pass by on their ramps. The city is like a beehive, a gallery of many levels, yet, as you go down Euclid Avenue, there is little noise from the fast, easy movement of the traffic.

These things have not happened yet. The super cities so far are only projections of our existing data and today's central cities are in turmoil —a far cry from the stately, inviting visions on the drawing boards. But the forces to produce them are already at work. There are great changes ahead and—if we can think big and think fast—great opportunities for our cities and suburbs as we know them today.

The projections quoted here are based on the author's monograph, "Metropolitanization of the United States," (Urban Land Institute, 1959).

Turnips In The Parlor

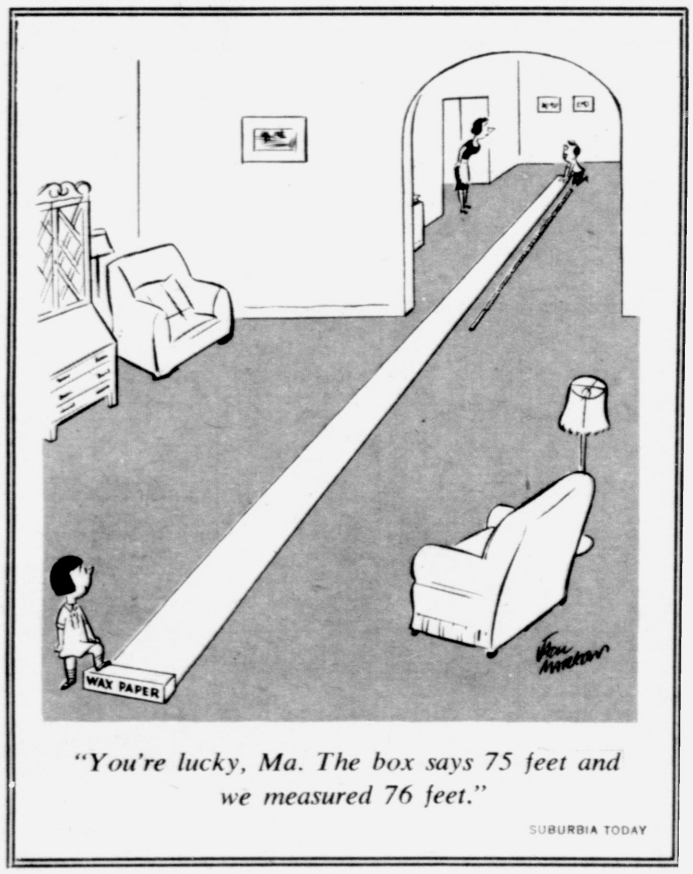
is covered with water. In about six weeks, shoots will be a foot long and ready for something to climb on. Sprouting alligator pear seeds can be treated the same way, suspended over water, flat side down, but they want barely to touch the surface of the water. In about two months the roots will have grown four or five inches, and the plant should go into a pot of sandy loam with coarse gravel on the bottom. In time it will be over your head.

Watermelon, cantaloupe, and squash seeds sprout quickly and produce an abundance of leaves. Dry the seeds for a week and plant directly in a pot of good soil. Water only sparingly both before and after sprouting—in this family they don't like wet feet. Grapefruit, orange, and lemon seeds may be planted immediately after washing in a half inch or so of light garden soil. Very shortly, glossy green sprouts will appear, ready for transplanting in individual pots. This is the best time to start an indoor vegetable garden—the sun is beginning to climb higher now, and that is what this crop needs to do its best by you. One caution: some vegetables, nowadays, are chemically treated to prevent sprouting, so be sure, if you are buying one to grow, that it shows signs of life.

A perfectly formed pineapple top, with its spray of pointed gray-green leaves is as decorative and exotic and tough a plant as you could ask for, to flourish far from its native soil in the dry, undesirable conditions of a steam-heated room. Cut about an inch of fruit below the top and set it in damp sand or peat moss until the roots show, then put it in a container of half soil, half peat moss, with gravel in the bottom. Or if it is more convenient, you can grow it in water, pressing it on a large needle flower holder to keep it upright. Being a symbol of hospitality, the pineapple makes a good plant for a hall table, and like all the others, it is easy and rewarding.



"You're lucky, Ma. The box says 75 feet and we measured 76 feet."
